Opposition for Hoover
Mr. Rockefeller's Plan
Pope Pius' Warning
How Do We Know Ourselves?

By Arthur Brisbane

LATEST POLITICAL news, not guaranteed, is that Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, backed by "Progressive Republicans," will try to take the nomination from Mr. Hoover in 1932. This is the first opposition to Mr. Hoover's renomination suggested thus far.

Taking the nomination from Mr. Hoover would not be easy, and if any taking were to be done, Senators Norris, Borah and La Follette might want to be considered.

Also would-be nominees should not forget that there is a certain Calvin Coolidge, sitting in the shadow, keeping watch above his own. He wouldn't take anything away from President Hoover, but he might take it from somebody else. And how easily he could take it from somebody else.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., serves his city by rebuilding and transforming an undeveloped section in the heart of New York at an expense of about two hundred and fifty million dollars.

This undertaking guarantees, over a long period, a very large and permanent income for Columbia College.

It shows what can be done, with imagination, energy and money, to improve a great city in a short time.

Most important, Mr. Rockefeller's enterprise will give employment to thousands of men now out of work in the highly-paid building trades.

And, Mr. Rockefeller's magnificently planned development, in the heart of New York, including a fine opera house, buildings for exhibition of moving pictures and for broadcasting, will attract visitors from all over the United States and add to the prosperity of all business men in New York.

Some New York editors, suddenly developing deep knowledge of architecture, are very kind about telling Mr. Rockefeller what he should build. Some, it seems, would like him to tear down several blocks and create some sort of Petit Trianon, in imitation of Marie Antoinette's playhouse at Versailles. Others perhaps would prefer a Fifth Ave. Boni Souci.

Mr. Rockefeller, fortunately, is a business man, has a business father, and does not mean to build what would be known later as "Rockefeller's Folly." He will build modern buildings, in the modern American way, up toward the sky.

Mr. Rockefeller's plans will pay a fair return on the investment, following his method in building apartment houses with low rentals. He wants others to follow his useful example.

If Mr. Rockefeller can prove, to great financial institutions and life insurance companies, that a city can be improved, an entire neighborhood transformed profitably, he will stimulate other enterprises of the same kind. This is far more important than building something to amuse himself or to please the "artistic" dilettanti.

Incidentally, Mr. Rockefeller's enterprise will pay several millions a year in additional taxes collected by New York city. That will be welcome to a city government that knows what to do with taxes.

Pope Pius XI, in an earnest letter of rebuke, criticizes Fascist authorities, which means Mussolini and his government.

Pope Pius warns Fascism, and Mussolini, plainly that "in order to be Catholics, not in name but in deed also, there is only one indispensable means—to obey the church and its head." The Pope's letter criticizes a statement by Giuriati, secretary of the Fascist party, who objects to the "Action Catholica," a church organization which he calls hostile to Fascism.

The Pope reminds the government that "in the field of education the church has full competency and authority," and that it is the duty of the government to be guided by the church, and to assist her.

Mussolini's only reply, thus far, is the arrest of newsboys selling the newspaper, Osservatore Romano, and calling out the Pope's letter of censure. There was no interference with newsboys selling the paper, but not calling out its contents.

Policeman Keishman was perplexed when a lady, 50 years old, said she did not know who she was, or where she lived. He cautiously asked a colleague: "Can you beat it?"

At the hospital the woman's trouble was called "aphasia," which means in Greek "not to speak." The policeman need not have been surprised.

The wonderful thing is that so many of us do know who we are, where we live, and where we want to go, for the moment. How will it be in a few years, the other side of the grave? Shall we then remember who

WARNER WILL BARE GUY CASE FACTS

Thorough Inquiry Into Bank Commissioner's Office Is Demanded

Middlesex County investigators announced today they had learned that Guy L. Vaughan invested $18,000 in a stock pool prior to his disappearance and that a new estimate of his shortage in five private banks would probably reach $150,000.

A thorough probe into the office of Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy was started today by Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner, on orders of Governor Joseph B. Ely that he "get the facts" on grand jury charges that the commissioner was lax in his duties.

The immediate removal of Guy from office was recommended in the Middlesex County jury report yesterday at the same time that body returned three indictments against Guy L. Vaughan, missing bank receiver.

There was sufficient evidence to warrant the bank commissioner taking action against Vaughan six months ago, the jury report said.

Given the report yesterday by Asst. Dist.-Atty. Frank G. Volpe, Gov. Ely turned it over to Warner

EXCLUSIVE! Murder Suspect Suicide

HERE ARE TWO VIEWS OF SUICIDE IN KILLING CASE

A thwarted romance led William A. Wetmore to kill his sweetheart, pretty Emily Kirk, according to statements by officials today, following the suicide of the man. Her family objected to his attentions to the girl, it is said. Wetmore first swallowed acid and then shot himself twice with a shotgun Wednesday morning, just before he was to have been examined as a suspect in the case. (Other pictures on Page 3.)

GIRL KILLED WHEN PLAN TO MARRY FAILED

Coroner Says Miss Kirk's Parents Refused Consent to Her Wedding

BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

Hamilton, C., April —The suicide today of William Wetmore, 28, relative by marriage of Emily Kirk, who was lured from a dance, attacked and slain Saturday night, solves the mystery of the murder, according to Coroner James J. Corrigan.

The coroner declared that it was a crime of passion, that Wetmore loved the girl and believed she loved him, but that the Kirk family opposed their marriage.

At the hour when he was to have been grilled a second time as a suspect today, Wetmore walked into the yard of his home, drank acid and twice fired a shotgun into his abdomen.

MOTHER FOUND BODY

Police were on their way to his home at the time, having received word that he might fail to appear for the questioning.

His mother, who found the body, told them of his remarks about a "love pact" with the girl. Three notes were found and in one of these, written just before the suicide, the youth denied his guilt.

Search of his room, however, resulting in the finding of a girl's powder compact, several empty .22 calibre cartridge shells, a torn shirt, stained clothing, a handkerchief with gunpowder stains and a coat with a woman's face powder on the shoulder.

Coroner Corrigan later announced that before tonight he would make a formal report naming Wetmore as guilty of the murder, in his opinion.

The one note which officials made public read:

"I did not kill Emily, but I am

PROFESSOR, 30, NAMED JUDGE

Prof. John J. Burns of the Harvard Law School was nominated a judge of the Superior Court today by Governor Ely.

He is 30 years old and is believed to be the youngest judge ever appointed to the Superior Court bench in Massachusetts.

He is also the first Boston College graduate to hold such a post.

The Governor sent his name to the Executive Council today, as nominee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge John D. McLoughlin.

HARVARD PROFESSOR

"A brilliant young man with a wonderful mind," Governor Ely characterized Professor Burns.

"The appointment is a very flattering one," Professor Burns said. "I hope that my judicial conduct will justify Gov. Ely's faith in me and that Judge McLaughlin's great name will always be an inspiration to me. I've always entertained the ambition of becoming judge."

The nominee is a full professor of procedure. He conducted Dean Pound's course on criminal law while Dean Pound served on the Wickersham Commission. He is also associated with the firm of Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt.

The Governor was enthusiastic about his nominee, who is a Democrat. Speaking of him he made reference to Judge Storey who, at the age of 32, went from Massachusetts to the bench of the United States Supreme Court.

PROFESSOR IN FISTIC CLASH

A fistic encounter between a Boston University professor and one of a party of four men who tried to "crash" the Boston University Junior Weekend ices at Nickerson Field clubhouse in Weston early today, was revealed a few hours later when the professor's alleged assailant was arraigned in Waltham Court.

Francis Regan of Willoughby st., Brighton, alleged to have punched Prof. Virgil D. Reed, professor at Boston University School of Business Administration, was held in $300 for a hearing May 7.

CAUGHT IN CHASE

Regan was charged with assault, drunkenness and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

He was captured in Commonwealth ave., Auburndale, by three Weston policemen after the professor, despite a fast-purpling eye, had pursued Regan and his three companions who, Prof. Reed said, believed were students.

SAVANT HITS BACK

According to the professor's complaint, the four attempted to "crash" the party and were forced outside by Prof. Reed and others, after the intruders had annoyed Mrs. Reed by attempting to dance with her.

As Prof. and Mrs. Reed were leaving the dance, the four are alleged to have approached, and Regan is alleged to have punched Prof. Reed in the eye.

Two Fined $75 Each for Theft of Coat

A Harvard student's fur coat brought fines of $75 each today in Somerville court to Robert A. Johnstone, 23, of Radcliffe rd., Somerville, and John Noonan, 25, of West Second st., South Boston.

Noonan and Johnstone said they found it but Alton White, the student, said it was stolen. The fines were divided into $50 each for larceny and $25 each for assault on each other.

The latter was the means of discovery of the coat, the two fighting over it last Thursday night.

HULTMAN GETS WRIT TO BALK CIVIL SERVICE BOARD RULING

SUIT TO TEST WHOSE POWER IS GREATER

Supreme Court Will Decide Whether Commission Can Stop 7 Officers' Pay

The division of power between Police Commissioner Hultman and the Civil Service Commission over the discipline of policemen will be tested in a "friendly suit" before the State Supreme Court next Tuesday.

The difficulty between the police commissioner and Civil Service Commissioner Paul E. Tierney arose over suspension and reinstatement of seven policemen without sanction of the Civil Service Commission.

Informed today of the intention of Commissioner Tierney to order the city treasurer to stop the pay of the seven officers, now all returned to duty, Commissioner Hultman, through Leo Schwartz, his legal adviser, sought and obtained a temporary injunction restraining Tierney from his contemplated action.

It was Tierney's contention the commission should have reviewed the cases of the suspended officers before they were returned to duty. He announced he would order their pay withheld until his right to act in suspensions was recognized.

"The suit is quite friendly," Commissioner Hultman said today. "But we feel that it is time to define my powers in conducting the affairs of the police department.

"Before filing the petition Mr. Schwartz consulted both Gov. Ely and Commissioner Tierney, and they both agreed with our viewpoint."

This is the first suit ever filed against the Civil Service Commission in a matter of this kind.

The hearing Tuesday will consider the issuance of a permanent injunction to sustain the temporary writ granted today.

STIMSON TALKS BY RADIO TO JAPAN

Stresses Amity Between Two Countries as He Felicitates Emperor on His Birthday

Washington, April 29—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson talked over a short wave radio circuit to Japan today. The occasion was the birthday of the Emperor, a national holiday.

Secretary Stimson was introduced to the Japanese radio audience by Ambassador Debuchi of Japan with the remark that "he has a clear understanding of Japan's position in the Far East, an understanding born of his personal observation, and that he has sincerely at heart the advancement of friendly relations between our two nations."

Amabassador Debuchi offered "our ardent prayer for many and many a return of this happy day, and for the increasing prosperity and progress of Japan in the era of Showa."

LASTING FRIENDSHIP

"It is a great satisfaction to me, on this day of rejoicing in Japan, to speak a few words to the Japanese people, our friendly neighbors across the Pacific Ocean," Stimson said.

"We worked cordially together last year in London to bring about a limitation of naval armament and our success there proves our confidence in each other. Both the United States and Japan made sacrifices in their naval programs, but each gained, I am convinced, a fleet which guarantees national security.

"We can say in all sincerity and gratitude that no clouds lie along the broad expanse of the Pacific to hide one of our countries from the other. The ocean no longer separates, but rather unites Japan and the United States.

EXTENDS GREETINGS.

"We in America have recently had an opportunity to show our feeling toward Japan in welcoming Their Imperial Highnesses Prince and Princess Takamatsu. Such visits do much to augment international friendship because as we know each other better we shall more fully appreciate each other's good qualities.

"And now, on behalf of the President and people of the United States, it is my honor and pleasure to extend birthday greetings to His Majesty the Emperor, to wish him a long, happy and successful life in the fulfillment of his great task in raising the nation.

ACTRESS PLAYS IN REAL DRAMA

New York, April 29—A little drama of real life was enacted, by Lora Sonderson, actress wife of William Easterday, yesterday when she was marched with her husband and others to the bureau of securities—but marched right out again.

It started when a squad of detectives burst into the luxuriant offices of Oklahoma Imperial Oils in West 45th st., run by Easterday, former partner of Nicky Arnstein.

Lora was present and so were 73 salesmen demanding money when Asst. Atty-Gen. Paul J. McCauley led the detectives in.

All were herded downtown for the explanations, but Easterday proved his business legitimate and it was all for naught.

Speedier and Easier Decrees to Be Ground Out Soon at Rate of 100 Daily

By ELLIS H. MARTIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Reno, Nev., April 29—Speedier, quieter and easier divorces will be legalized in Nevada next week. A new law passed by the Nevada Legislature governing divorce will become effective Friday, May 1.

Through its provisions Reno expects to hold its unofficial title of the "nation's divorce capital."

A survey of attorneys today indicated that more than 350 prospective divorces will be eligible to take advantage of the new law. Their actions are expected to be filed Saturday between the hours of 9 and 12 and calendared for hearing the following week.

MEETS COMPETITION

At least two other State legislatures liberalized their divorce laws recently, enabling those unhappily mated to sever their matrimonial bonds after three months' residence.

Nevada meets this threat to her divorce supremacy by cutting the residence period to six weeks instead of three months.

In addition, the new divorce law, effective Friday, practically eliminates all publicity for those desiring "quiet divorces" and adds a new cause of action to the eight previously-existing grounds upon which divorces may be obtained.

Although he will not be eligible to file his suit for divorce when his new law becomes effective, perhaps the most notable present member of the divorce colony who will be benefitted by the new law is Jack Dempsey.

The former heavyweight champion arrived here April 11, and had the old law remained in force he would have had to wait at least three months before filing a suit to divorce Estelle Taylor. Under the new law it is expected he will file his action about the middle of May if an agreement is reached with his wife and she accepts service, his divorce may be granted 15 minutes after the action is filed.

HADLEY AID DAILY

Should all of those eligible for filing enter their suits Saturday, court calendars will be so congested, that it would be some time to return to normalcy. Washoe County, of which Reno is the capital, has but two superior judges, and while they can grind out divorces at amazing speed under the requirements of law, they may be swamped by the big rush this week.

Judge Ben J. Curler asserted that he and Judge Moran should be able to dispose of 100 divorce cases daily.

"If the cases have been properly handled," the jurist said, "each one should require about 10 minutes."

If the two judges succeed in disposing of this many cases in a day, they will have beaten the old record by far. The present record of dissolving matrimonial ties was set by Judges Bartlett and Moran when they severed 52 marital bonds in a single day.

Wilhelm Seeks to Retain His Pre-War Title

Berlin, April 29—Alfonso XIII's claims that he merely resigned his royal post in Spain for the present and is still king found an echo here in criminal charges filed by former Kaiser Wilhelm against the recorder of deeds at Reichenbech for dishonoring his royal signature on a document.

The document was signed "Wilhelm, I." the initials meaning "Imperator Rex," in the old pre-war style. Wilhelm claims that the recorder of deeds, who says Wilhelm's real title is now "Wilhelm, Prince of Prussia," placed an exclamation point and a questionmark on the margin of the document near the disputed signature.

SUSPECT NAMED IN GIRL KILLING

New York, April 29 (AP)—Police Chief Quirk of Yonkers announced today he was seeking Rudolph Duringer of Ossining, N. Y., in connection with the "ride" slaying of Virginia Brannen, 28, hostess in a "dime-dance" hall. Detectives said Durniger had been missing from home since Saturday.

A blood-stained automobile, believed to have been used in the killing, was found in the Bronx today and police said it bore license plates issued for Duringer's car. His automobiles, however, was a different make.

They said it was the same car pursued early today by detectives who engaged in a running pistol fight with two occupants. The men opened fire as the police car approached a cab stand where they had parked.

One of the occupants, police declared, bore a strong resemblance to Francis Crowley, sought for the past month as the man who wounded Detective Ferdinand Schadel.

When found today, the car was punctured by bullets and its rear seat was soaked with blood. A rifle was found in it.

Miss Brannen was found shot to death Monday in a lonely spot in Yonkers. She came here from Bangor, Me.

w are, whom we used to be and whence we came? Those are the important questions. And what wonderful mechanism enables us to keep track of ourselves and identify ourselves each morning?

The Prince of Wales, champion young salesman, after a business trip through South America, much of the trip by airplane, landed on a flying field near Windsor Castle today. His assistant salesman and brother, Prince George, was with him, and they were prepared to show their father South American orders for goods amounting to fifty million dollars a year, for several years. So says a London newspaper. There are such things as cancellations, but the Prince is a good salesman.

Mr. "Legs" Diamond, said by the police to have been engaged in beer-running, racketeering and various other enterprises, shot by gangster enemies in New York some months back, recovered with several bullets in his body. Now he has several more, in his lungs, liver and arm.

His enemies followed him with shot-guns, and still he isn't dead. The doctors say he may even recover, although it is not probable.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis thinks, and says in an editorial: "A man who ran for office in America today with a straight anti-crime record, and a convincing threat against it, would come nearer to getting votes than many another candidate."

That is sound, but to fight crime you would have to fight the bootlegging that finances it, and to fight bootlegging you would have to oppose prohibition, and that might cost more votes than it would bring.

Aged Revere Man Hit by Motorcycle

A motorcycle driven by Ruel E. Spence, 19, of Lynn, this morning struck Alphonso Candio, 71, in Yeaman st., Revere. The aged man was treated at Chelsea Memorial Hospital for a four-inch scalp wound. Spence, who was catapulted 25 feet to the pavement, was unhurt.

Leather Theft Is Foiled by Police

An attempt to steal vici kid leather valued at $2000 was frustrated by Patrolman John Shea and Leather Miss just inside ready for removal. Investigation by him and Sergt. William Murphy and Lawrence Nolan showed that six doors in the building had been jimmied. The thieves, evidently observing the policeman, escaped without being seen.

"Laws often get on the books through the efforts of an organized minority that knows the ropes," he said at that time.

Watertown Sewer Probe Is Approved

The House rules committee today voted to admit the petition of the Watertown selectmen for an investigation by a special commission relative to increasing the capacity of the metropolitan sewer in the Charles river valley so as to eliminate the overflow of sewerage into the Charles river in and near that town.

Suburban Plea for Lower Rates Heard

At a continued hearing today before the Public Utilities Commission on a petition of customers of the Surburban Gas & Electric Co. for lower rates, the commission said it would visit the company's plant before making a decision.

Mrs. Lucy A. Pearimutter, Revere attorney for the customers, argued it is unfair to the customers of the company to be listed as a separate company, when it is part of a large corporation.

R. I. LACKING IN NURSE MURDER EVIDENCE

Prosecutor Sharply Criticized for Failure on the Eve of Grand Jury Session

Fall River, April 29—Despite the grand jury hearing scheduled for Newport Friday in the Verna Russell murder case, it was learned today that Rhode Island authorities would now willingly "dump" the case into Massachusetts to save themselves from the results of their bungled investigation.

Strong criticism on all sides has led to the general feeling that Rhode Island officials have failed to make satisfactory inquiry and that Atty.-Gen. McLyman has not sufficient evidence to seek an indictment for first degree murder against Elliott Hathaway.

CHANCES MISSED

From the surrender of young Hathaway at North Attleboro until the closing phases of the probe, Rhode Island authorities have missed opportunities and have apparently been negative in their efforts, it is pointed out.

The inquiry culminated with the secret foray of Rhode Island officials into Massachusetts last week to be off samples of soil from the area on the outskirts of the Watuppa reservation.

The feeling here is that this attempted comparison of soil with that taken from the shoes of Verna Russell was an attempt by Rhode Island officials to show that jurisdiction for the crime lies in Massachusetts.

Although they refuse to comment, it has been learned that Massachusetts investigators are incensed at the manner in which Rhode Island authorities have been working on the case in the past two weeks.

Despite assurances of co-operation, it has been learned there is a definite split between the two investigations and has been for some time.

GALVIN STORY WEAK

The failure of Rhode Island officials to question Hathaway, the failure to search his home for missing slip covers and raccoon coat, the official autopsy declared unsatisfactory by Massachusetts and borne out by the exhumation of the girl's body, are pointed to as blunders.

The only evidence Atty.-Gen. McLyman has against Hathaway lies in the story of Vernon V. Galvin. It is pointed out that it would be impossible for McLyman to secure a conviction on this evidence and the feeling is that the prosecutor will accept a plea of second degree murder or even manslaughter.

SANDINO PLANS 'TERROR REIGN'

Colon, April 29 (INS)—Inauguration of a policy of "frightfulness" in Nicaragua and Honduras was ordered today, according to unofficial wireless reports received here, by Augustino Sandino, Nicaraguan bandit leader, and Gen. Ferrera, Honduran rebel leader, in their respective spheres of operation.

Both leaders, the wireless reports stated, ordered that enemy prisoners captured hereafter be decapitated and their heads mounted on poles as warnings to all who opposed them.

These reports were not confirmable in official circles, but Wireless Operator Clegborn, on the steamship Amapala, said that the heads of decapitated prisoners had been hoisted on poles in several instances during the recent bandit uprising near Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua.

Mexico City, April 29 (AP)—Dr. Pedro Joez Zepeda, foreign representative of the Nicaraguan insurgent chieftain, Augusto Sandino, said today that a year ago the Communists offered him 5000 rifles and $100,000 in cash under conditions which would have required the rebel leader to pose as a Communist.

Sandino, wishing to keep free of an obligations, refused, even though at the time he was badly in need of both funds and arms.

Zepeda said Sandino had told him he might be killed, but that he would never be captured, and that he would always keep one shot in his revolver for himself to be used in case he were about to fall into the hands of the enemy.

U. S. Forces Sent Back Aboard Ship

Washington, April 29 (AP)—Forces landed at Bluefields, Nicaragua, to protect the town from insurgents have been withdrawn to the gunboat Sacramento.

The Navy was informed of this today in a dispatch from Rear Admiral Arthur St. Clair Smith, who reported conditions in Nicaragua and Honduras as "quiet."

HOOVER GREETS SIAM RULERS

Washington, April 29—Thousands of miles from their own picturesque capital, the King of Siam and his charming queen this morning called upon President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House.

The king was the first monarch ever to enter the White House.

The remainder of the royal couple's morning was allotted to return calls by government officials and the heads of diplomatic missions at the temporary palace, a 50-room stone house on Massachusetts ave. The first of these was made by Vice-President Curtis and his hostess-sister, Mrs. Edward E. Gann.

Following them came Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes and other associate justices of the Supreme Court and their wives. Other callers were Cabinet members and their wives, Senator Moses, President pro tempore of the Senate, and Mrs. Moses; General Pershing, general of the armies; Gen. MacArthur, chief of staff; Admiral Pratt, chief of naval operations, and Mrs. Pratt, and Maj. Gen. Fuller, Marine Corps commandant, and Mrs. Fuller.

It was a trying schedule, accompanied by much handshaking and bowing, and the king's physician persuaded him to abandon trips planned to Mount Vernon and the tomb of the Unknown Soldier and a short radio address which had been set for this afternoon.

Tonight the royal couple will be guests at a state dinner at the White House.

THE END OF THE ROAD

A grave in Whitneyville Cemetery took all that was mortal of Emily Kirk while the motive and perpetrators of her brutal slaying last Saturday night still worked to solve the mystery. A large throng of townsfolk attended the funeral and grouped about the grave as the body was lowered.

SLAYING VICTIM

Emily Kirk, 20-year-old farm girl of Hamden, Ct., who was killed Saturday night, was laid to rest yesterday after services in which hundreds joined her family in mourning.

Under Guard

DRIVER DENIES 'KISS' CRASH

The motor crash which broke the arm of his former sweetheart was not the result of an attempt to combine one-armed driving and "just one kiss," Simon Zaltsman of Chelsea testified in Superior Court today.

Zaltsman's testimony was in direct contradiction of that of Mrs. Anna Holland Pass of Silver Lake ave., Newton, Zaltsman's former sweetheart, now the wife of Jack Pass, former Newton High School and Boston University athlete.

Mrs. Pass is suing Zaltsman for $5000 damages, alleging that she sustained a broken arm and knee injuries while riding with Zaltsman in October, 1928.

She testified yesterday that Zaltsman had suggested the ride in an effort to patch up a quarrel.

Zaltsman declared the ride was one of many taken while they were keeping company.

"I was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car and ran into a tree," Zaltsman said. "There had been no quarrel and I was certainly not attempting to kiss her.

"I had both hands on the wheel and Mrs. Pass' statement that I was struggling with her is ridiculous."

13TH VICTIM OF DOGS BITTEN

As Police Superintendent Michael H. Crowley was issuing a warning against dogs, the 13th victim of dog bites in a week was reported today in the West End.

The latest victim was Max Burack, 36, of Ringgold st., South End, who was attacked as he was passing Charles st. jail.

He told police a huge dog of the police breed leaped at him from a parked automobile and inflicted a painful bite on his left thigh. Burack was treated at Massachusetts General Hospital and the dog escaped. The registration of the automobile was secured and police will question the owner.

Alarmed at the number of cases reported in the past week, Superintendent Crowley instructed all division commanders to warn pedestrians and especially children against playing with strange dogs.

Circus Midget Wins $10,000 Heart Balm

Los Angeles, Cal., April 29 (INS)—John B. Fox, circus midget, 3 feet 6 inches in height, had a judgment of $10,000 today against Jessie E. Coombs, "standard size" man who was alleged to have stolen the affections of the midget's wife, Nonna Fox.

Mrs. Fox was said to be slightly more than four feet tall, and also traveled with her husband as a midget.

Pope Sees Party With Mgr. Spellman

Vatican City, April 29 (AP)—Pope Pius today granted an audience to Frank J. Nevins and Mrs. Nevins of Brooklyn, N. Y., with their two nieces, Clare Bafter and Estelle Byrne.

They were presented by Monsignor Francis J. Spellman of Boston.

FRAUD CHARGED IN BRIBE CASE

A charge that Mrs. Angelina DeFalco, court interpreter, had been defrauded of $1200 on a promise that a charge of larceny against her would be dismissed, abruptly halted her trial in Municipal Court today and the charges will be presented to the Suffolk County Grand Jury.

Mrs. DeFalco is charged by Giovanna Voce of Phillips st., West End, with larceny of $1600 that Miss Voce claimed she paid Mrs. DeFalco on the latter's story that she could buy the release of her brother from State Prison.

After two doctors testified for the defense today that they had treated Mrs. DeFalco at her home on dates when payments were alleged to have been made, Atty. Richard S. McCabe, counsel for Mrs. DeFalco, used his summing up to disclose the $1200 transaction.

"This defendant has been taken for more than $1200 by attorneys for the government in this case," McCabe said.

PAID $1370, HE SAYS

"She was called by Charles Keene to his office in Beacon st. and was told it could be settled for $1200. He told her not to be a fool and to save the publicity of a trial to pay the $1200.

"She got it and returned to him with the $1200 but he said it wouldn't be enough and she got $170 more. She gave it to Keene and he told her the complaint would be dismissed, that a Mr. Kara would not take the stand."

Atty. W. A. Fotch, who presents the case for Miss Voce and the government, objected at this point and McCabe responded by handing him a demand for the return of $1400. McCabe explained that Fotch since took the case for Mrs. Voce and that Keene paid the money to Fotch.

TRIED TO KEEP IT OUT

Judge Francis J. Good interrupted with "I had tried to keep the $1400 episode out of the case until I heard the entire case."

McCabe:

"It's my desire to have the court send the entire matter before the grand jury. This woman has been advised that, because she was a member of a political committee that the publicity would ruin her.

Judge Good: "This case is of a very serious nature. The integrity of one of our courts has been assailed and, after hearing all this, I will hold the defendant in the same bail of $2000 for the grand jury."

In a statement to the court, Fotch said he had received the money from Keene but added that no stringe had been attached.

McCabe said that his client maintains her innocence of the larceny charges and intimated that she paid the money to avert publicity the charges would bring.

Governor Puzzled; He Wants to Know

New York April 29 (AP)—Gov. Harry Woodring of Kansas has come to New York to learn, if possible, how eastern interests succeed in getting help from Congress when Middle Western interests, in his opinion do not.

He said he expected to discuss with eastern political leaders means of bringing the West on a parity with eastern industrial states.

"We are proceeding on the theory that the West has been discriminated against by eastern congressmen," Gov. Woodring said.

ATTENDED DEATH DANCE

These boys attended the dance Saturday night at which Emily Kirk laughed and sang before she went to her doom. Elwood and Carl Hoepner were questioned at the New Haven County Courthouse yesterday. Elwood revealed that he had been promised a dance by Miss Kirk just before she left the hall to change her dress. She did not return. (Staff photos.)

HOPE FADES FOR JACK DIAMOND

Albany, N. Y., April 29 (INS)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, wounded New York racketeer and gunman, has developed pleurisy in his right lung and hope for his recovery was virtually abandoned today by his physician, Dr. Thomas M. Holmes.

"I fear this is the beginning of the end," Dr. Holmes said. "Pleurisy usually develops into pneumonia. If Diamond gets pneumonia he hasn't a chance in a million to live."

Diamond has been in critical condition in Albany Hospital since he was ambushed early Monday morning at Saratoga Inn, not far from his home at Acra in the Catskill Mountains.

DANCER IS IGNORED

As Diamond's death was believed near it was revealed today that Marion Roberts, Roxbury, Mass., girl who abandoned a Broadway stage career for the gangster's fickle love, has been ignored in his will.

All of Diamond's wealth has been bequeated to his wife. It has been for his wife that Diamond has called only since shot down.

Authorities today had acted in a drastic way to curb the Diamond gang operating in the Catskill region.

Paul Quatrocchi, chief aid of the gangster chief, was indicted on a charge of assaulting a Catskill man, and locked up without bail. He is the same man a grand jury refused to indict some months ago for the same offense.

At the same time, state troopers, directed by Asst. Atty.-Gen. Merrill, raided Diamond's fortress at Acra, N. Y., and arrested three of his henchmen, George Hart, Harold Alton, and Nicholas Fusco. They were held at Catskill for questioning.

"TORTURE" CHAMBEE FOUND

Finally, there was found parked an automobile within which were two sawed off shotguns and four revolvers. This is believed to be the auto which Diamond's attempted assassins sped from Saratoga Inn after blazing at the racketeer.

In a building attached to the rear of the Diamond house, troopers found a bloodhound, badly beaten and half starved. This they believe is the place described by George Pace, the farmer, as the "torture chamber" where, he charges, he was tortured in effort to make him tell where he was making his cider deliveries.

Death Rock

LYNN BANDIT ON JOB AGAIN

Making his third appearance in the same number of weeks, Lynn's "Masked" bandit held up a chain store on the corner of Rockaway and Essex sts., Lynn, and made his escape with the contents of the cash register, amounting to $21.20.

Maurice Less of Linden rd., South Peabody, the manager, was ordered into the back room under a threat of death by the gunman, and warned to make no effort to summon help.

As the gunman was leaving the store a group of children playing on the sidewalk, who saw the latter part of the holdup, attempted to stop the bandit. He pushed his way through their midst, knocking down Nicholas Denney, 8, of Ridgeway st., and then fled to Bilabee st., where he entered an automobile and made his escape.

Council Lays Over 2 Ely Appointments

Confirmation of the appointment by Gov. Ely of Frederick A. Keyes of Boston as a member of the state board of dental examiners to succeed Ralph P. Cunningham, was put over by the council today for a week.

The council also "laid on the table" the Governor's appointment of Walter F. Taite of Pittsfield as clerk of the district court of central Berkshire.

Water Payments Called Illegal

Lawrence, April 29—That for years past this city has been illegally paying water bills for many local charitable institutions and that this practice must stop, was the information and instruction contained in a communication received by City Auditor William F. Mahoney from Edward H. Fenton, acting director of the state department of accounts. Acting Director Fenton stated that $4749.25 was expended in this manner last year.

SHIELDED ON TRIP CROSS COUNTRY

Secret Service Man Accompanied 13-Year-Old Guest of the President

Washington, April 28 (AP)—Bryan Untiedt, hero of the Colorado blizzard, arrived at the White House shortly after 9 o'clock today to spend a day and a night as guest of President and Mrs. Hoover.

The boy wore a blue suit and in his hand was a small Kodak. As he walked up the front portico of the executive mansion, he was received with all the formality accorded White House visitors.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover already had eaten as had Herbert Hoover, Jr., who arrived earlier in the morning from Asheville, where he has been recuperating from an illness for six months.

TRIP KEPT SECRET

Untiedt was escorted by a secret service man who had accompanied him from his home near Denver.

In order to avoid publicity along the way the boy's departure had been kept secret until late yesterday. No one in his home town knew he had departed. The White House announced his impending arrival late yesterday.

Secrecy was maintained to keep crowds from bothering the lad while crossing the country.

Untiedt was the hero of a school bus tragedy in which five children perished and in which more probably would have lost their lives had he not exerted heroic efforts to keep them awake and warm.

TALKS WITH PRESIDENT.

After being greeted by Mrs. Hoover, the boy was shown to the blue bedroom, which in years past has housed many distinguished guests.

A few minutes later Mrs. Stark McMillan, another White House guest and long-time friend of the Hoovers, took the lad to the White House executive offices to see the President.

Entirely unabashed by the attention being shown him, Untiedt sat in a big arm-chair and talked with the President about his trip from Colorado.

GORDON ABBOTT QUITS BOARD

Gordon Abbott today resigned as a member of the board of trustees of the Boston Public Library.

"Pressure of other business and his advanced age are given as his reasons for leaving the board.

In a communication to Mr. Abbott, in which he accepted the resignation, Mayor Curley wrote:

"It is with sincere regret and in deference to your judgment and decision I accept your resignation as a trustee of the Boston Public Library.

"During your term of service, and due in no small measure to your able direction, the facilities of the library were enlarged and the central library made more inviting an dthe service to the people improved in a most marked manner.

"The character of service which you rendered gratis could not be purchased and the payment which I extend to you in the form of thanks represents the highest award which a grateful community can bestow for services of a high order given unselfishly."

7 ARE SAVED OFF BOSTON BOAT

The crew of the Boston-owned schooner Sam and Priscilla was taken off by Coast Guards in the inlet at Atlantic City, N. J., early today, when the fishing boat went aground on a bar and started to break up.

Aboard were Capt. Michael Singagre, the owner; Capt. William Goodwin, Salvatore Lunia, Lunia, John Power, Marshall Gunther, Henry Tobin and Joseph Power, fishermen, all of Boston.

The Sam and Priscilla, out of New York, for the mackerel fishing grounds, is believed to have come to grief through misinterpreting channel signals.

When it appeared that the boat would slip off the bar at high tide and sink, the men were taken off in lifeboats.

VETS AND 'REDS' TO HOLD MAY DAY RALLIES

City Censor John Casey, with the approval of Mayor Curley, today granted to the provisional united front committee, representing a recombination of Communist organizations, a permit for the annual May Day demonstration on Charles street mall in Boston common.

The city is being flooded today with circulars calling all labor organizations to join in a demonstration of strength on May 1 as the local angle of the world-wide observance of May 1.

From the headquarters of the Needleworkers' Trades Industrial League in Harrison ave. the following statement was issued today:

"The organizations represented in the provisional united front committee, among them the Communist party, the Trades Union Unity League and the Needleworkers' Industrial Union, have invited every labor union in Greater Boston to join in a monster demonstration on May 1."

The windows of the Harrison st. headquarters were blocked today with signs in glaring letters which read:

"DOWN TOOLS MAY FIRST!"
"DEMONSTRATE! BOSTON COMMON!
"CHARLES ST. MALL! MAY FIRST!"

Simultaneously with the Communist demonstration, the ladies' auxiliaries of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Massachusetts will combine in a patriotic rally on the Common at Parkman bandstand.

Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York, chairman of the House Communist inquiry committee, will be the principal speaker of the rally. Congressman Fish will speak on "Communism" coincidentally with the speeches of Communist organizers on the Charles st. mall.

A flag-raising at 11 a. m. will open the ceremonies, followed by historic pageants staged by 300 school children.

COMMUNISTS URGE 'DOWN TOOLS' MAY DAY

Sign in windows of Communist quarters on Harrison ave., calling upon workers to lay aside their tools May 1 and join in great demonstration here for "the cause." A committee representing a group of Communist organizations has been granted permission by the city to stage a big rally on the Common Friday. Today circulars similar to the signs displayed in picture above were being distributed all over the city urging all labor organizations to participate in the May Day observance on Friday. AIRMEN SEEK A LOST SCIENTIST

Malmo, Sweden, April 29 (AP)—Albin Ahrenberg, the Swedish aviator, took off at noon today on a flight to Greenland to search for Augustin Courtlaud, the British scientist, who is lost there.

Ahrenberg set his course for Bergen, Norway, where he hoped to arrive this evening. With him were Wireless Operator Lund and Mechanic Malm. He planned to fly from Bergen to Reykjavik, Iceland, and thence to Angmagsalik, Greenland. The party intended to get away earlier but was prevented by fog.

The plane is a four-seater which had been used on the airmail between Stockholm and Copenhagen. It carries an illumination plant for landing in the dark and a set of skis for one of the expedition's disabled planes.

FIGHT IS ON FOR 'SCHOOL IN AIR'

Washington, April 29 (INS)—Education is demanding its place in the air with the result that a nation-wide campaign is under way for a bill setting aside 15 per cent of radio broadcasting facilities for the federal and state governments and educational institutions.

The drive is being fostered by the National Committee for Education by Radio, an endowed organization, which expects to align powerful forces behind its proposal before the next session of Congress.

A bill has been drawn by Sen. Fess (R.) Ohio, carrying out the demand of educators, who claim they are being crowded off the air by commercialized broadcasting.

The educators' committee points out that the number of educational broadcasting stations has decreased from 105 in 1926 to 88 in 1931.

Vets May Buy Jail

Newburyport, April 29—The old abandoned Essex County jail is being considered for a home by the Newburyport Post 150, American Legion.

Out of respect to the memory of Charles H. Beattie, president of the Beattie & McGuire Co., Inc., 29 Temple Place, Boston, our store will be closed tomorrow, April 30.

PEEL A BITE OF HEALTH!

BANANAS

BELONG IN YOUR PANTRY

BANANAS are a cheerful little eyeful anywhere. But they've earned a place in the pantry, right along with the staple foods. As a matter of fact, you can use them as a fine, fresh vegetable any day in the year—fried to a rich brown in a little butter, or baked in the skin just as you bake a potato.

Bananas have no business in the ice box. Keep them at ordinary room temperature. Cold prevents ripening, and retards the development of their fine, natural flavor.

Give plenty of ripe bananas to the children. Ripe bananas are a health food that doctors recommend for youngsters and grown-ups.

Today you want all you can get for your money. Bananas give more nourishment for the price than most foods. Remember bananas when you order your groceries. Buy bananas today!

MURDER SOLVED BY SUICIDE OF SUITOR

not going to stick around and take all the blame. That's why I am going to take my life. I'm going to make sure of it with a good swig of poison and a shotgun."

Search is still going on for the .22 calibre gun with which Emily Kirk was shot four times after she had been criminally assaulted and before a 25-pound boulder was dropped on her head, killing her.

Although more than 100 pieces of shot entered Wetmore's body when he fired the first time today, he was not disabled, and he reloaded the weapon and discharged it into his side. This discharge almost tore his body in two and caused instant death.

He had sent his mother to a neighbor's house, and she returned just in time to hear the shots and rush out and find him dead.

HINT AT LOVE FACT

"If one of us died, the other was to commit suicide," the youth told his mother last night, according to Coroner Corrigan, apparently wishing her to believe there was a "love pact."

According to Corrigan, Mrs. Wetmore also said that her son and Emily Kirk had been devoted to each other for a long time but the Kork family though thew as "beneath them."

Wetmore worked for the girl's father, their homes both being on Shepard ave., about a mile apart, and when the girl sometimes worked in the fields as during the recent planting, they were much together.

The youth not only was deeply infatuated with the girl, but was jealous when other men attempted to show attention to her, Corrigan said, after his talk with his brother.

"When she danced with other fellows, it made him furious," the mother said, according to the coroner.

"When Emily reached her 21st birthday a short time ago, he said he was going to marry her regardless of what her family thought and would insist that she marry him."

DETECTIVE CALLS

After a detective called at his home last night and told him to appear for fresh questioning today, he took his mother in his automobile over the route he said he had traversed Saturday night, to prove her that he was in New Haven and Savin Rock, far from the murder scene.

He was very much excited during the interview with the detective and the latter so reported, leading to the decision to send officers to take him to the coroner's office for the grilling.

Officials disclosed that Mrs. Wetmore staunchly defended her son during last night's visit of the detective.

While withholding the contents of the other two notes which Wetmore left, he remarked that all "seemed altogether too emphatic in his protestations of innocence."

Before taking his mother over the "alibi route" last night he said to her:

"No, I am not guilty of this and I'm going to take you over the route and show you exactly where I was Saturday night."

WETMORE RESPONSIBLE

Corrigan announced that he held Wetmore alone responsible for the crime, being convinced he had to said, in view of all the circumstances, including his jealousy of other men.

He said he held this opinion in spite of the fact that the slain girl was noted for her strength, making it seem at first that two or three men were involved in the murder.

Wetmore was a cousin of Clement Wetmore, who is the husband of Emily's sister. He was unmarried and lived on Shepard ave. with his parents about a mile from the Kirk home.

Wetmore had been questioned early Monday by Coroner Corrigan and had been sent home with the belief that he was eliminated, but it was revealed today that he had been watched ever since by Detective George Nicolari.

It is believed that the youth discovered he was under surveillance and that it heightened his nervousness, which was already apparent at the time of the first questioning.

At that time he told the coroner he was in New Haven and Savin Rock at the time of the murder, and upon leaving the office said to newspapermen:

"I hope they don't think I killed her."

Various details of his statements to newspapermen were somewhat different from those given Corrigan and when these were brought to the latter's attention he decided on a second questioning.

OTHER DEFENDED BOY.

Nicolari went to the Wetmore home last night and told him to be at the coroner's office this afternoon.

"I'll go, if I can find the way," said Wetmore.

"What do you mean by that?" asked the detective.

"Oh, I don't know," retorted the suspect, and this caused Nicolari to report that he thought Wetmore was not right mentally.

The youth's mother then said to Nicolari:

"Why do you people persecute my son? He's a good boy, let him alone."

It was further revealed that at the time the body of the slain girl was found—pierced with four bullets and the head crushed by a 25-pound boulder—Wetmore was at home fast asleep. That was shortly after daybreak Sunday morning.

The detective also reported in his chiefs that the suspect was "highly nervous" and "apparently under great mental stress."

His mother saw him leave the house this morning, as the time approached for his scheduled questioning, but did not notice he went to the barn and got his shotgun. Where he obtained the poison is not yet known.

POLICE NOTIFIED

After finding her son dead, she hastily notified her husband, who promptly telephoned the police. The coroner, police and others raced to the scene.

Wetmore had denied at his first questioning that he had ever been attracted to Emily or had sought to make a "date" with her. He said he had not seen her on the day of the crime, having gone to New Haven to buy some things, after which he took a trolley car to Savin Rock.

According to his parents, he was sound asleep when the mother went to call him the next morning.

SUSPECTS RELEASED

Two youthful suspects, one living in West Haven and the other on the outskirts of New Haven, were taken into custody early this morning, but were released after Wetmore's suicide.

"Everything taken together, indicates that he killed the girl," said Coroner Corrigan.

"He was to have been questioned a second time at my office this morning, and he was terribly nervous and unstrung about it. He was one of those under suspicion from the start."

The body was taken in charge by Medical Examiner Dr. George H. Joslin and the note was kept by Corrigan.

Wetmore's suicide, coming three days after the discovery of the murder, caused another sensation in this suburb, and little business was being transacted while everybody talked about it.

Only yesterday men had talked of lynching the slayer if he could be found. The Kirk family is one of the oldest in the town, and its members are related by marriage to most of the influential citizens, this giving impetus to the investigation from the start.

BROTHER NEAR WHEN GIRL WAS SLAIN

Emily Kirk vanished from a dance which was taking place Saturday evening in the fire headquarters, where her brother Dwight and Clement Wetmore both served as captains. She acted as an assistant to them in arranging the dances, which were frequent affairs and among the chief social attractions of the community.

After serving at a chicken supper, preceding the dance, she left the hall to go to her father's automobile to change into a party dress soon after the dancing started.

There had been drinking among a crowd of young fellows, some of whom did not enter the hall but stayed about the doors, offering liquor to girls who went near them.

MOTHER GETS UNEASY

It was reported that Emily had incurred the enmity of some of them by refusing to dance with them or drink with them and calling them "drunken loafers," and accordingly several of them, both local youths and young men from out of town, were under suspicion from the time the murder was discovered.

She had stepped out of the hall about 8:53 that night and it was near midnight when her mother, becoming increasingly alarmed at her absence, asked help in searching for her.

The search continued all night and it was not until 6:20 a. m. Sunday, in a driving rain, that the searchers found her body in a ravine about a quarter of a mile from the fire station.

HAD BEEN ATTACKED

A bullet had pierced one hand, another had gone through her arm, and two more had clipped off parts of her right ear and grazed her scalp. She had also been hit with a bottle, but death was caused by dropping a big rock on her.

One finger was also broken and her hands were lacerated, showing that she had struggled to the end, even as the boulder descended on her.

She had been criminally attacked and there were indications that this occurred at some other place and that she had been conveyed in an automobile to near where the body was found and dragged to the spot where the death blow was dealt her.

Buckingham Named New Haven Counsel

Norman S. Buckingham of Milford, Ct., was elected general counsel of the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad today at a meeting of the board of directors in New York city. He fills the vacancy caused by the recent death of Benjamin I Speck.

Mr. Buckingham began his railroad career as a clerk in the law department of the New Haven road in 1898. While a clerk he studied law and was admitted to the bar in Connecticut in 1912. For the past six years he served as assistant general counsel.

TAKE THAT!

One of our Bostonians—a lady on towards her middle years who will freely admit that she is not beautiful—is gleefully telling this o' 'n about herself.

She had been visting in New York and was returning home on the midnight train. The porter showed her to her lower berth and the lady settled down for the night. After efforts to go to sleep were checkmated by loud snoring which seemed to be coming from the berth above her.

The lady stood it as long as she could and then, taking her umbrella, she rapped on the berth to awaken the snorer. The rapping was in vain, so, after waiting a few minutes, the lady again took her umbrella and rapped on the upper berth. There was a rumbling from above and a man's head was suddenly thrust between the curtains into the lady's berth.

"It's no use, lady," he said. "I saw you when you came in!"

SQUELCH!

It happened at one of the night spots a week or so go. Blackstone, the magician, was on the floor doing some of his famous card tricks. He approached a ringside table and asked one of the men to select a card, remember it, and put it back in the deck. The man did. Then Blackstone went to a woman on the other side of the room and had her do the same thing. Returning to the center of the floor Blackstone said he would deal the cards until someone cried "stop" and that the last card he dealt would be the card selected by both the man and the woman. He did so and then, turning to the man, he asked:

"What was the card you selected?"

"The seven of hearts," chirped the Wise One.

"I'm afraid you have a very poor memory, sir," retorted Blackstone and, turning to the lady he asked, "What card did you select?"

"The ace of clubs," she replied.

"Right," said Blackstone, and he turned up the ace of clubs. Then he turned back to the man.

"Now," he said, "I'll tell you why I think you have a poor memory. There are 52 cards in this deck and EVERY ONE of them is the ace of clubs!"

PORTER CLUBS 4 ON TRAIN

Utica, N. Y., April 29 (AP)—Rebuked by a sleeping car conductor for entering the berth of a woman passenger on a New York Central train, a negro porter today attacked trainmen and passengers with a club and an axe, injuring four, before surrendering to State troopers at Thenandara, 60 miles from here.

The porter was J. E. Smith of New York. Authorities said he apparently had been drinking.

English was severely cut on the head and shoulders.

The train was en route from Utica to Montreal. Smith, resisting apprehension, backed through the train and reached the private car of C. D. Broadhead, superintendent of the Adirondack division, before Thenandara was reached. He held his pursuers at bay with the axe taken from an emergency closet, until troopers with gas bombs boarded the train.

Colors Play Big Part in World of Business

By ANN ARDEN

WITH HALF the smart world dabbling in business affairs, fashions for the office have become far more flexible and interesting than formerly. It used to be that a dark, tailored costume was the only suitable garb for the girl who spent her daytime hours at a desk. Today, however, the average business woman has her irons in many fires—she dashes about making interesting contacts and she dresses colorfully but conservatively for the part.

BUDGETS are always being advocated for the business woman, and many cleverly dress within a small sum. Whether or not you limit yourself, you will find smart clothes much more within reach this year than they have been for some time. And they are more carefully designed for the practical uses to which they must be put—less frill and fuss- and far more simplicity that spells adroit design.

THE PRINTED frock is a boon for early spring and summer. Those little prints that place bright colors on a dark ground are charming for the office, especially in suit or jacket-frock modes. Brown with white, blue with white or a color, greens and of course, black used with its many variations of color accent are perfect.

YOU CAN make many stunning costumes by using one coat as basis. Take one of the new fur-furred woolen coats—perhaps in a brown or a blue—you can have printed frocks and frocks in bright, solid tones that will vary its personality infinitely. It is tailored, yet by a scarf or a feminine looking blouse, it can appear quite un-business-like!

THE COSTUME pictured would be a wise choice for the business girl, it is sufficiently conservative for the office, and smartly festive for a luncheon or tea date, or to wear en route to the week-end visit. The frock is two-piece, coin spotted in white on brown silk. The skirt is pleated, and the overblouse has wide rever collar, and short sleeves tying in perky bows.

THE SMART coat of brown chongella is semi-fitted, has bell sleeves, and adjustable scarf collar. A belt of brown patent, fastened with bow, marks the waistline. The Reboux sailor is in brown rough straw, banded with ribbon, brown and white. White washable gloves are worn; the bag is brown and white leather, and the pumps matching brown.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

MISS WHITE MISS RUST MISS SARGEANT
MISS HARRIET WHITE, Miss Katherine Rust and Miss Jeanne Lee Sargeant are three of the principals in the Junior League play, "The Prince's Secret," to be given at the Elizabeth Peabody Playhouse next Saturday.

Grace D. Livermore to Become Bride of Philemon B. Coulter

MRS. LIVERMORE WELLS of West Cedar st. is announcing the engagement of her niece, Miss Grace D. Livermore, to Philemon B. Coulter of Baltimore, Md., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Coulter. Miss Livermore is the daughter of the late Mr. Harris Livermore and a sister to Miss Lorna Livermore, one of the debutantes of this season, and Mrs. F. Murray Forbes who was Elizabeth Livermore. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Frederic J. Stimson of Two Rivers in Dedham. No date has been set for the wedding.

ANOTHER INTERESTING engagement is that of Miss Dorothy Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Wells Hall of 356 Marlborough st., to Mr. Horace Partridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tuttle Partridge of Brookline. Miss Hall is a member of the Junior League and was presented last year. Mr. Partridge attended Noble & Greenough School and graduated from Brown University in 1928.

MR. AND MRS. HUGH BANCROFT of Cohasset are on their way to California for a brief vacation. The Bancrofts are seasoned travelers and seldom stay more than a few weeks in one place. Of course, they will return for the Cohasset horse show on their estate, which is one of the social events of the South Shore.

MRS. ARTHUR E. GRANNIS, chairman of the Brookline branch of the National Civic Federation, is in charge of the annual spring meeting and tea to be held on Tuesday, May 12, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Sydney Dreyfus at 6 Hawes st., Brookline. The Chestnut Hill branch, of which Mrs. George Bramwell Baker is chairman, holds its meeting on Friday, May 8, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Richard Harte, 32 Suffolk rd., Chestnut Hill. HIGH PAY BEST PROSPERITY AID, SAYS LAMONT

Atlantic City, N. J., April 29 (AP)—The most prosperous periods of the nation's industrial history, said Robert P. Lamont, secretary of commerce, at the opening session today of the United States Chamber of Commerce, have been those "coincident with high wages and shorter hours."

"If millions of workers are out of employment for a year through loss of wages, their buying power is cut by billions of dollars," the secretary said.

"If the income of the remaining millions who are still employed is cut 10 per cent through shorter hours and part-time work, the loss amounts to several more billions. Add to this great loss in buying power the retrenchment due to the fears and uncertainties of such a period, and the total loss of purchasing power becomes a staggering amount."

A governmental program contemplating expenditures of as high as a billion dollars a year would be hopeful, he said, but "could not materially affect the situation."

Mr. Lamont's address followed President William Butterworth's keynote speech.

Mr. Lamont said he had seen no way whereby the federal government could have helped the situation more than it has; that already there are some indications the present situation is being corrected.

He emphasized that attempts to remedy situations after collapse cannot be very effective, that "industry must itself largely do the job of prevention."

this morning as soon as he reached his office.

DEMANDS FACTS

"I want the facts on this matter as soon as possible," the Governor's note said.

While Gov. Ely would make no statement until after he receives the Warner report on Guy, a peculiar situation developed on the bank commissioner's status.

Guy, it was pointed out, is a holdover in office since April 8, having filled the unexpired term of Roy A. Hovey, who resigned.

His removal would be automatic by appointment of a bank commissioner by Gov. Ely.

CHAPIN MENTIONED.

Rumor was rife that Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., of Springfield, former New England intercollegiate and pole-vaulting champion, has been under consideration for the post, but Gov. Ely would not discuss the probabilities today in view of the Guy investigation.

Guy stood on his statement that he welcomed the investigation, but said he would not resign under fire.

"How foolish," he said when he was asked if he contemplated resignation.

Meanwhile, Paul J. Cotter and George W. Mastaglio, Jr., law school graduates who lived in the Pickney st. apartment house of the missing Vaughan, were held as material witnesses today by Judge John M. Gibbs in Middlesex court.

A warrant charging larceny of $20,000 against the missing banker is also on file in Suffolk County. It names three private banks, while the Middlesex action names two.

STILL MISSING.

Investigators of both counties assigned to apprehend the missing receiver so far have met with little success.

Whether Vaughan is apprehended or not, the Suffolk County grand jury will be presented evidence by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley at the May sitting.

Suffolk County investigators indicated today that they would question Dr. Stuart Vaughan, brother of the missing receiver, as to his removal of papers from the Pinckney st. apartment to a downtown office.

They said an assistant bank commissioner examined the removed papers before Vaughan was officially reported missing.

Their investigation also disclosed that Vaughan held property and paid mortgages on land in the new East Boston tunnel area and new West End police station zone, paying the mortgage charges himself, they said.

Another disclosure, they said, was the alleged mailing of a letter by Vaughan to Bank Commissioner Guy from Baltimore on March 27.

Until today, no trace of the receiver was on record after he checked out of a Washington hotel March 26.

Lieut. James Daley and Inspector Cavagnaro of Dist. Atty. Foley's office were in that city today hunting the missing man.

Guy has maintained that the Supreme Court appointed Vaughan and, if any person had any suspicion regarding his activities, it was their duty to complain to the court and not the bank commissioner.

In its report the grand jury bitterly arraigned Guy and his office for laxity in seeking the arrest of Vaughan. It was charged that Guy could have moved successfully against the missing receiver six months ago. The report then declared Guy unfit to hold his present position and intimated Vaughan was a favorite of the state banking department and protected by it at the expense of defrauded bank creditors and depositors.

Mrs. Whitelaw Reid Is Dead in Paris

Paris, April 29 (AP)—Mrs. Whitelaw Reid of New York, widow of the former ambassador to Great Britain, died here today at the home of her daughter, Lady Ward.

Mrs. Reid, who arrived in France only last week, contracted a chill during her voyage across the Atlantic. She was ill when she reached Paris and had grown steadily worse.

MALDEN BALKS AT FIRE CALLS

Fire Commissioner John H. Hannan, of Malden, has ordered an investigation into the sending of both Malden pumping engines out of the city yesterday at the same time, leaving the city unprotected until Deputy Chief W. E. Miller ordered one engine to return.

The trouble happened because of the mutual aid hook-up of Malden, which has not met with great favor in some official quarters. When Everett apparatus was called to Revere in battling the Beachmont fire, Everett called on Malden to cover in.

The Malden received a direct call from Revere and sent its other engine with Deputy Chief Loren A. Keddie, in charge, to Revere. This left Malden "uncovered" in case of an alarm.

Deputy Chief Miller at once called the apparatus at Everett back and an engine company from Medford, which is outside the mutual hook-up plan, covered Everett.

Commissioner Hannan has held several conferences with officials of other cities in the mutual hook-up plan because he foresaw just such a condition.

knew why he did it, knew why he framed it in that quaint New England language and have known something of his mental reactions since he got back to private life amid the elms and mental quietude of Northampton.

He said, "I do not choose to run," by the way, because he is very particular about history and the way it will discuss and estimate him. What he had in ming was, "I believe I could win renomination and re-election, but I just do not want it." He was careful to select the word "choose," signifying his own decision, lest some errant historians in future years might suggest that he was forced out of the picture contrary to his own wishes.

He is today leading a busy life. The attractive glamours and excitements of being President have been erased. His mail is voluminous. People everywhere deluge him with requests for advice. His writings are estimated to net him about $200,000 a year. The quiet life of Northampton does not afford him the opportunity of competing his brain with the best minds in the world, as when he was President, but there is not a sufficient inducement to attract him to the political arena again.

He trips over to New York periodically for the board meetings of the insurance company, where his advice even on technical financial problems is highly prized. If he were offered a position involving the trusteeship of large funds, say the presidency of an insurance company, rather than the executive leadership of an industry whose trade practises might involve it in legislation or frequent clashes with official Washington, he would accept it in a minute.

DIFFERS WITH HOOVER

Mr. Coolidge made his record at Washington. He practiced national economy in the conviction that general prosperity would result and the people in humble circumstances would derive their fair share of it with resultant happiness and elevation of themselves and their families. He believes he went as far as he could in that philosophy. He wants that record to stand, without the temptation of defeat which a future election and a future administration could bring to it.

It would be futile to assume that he agrees with everything Mr. Hoover does, although Mr. Hoover, as an election pledge, agreed to abide by his policies. Mr. Hoover made his differences with Coolidge pretentious in purely personal ways, by getting rid of the presidential yacht Mayflower and by getting the White House horses out of the White House stables to Fort Myers as manifestations of economy. "Perhaps they will eat less hay out there," was the former President's only comment.

He declines to criticise Hoover, publicly or privately. His favorite response to comparisons between Hoover's record and his own is, "Different men do things in a different way." He believes Hoover will be renominated. Any President desiring to succeed himself has the eminence of his position and control of the powerful political machine, which includes the United States attorneys, commissioners and postmasters he has appointed throughout the country.

Tobacco Fire Takes 4,000,000-Pound Puff

Winston-Salem, N. C., April 29 (Ap)—Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the huge warehouse of the Winston-Salem Leaf & Storage Tobacco Company, approximately 4,000,000 pounds of tobacco. The damage was estimated in excess of $400,000.

LONG HUNT FOR RABIES VICTIM

Williamstown, N. C., April 29 (AP)An unsuspecting woman who faced possible death from the rabies today received a warning from a minister who had sought for three days to learn her name.

She was Mrs. Gilbert Smith of Castle-on-Hudson, N. Y., a saleswoman for religious books and magazines. Two weeks ago Mrs Smith was bitten by a dog in Roper, N. C. She was given first aid and went on her way.

The Rev. A. H. Marshall of Williamstown learned the dog later developed rabies and began efforts to warn the woman of her danger.

POLITICIANS FILL BENCH AT HAGUE

Posts Prize for League's Supporters and Expert Diplomats

This is the third in a series of four articles on the League Court, now in session at The Hague. The first two described the court's close affiliation with the League of Nations and sketched the important justices. Today's tells why the League selects the justices primarily for political reasons.

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

The Hague, April 29—The League Court is essentially political-minded. The League of Nations ladies out the jobs not so much on the basis of judicial qualifications as on political considerations.

Being primarily a European institution, the League has seen to it that two-thirds of the judges are European.

POLITICIANS ON BENCH

Judicial training and experience apparently mattered little to the League in picking its judges. Of the 15 regular judges not one can point to a career of service on the bench. They are mostly politicians and diplomats.

Nine come either from foreign offices or from the diplomatic service. The other six are roughly classed as professors.

The roster of the court reads like a list of League delegates. At the top are J. Gustave Guerrero of Salvador, a former president of the League assembly, and Minoitcro Adatei of Japan, president of the court, formerly Japanese representative on the council. Both were diplomats before they turned into judges.

ADVISES LEAGUE

Sir Cecil Hurst, Great Britain; Henri Fromageot, France; Willem Jan Mari Van Eysinga, Holland; and Francisco Urrutia, Colombia, were on the League's committee which produced the Root-Hurst formula to replace the U. S. Senate's reservations to the protocol of American adherence to the court. The scheme concededly takes away the right, as demanded by the Senate to protect the United States, whereby the United States could block advisory opinions that imperilled its interests.

Hurst and Fromageot at the time were legal advisers in their foreign offices. Such is their judicial training.

The court is called upon both to render decisions in direct disputes between governments and to perform legal services for the League through the medium of advisory opinions. The League apparently knew what service it wanted when it loaded the court with politicians and diplomats.

Mrs. John B. Gordon Dead

Augusta, Ga., April 29 (AP)—Another link between the old South and modern times was broken today by the death of Mrs. John B. Gordon, 93-year-old widow of the distinguished Confederate general and former governor and senator of Georgia.

MOTHER LEAPS TO DEATH

Ashland, N. H., April 29—Mrs. Daisy Bruce, 55, wife of Robert Bruce of Hill, died in Plymouth Hospital from injuries suffered when she leaped from her husband's automobile between New Hampton and this town. Her neck was broken.

Her death has become the subject of disputed jurisdiction between Belknap County and Grafton County medical referees.

Mrs. Bruce, for no reason her husband could give, suddenly flung herself from his machine, as they were travelling from their home to visit his mother, Mrs. Charles Clough, in Ashland.

Dr. J. E. Middleton was notified here, and the woman was rushed to Plymouth Hospital, where she died 15 minutes after arrival.

Mrs. Bruce was the mother of eight children. Her son, Robert Bruce, Jr., was a former star basketball player at the University of New Hampshire. Police indicated that no further action would be taken.

Bloodless Revolt Quelled in Brazil

Rio de Janeiro, April 29 (AP)—Disturbances in Sao Paulo, coffee capital of the world, yesterday were said by the Government today to have been "checked without bloodshed."

Disquieting rumors of trouble in the southern Brazilian city were met by an official statement of Dr. Afranio de Mello Franco, which said:

"Administrative reforms caused a movement of indiscipline among police quartered at the headquarters in Sao Paulo. The movement, which was not political in character, was promptly checked without bloodshed."

Rogers Finds Way to Halt Legislature

Columbia, S. C., April 29 (AP)—Will Rogers, cowboy humorist, has suggested an earthquake to close South Carolina's 1931 legislature, which has been in session 106 days with the end not yet in sight.

"This is South Carolina," the humorist said on a visit to Spartanburg, "the state that can't get rid of its Legislature. Nicaragua had an earthquake and got rid of the House and Senate. Why not try one here and see how it will work?"

New Diocese Formed

Washington, April 29 (AP)—A new Catholic diocese embracing the State of Nevada has been established. The Rev. Thomas K. Gorman has been named bishop.

SOVIET OUT FOR COTTON TRADE

Manchester, Eng., April 29 (AP)—How seriously Russian cotton will continue to compete with American cotton on the English market seems to depend upon how badly the Russians need the money.

English spinners prefer American cotton, because of its superior quality and because their machines have been designed to handle it. With all things equal American cotton will be bought first. But price has become an important consideration. This spring Russian Turkestan has been competing with middling to good middling American varieties, and has sold about half a cent under American varieties.

Between Aug. 1 and March 9 of this year, 151,000 bales of Russian cotton were imported. In the same period of the previous year only 7000 bales came in.

Dr. William A. Dunn Breaks Hip in Fall

Dr. William A. Dunn, 70, veteran Boston police physician slipped and fell as he was leaving his home at 28 Somerset st., West End, yesterday. At Haymarket Relief Hospital it was found he received a fractured hip.

THREE HUNTED IN KIDNAP PLOT

St. Louis, April 29 (AP)—Despite denials from the victim, members of his family and close friends, police today were working on a theory that a substantial ransom was paid for the release yesterday of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, Jr., prominent physician.

Three gangsters, all former members of the notorious "Cuckoo Gang" here, were being sought in the case.

Police believed the gangsters, who disappeared from their customary haunts at about the time of the kidnaping, have definite knowledge of the abduction.

Dr. Kelley's description of one of his abductors as "well educated, probably a university graduate," started police in pursuit of the gangster trio. Investigators counted on little aid from Dr. Kelley.

Judge Burns Likely for Garrett Trial

Chief Justice Walter Perley Hall of the superior court has assigned Judge William A. Burns to preside in the first session of the superior criminal court during May. The trial of Oliver B. Garrett, his wife and Lillian V. Hatch probably will take place before Judge Burns.

Unsuspected Forms of Life Swarming in Water Are Revealed by Being Enlarged a Million Times.

UP to now only a privileged few ever beheld the almost invisible creatures and plants that live in water. But a powerful microscope is no longer necessary to view a tiny aquatic wonderland with its grotesque animals and picturesque plants.

This microscopic phenomenon has been made visible to the naked eye by a group of patient scientists and artists of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It took them seven years to complete their work. And you, in a few minutes, can learn what these geniuses ascertained only after years of persistent labor and study.

Find out what they learned about the lowest forms of life; the biggest barely as large as a small speck of dust. See their magnified reproduction of an enchanted forest within half an inch of pond water. Read the fascinating facts they gathered while engaged in this painstaking research. You will find them, all explained in understandable language, in The American Weekly next Sunday. Don't miss this absorbing article!

$1,000,000 N. E. HOTEL SHOW IS OPENED

The "Million Dollar New England Hotel Exposition," sponsored by New England hotel men, was officially opened today in the main ballroom of the Copley-Plaza Hotel.

Hundreds of New England hotel men who have interests throughout the country are in attendance.

One of the unusual features is the culinary art salon, sponsored by the Epicurean Club of Boston. Each afternoon between 1:30 and 5 o'clock, Boston's leading chefs will demonstrate and prepare special dishes on a battery of ranges in the Swiss Room.

Frank A. McKeowne, president of the Hotel Statler Company, will be host tonight at the supper dance at 10 o'clock in the main dining room of the Hotel Statler.

Wives of the hotel owners and managers will be seen as waitresses, hostesses and cashier in the Sheraton Room of the Copley-Plaza during the exposition. The net proceeds of daily luncheons go to the relief association funds.

Mrs. Arthur L. Race is president of the association assisted by the following committees:

HOSTESSES: Mrs. Arthur L. Race, Mrs. Carlos St. Brown, Wednesday; Mrs. William W. Davis, Thursday; Mrs. Samuel Blankenburg, Friday.

ESSEX CARS FOR P. O. DELIVERY

One of the largest contracts for automotive transportation placed by the government since the war has been awarded the Hudson Motor Car Company, which has received an order for 1030 Essex Super Six units. The cars are to be used by the postal department on mail delivery work in 25 cities for light and heavy duty and long and short hauls, each unit having passed the more rigid tests established as part of the government economy drive.

HUPMOBILE'S LATEST OFFERING

In the six cylinder field, Hupmobile offers the new Century Six Series with 70 horsepower engine, free wheeling transmission and many other improvements. This is the five passenger sedan, equipped with natural wood wheels.

PURDUE TESTS FREE WHEELING

Detroit, April 29—The strong claims of free wheeling benefits made by the Hupmobile factory were recently confirmed by the thorough and graphic tests conducted by seniors in the engineering school of Purdue University. These tests were made during Hupmobile's White Ghost tour—that car that has already covered nearly 8500 miles of the Middle-west, Southwest and South in demonstrating free wheeling.

H. M. Jacklin, associate professor of automotive engineering, tells of the university's tests in a letter to R. S. Cole, vice-president in charge of sales of the Hupp Motor Car Corp. In part, he wrote:

"I am convinced that free wheeling is a step forward toward greater safety and is certainly a step forward toward greater economy in the operation of an automobile.

"On the afternoon of the 14th, certain of our senior students made a few tests as to the possible benefits of free wheeling. They found that in stopping from a speed of 60 miles an hour, about 60 per cent of the distance was required in free wheeling as with the engine engaged."

100 Dead, 200 Hurt in Russian Quake

Moscow, April 29 (INS)—At least 100 persons are dead and 200 injured as the result of a severe earthquake which levelled 12 towns in the Soviet republic of Nakhitchevan on the northern border of Persia west of the Caspian Sea.

STEWART TRUCK BUSINESS GAINS

F. U. Wells, manager of the Stewart Motor Truck Co. of New England, reports a 40 per cent increase in sales for the first three months of 1931, over the corresponding period in 1930.

In speaking about conditions as he finds them in New England, Wells was decidedly optimistic, saying among other things that the gradual opening of the textile and other mills has brought about an increased sale of trucks. He said:

"Never have I felt more optimistic about the truck business. We have had excellent activity during the past three months placing orders for Stewart trucks in all of the New England states, and have recently closed a contract with the Maine state highway commission for three Stewart combination dump and tarvia trucks to be used in road construction work at Augusta, which is now under way."

Volcano Blamed for Dust Storm at Sea

San Francisco, April 29—(UB)—Examination of the dust which fell on the liner Maui while 550 miles off shore, showed indications of volcanic origin, Prof. W. C. Blasdale of the University of California reported.

CHEVROLET HAS BIG MONTH

Announcement that sales of Chevrolet sixes in the United States were 48 per cent better in March than February, according to figures made public by H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet, provides one of the brightest spots on the local industrial horizon in the past 18 months.

Domestic sales totaled 73,628 passenger and commercial cars, as against 49,690 in the previous month, Klingler said. Dealers' new car stocks were reduced by 6800 units as a result of the satisfactory showing, and used car stocks also dropped more than 5000 units during March, according to Klingler.

Each 10-day period of the month revealed extensive gains over the previous period. For the first 10 days of March sales were 17,224 units, for the second like period 24,910 cars and trucks and for the last 10 days 31,494 units.

NEW CHANGES IN WILLYS ENGINE

Proving itself one of the most efficient and powerful engines ever developed in the field of low-priced sixes during the past 12 months, the Willys Six engine is retained in the 1931 model. However, some changes have been made which betters its outstanding performance of 1930 when it won the annual Pikes Peak stock car race, America's greatest hill climb classic, says Herbert Fitch, N. E. district manager, Willys-Overland, Inc.

Chief among the improvements in the 1931 Willys Six engine is the change that has been made in the shape of the combustion head. This change takes the form of an increase in the space between the top of the piston and the under side of the head. This does away with interference between piston and head, due to carbon accumulation on those members.

Even this change was not adopted until it had undergone months of strenuous road tests.

ADS BOOST LEE TIRE SALES

"In going over our figures since the inception of the current newspaper campaign advertising the sale of Lee of Conshohocken tires at one and the same low net cash price in every dealer's store, I find that we are getting most encouraging results," says Guy D. Niles, Boston branch district manager for the Lee Tire & Rubber Co. "In a checkup of our sales since the appearance of the first advertisement, our dealers report an actual doubling of their tire and tube sales, which speaks volumes for newspaper advertising as a method of increasing business.

"Tire manufacturers have to make money to stay in business, says Mr. Niles, "but our industry is different than many because it is split into two factions. One of these factions believes that the biggest profits can be made by a tremendous production schedule, while the second does not strive to see how many tires it can make but rather depends upon its profits by not making the most tires but the best."

FIRESTONE MEN MEET TODAY IN BOSTON

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. has invited its dealers in the Metropolitan Boston area to attend a Firestone meeting at the Kenmore Hotel this afternoon.

A. T. McGrath, Firestone district manager, announces that several factory officials will speak at the meeting, and a summer merchandising program will be outlined. The Firestone company is devoting attention on the situation of their dealers in the latest important factory operations, buying and assembling of raw materials, merchandising of Firestone products, store operations—all things to help Firestone dealers in meeting today's business problems.

Other meetings are scheduled to be held in pivotal New England centers, but this Boston meeting is the first.

In talking with Mr. McGrath, he expressed his confidence in the company's business for the year, stating that Firestone sales in this district were showing gratifying increase over last year, despite reductions in prices this year.

HAS SHOWN THOUSANDS OF HUDSONS

April Orders for Nash Show Gain

Orders for April delivery of new Nash cars increased 72.68 per cent during the first 15 working days in April over those on hand April 1, it was announced by C. H. Bliss, vice-president in charge of sales of The Nash Motors Co.

This steady improvement in the Nash demand, he added, has brought 8.16 per cent more orders during the first half of April than the total number of cars that were shipped from the Nash factories during all of March, which shipments in turn were greater than those made from the factories in any month since April, 1930, with the exception of October when the four new series of Nash cars were introduced.

Dodge Deliveries Show Upward Trend

Retail deliveries of passenger cars and trucks by Dodge Brothers dealers in the United States for the week ending April 4 showed an increase of 13.7 per cent as compared to the preceding week, reports A. vanDerZee, general sales manager of the Dodge corporation.

The White Ghost Story

7000-mile grind . . . at 60 miles an hour average

. . . says "Buy a Free-Wheeling Hupmobile"

CENTURY SIX SEDAN $995

CENTURY EIGHT SEDAN $1295

THREE OTHER EIGHTS FROM $1595 TO $2295

Prices are for standard equipment F. O. B. factory

THE White Ghost, a stock Hupmobile, different only in color from the cars in our showroom, proved what every Hupmobile will give you today . . . for the lowest prices in Hupmobile history. Here are the proofs, facts, figures—proved in 7000 merciless miles.

. . . TIME and again through 7000 miles the White Ghost demonstrated the savings Hupmobile Free-Wheeling brings you. When you free-wheel you ride "on momentum." From 20% to 44% fewer engine revolutions. Wear and tear and gas and oil bills all substantially reduced.

. . . IMAGINE 258 miles of curves and hills—with the clutch used only 43 times! That's what happened in the run from St. Louis to Kansas City. You use the clutch 67% less. Never touch it except to start or reverse.

. . . IN leading cities of the tour, New Orleans, Indianapolis, Milwaukee among them, safety commissioners, police chiefs, mayors . . . yes, and a Governor, too . . . rode in and drove the White Ghost and pronounced it safer. Ask us and we'll send you copies of their letters.

. . . THE Professors of Engineering at a great University put the White Ghost through a gruelling series of scientific tests and said, "A step forward toward greater safety and greater economy."

. . . 7000 miles, averaging better than 60 miles-an-hour, meeting every type of road and weather. Free-Wheeling into curves at 60 and accelerating out at 70 . . . when other cars slowed down to 30.

. . . REPEATEDLY, when icy, slippery roads appeared, the brakes were jammed on and the White Ghost came to a stop straight as a railroad train.

Just a few high lights of 7000 miles. But you can prove these facts for yourself in 7 miles. Phone or call for a demonstration . . . in the White Ghost's twin, awaiting you in our showroom.

LIFER DEMANDS FREEDOM FOR JUDGE'S ERROR

Hammond, Ind., April 29 (AP)—The failure of a judge, now dead, to make a formal entry of the judgment in a murder case has created an unprecedented situation in the Lake County Criminal Court.

Attorneys for Thomas Fiucrando of East Chicago argued today that their client, who has already spent 13 years in prison for second degree murder, should be eligible for parole.

Prosecution attorneys argued that the absence of a formal entry of his life sentence was a mere oversight and that Fiucrando should remain in the penitentiary.

Fiucrando was tried in the superior court at Hammond before the late Judge Walter Hardy, charged with slaying his roommate in a duel February 19, 1918. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty of second-degree murder. The verdict carried a life sentence, but Judge Hardy, who has since died, failed to enter it in the records.

LOUIS COLABUSSO JOHN COLABUSSO

The registration number of the automobile he drove is expected to trap the man who leaped from his car last night in Sumner st., East Boston, and severely beat Louis and John Colarusso, apparently without cause.

MISS SPOCK TO WED DOMINICK

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, April 29 (US)—In the last six months out-of-town belles have descended upon Manhattan Isle and have walked off with the foremost "eligibles" listed in the Park and Fifth Ave. "matrimonial mines."

During the next eight weeks more than 15 sons of prominent New York families, all bearing names that are synonymous with a Grade A social rating, will confer their cognomens on young women hailing from distant points.

Only today I learned that Elizabeth R. Spock, daughter of the late Benjamin I. Spock and Mrs. Spock, of New Haven, will become Mrs. William Gayer Dominick on the afternoon of May 15.

Originally, "Betty" and Gayer had planned a large and splashy wedding. But, due to the death, last week, of the bride-to-be's father, the original plans have been curtailed and only a small group of guests will be present at the Spock home, 67 Edgehill rd., New Haven, when the Rev. Charles G. Scoville, rector of Trinity Church, New Haven, pronounces "Betty" and Gayer, "man and wife."

Miss Spock's only attendant will be her sister, Anne, and Gayer's brother, "Ted" Dominick, who is scheduled to be graduated from Yale in June, will attend as best man.

"Betty" was graduated from Vassar in 1929 and her future life helpmate, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Dominick of this city and Noailles, Greenwich, Conn., received his degree at Yale six years ago.

Siamese Prince Toils as 'Shavetail'

Denver, April 29 (AP)—Swasti Pradish, a Siamese prince and the brother of the Queen of Siam, toiled as a second lieutenant and an unofficial military observer at Fort Logan today. He was graduated last June from West Point and has been assigned to the Second United States Engineers here.

The prince has applied for leave during the summer months and plans to visit river and harbor works on the Pacific Coast and intends to go to Kansas City and down the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, studying flood control work.

British Princes Back Home Again

Windsor, England, April 29 (AP)—The Prince of Wales and his brother George arrived here this afternoon from Le Bourget Airport, ending an 18,000-mile tour to South America.

Their plane, City of Glasgow, dropped down in Windsor Park, near the ancient castle where King George and Queen Mary were awaiting them.

Retail Clothiers in Session Tonight

The New England Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Association will be in special meeting tonight. Harry D. Rook, of Leopold Morse Co., will preside and Richard N. Johnson, president of the Hillsboro Woolen Mills of Hillsboro, N. H., will discuss Style Trends in Summer Clothing.

The Weather

For Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight and Thursday; somewhat colder tonight; moderate to fresh northwest winds.

For New Hampshire and Vermont—Fair and somewhat colder tonight; Thursday fair.

OCEAN FORECAST

Steamers departing today for European ports will have fresh northwest winds and weather mostly overcast to the Grand Banks.

Notes and Gossip About People You Know

SPORTS NEW "PLUG" HAT

Arthur R. Driscoll, doorkeeper of the Senate, is sporting a new "plug" hat, which he keeps well shined up for special occasions, such as escorting a Senate committee to the Governor's office or to the House of Representatives.

TRACKLESS TROLLEYS

Trackless trolleys will be given a trial in Boston if Sen. Conde Brodbine of Revere has his way. He is leading the fight in the Senate to have the legislature act favorably on the recommendation of the Elevated trustees to permit a trackless trolley trial without being subjected to the motor vehicle laws. Senator Brodbine says the trackless trolleys have been a big success in Detroit, Brooklyn and St. Louis.

PLAYS A GOOD GAME

Sen. Arthur Hollis of Newton considers himself the best golfer in the upper branch of the Massachusetts Legislature, although he says he has not played for five years. Sen. Joseph Monahan of Belmont says he is willing to meet the senator from Newton any where, any time.

STEARNS VACATIONING

Commissioner of Correction A. Warren Stearns is down in Maine fishing. This is the only vacation he takes. Every year he goes to Maine at this time of the year to indulge in his favorite sport.

MRS. HAWES MENTIONED

It is rumored about City Hall that Mrs. Harriet Hawes of Greenfield st., Mattapan, wife of John T. Hawes, president of the Ward 18 Republican Club, will be a candidate for City Council from that district next fall.

BE PREPARED, HIS MOTTO

Mayor Curley, in appearing before the House ways and means committee on the bill for a strandway in East Boston, came well prepared. With him were City Auditor Roger S. Carven, Park Commissioner William P. Long, Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke, Sen. Michael J. Ward and Judge Thomas H. Blodgett, assistant legislative counsel. But the mayor was able to answer every question propounded to him without the assistance of his aides.

HE MAY BE CANDIDATE

Atty. Benjamin L. Schwalb, chairman of the committee on transportation of the Hyde Park board of trade, is another of those mentioned as possible candidates for the City Council from Ward 18. He is one of the most popular residents of that district.

GIBBONS TO RUN

John T. Gibbons, who for many years was active in politics in the West End, will be a candidate for City Council from Ward 17, Dorchester, this fall. He will oppose City Councillor Robert Gardiner Wilson, Jr., present incumbent, who will seek re-election.

SIX PAINTERS APPOINTED

Six men have been appointed painters for the Boston traffic commission at wages of $6 a day for a period of three months by Mayor Curley. They are George Reynolds of 310 Adams st., Dorchester; Rudolph Bober of 1087 Hyde Park ave., Hyde Park; Albert Glenn of 3 Rosemore rd., Jamaica Plain; George H. Tracey of 20 Cleveland st., Hyde Park; Antonia Maio of 9 Irmie rd., Allston, and Thomas F. Hennessy of 60 Myrtle st., West End.

TWO APPOINTMENTS

Oscar C. Martin of 150 Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, has been appointed chief engineer in the institutions department by Mayor Curley, and James J. Ahearn of 96 Sumner st., East Boston, to the engineering force of the same division.

LONG ISLAND APPOINTMENTS

Two men have been appointed to positions at the Long Island Hospital by Mayor Curley. Hugh O'Rorke, of 20 Leadsville st., Dorchester, joins the engineering force there, and Thomas H. Cunningham, of 401 Chelsea st., East Boston, becomes an attendant.

MISS DATOW APPOINTED

Miss Louise H. Datow of 185 Princeton st., East Boston, has been appointed a stenographer in the health department by Mayor Curley. Her appointment becomes effective on Friday.

BOYS' ATTACKER IS HUNTED

Armed with a registration number, East Boston police were seeking a motorist today who beat two small boys last night, apparently for no reason.

The boys, Louis and John Colarusso, 8 and 10 respectively, were playing in front of their home, 362 Sumner st., East Boston, when the man stepped from an automobile and struck John in the face.

Louis was met with more blows when he went to his brother's assistance, after which the autoist drove away. Neighbors gave police the number of the car.

Lineman Dying in Vermont Fire

Rutland, Vt., April 29 (AP)—Fire today destroyed the huge automobile building on the Rutland fair grounds and resulted in possibly fatal injuries to L. B. Hutchins, 40, a powercompany lineman. The loss was estimated at nearly $100,000.

Hutchins was at work repairing damage to power lines when a 2200-volt wire fell across the line on which he was working. He fell 35 feet to the ground.

Own Child Shoots Sleuth

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—Fred Wright, police detective, has escaped gangsters' bullets for five years. He's laid up for a few days. His four-year-old daughter shot him in play.

Comedian's Peek Into Wife's Love Nest Runs Into Snag

Los Angeles, April 29 (INS)—Clifford ("Ukulele Ike") Edwards, film comedian, could not have peeked through the glass door he said he did when he called unexpectedly at his wife's love nest, according to testimony offered in his suit for divorce.

Charles A. Gaylord, owner of the Santa Monica apartment at which "Ukulele Ike" testified he found his wife, Irene, with Austin J. ("Skin") Young, declared the blind over the door was always drawn and the comedian could not have seen what he said he saw.

7 DEAD IN OIL GUSHER FIRE

Gladewater, Tex., April 29 (AP)—Flaring heavenward in fiery defiance after it had blasted at least seven men to death in liquid fire and injured three others, the Sinclair No. 1 Cole well, two miles southwest of Gladewater, was unquenched today.

Taming of the wild gusher was within a few minutes of accomplishment late yesterday when friction in the lowering of a valve ignited millions of feet of gas gushing from the casing. Fire shot skyward and a terrific explosion followed, igniting the gusher and oilfilled slush pits.

Lee Brumley, foreman of a drilling crew, said he escaped death by a freak of "the bias," which hurled him 20 yeards away from the derrick and out of the path of the flaming oil.

Texas Rangers are investigating an alleged Communist plot to blow up the oil well here.

REALTOR HELD IN ARSON RING

Providence, April 29 (INS)—Dominic Romeo, 31, a Federal Hill real estate dealer, today was revealed by police as the alleged head of an "arson ring."

Romeo was one of seven persons under arrest in connection with an incendiary fire Monday night in an unoccupied Waldo st. dwelling house.

Others under arrest are Joseph Grossi, 16; his brother, John, 24; Paul Polisseno, 38; Edward J. Marzano, 16, and two others.

Three of the prisoners, police said, admitted their part in the alleged conspiracy to burn the dwelling house because of inability to meet payments on repair bills. They were said to have involved Romeo.

WAR VET'S 'BIG CRIME' A FAKE

Lockport, N. Y., April 29 (AP)—A victim of shell-shock while serving with the Canadian army during the war, Ralph H. Thurber, now in a Cleveland hospital, has had a checkered career during the last 10 years.

The publicity he received as a result of his claim that he was suffering from distomiasis, a somewhat rare disease caused by eating raw fish in the tropics, was equalled when he confessed while in a British prison that he was a participant in the Wall st. bombing of Sept. 16, 1920, in which 30 persons were killed.

Faintly of the bombing confession was established when his record showed he was in San Quentin prison, California, at the time. In addition to his term in San Quentin, Thurber served time in San Diego for forgery and in Ohio penitentiary in a similar charge. In Buffalo Thurber posed as a priest a year ago and passed a worthless check for which he served a penitentiary term.

WARNERS SIGN LIL DAGOVER, GERMAN STAR, FOR SPY FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service
(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, April 29—Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has its Greta Garbo, Fox has its Elissa Landi, Paramount has Marlene Dietrich and now Warner Brothers are to have Lil Dagover, German actress.

All I know about Miss Dagover is she is considered one of the greatest beauties that ever stepped onto a REA screen. We can all judge for ourselves for she is coming to Hollywood to play the lead in "I Spy," a story by Baroness Carla von Janssen, another German, and it is certain a woman-story.

Miss Dagover needn't worry about Louella O. Parsons her English for her director is Wilhelm Dieterle, also a German, and he will help her over the rough places.

RADIO 18 stepping right out these days in the matter of buying stories and signing up people. William Le Baron has just given Wallace Smith a check for "Dance, Gigolo, Dance," a story for Ricardo Cortez. Mr. Cortez has played many gangster roles but as far as I know, this is the first time he has played a gigolo. Well, I guess there isn't much difference between being a gangster and a gigolo. Each is out to get the money and each gets it in his own peculiar way.

SOMEONE PAGE "Ingagi" and the producers who made it, Mack Sennett is going to have a little fun at their expense. He is making "Monkey Business in Africa," the story of a Scotch and Italian producer who decide to make an unusual box office attraction. They go to Africa to make a picture. I am laughing now at the thought of what Mack can do with this comedy. He will direct it himself and there won't be anything left unfilmed, including apes and chimpanzees. The featured players in the cast other than lions, monkeys, apes are Mayfair Beebe, Frankie Eastman and Luis Alberni.

NO ONE played in barber luck than Lina Basquette after she made "The Unguarded Hour" simply couldn't get a job in the movies. Then Lina danced at the birthday party of the Thalbergs and she received a reception such as has seldom been given any local star in Hollywood. Producers heard that Miss Basquette was looking better than she had in several years and that she returned to her husband, Peverell Marley and had decided to return to the movies. Two offers immediately came her way, both of which she accepted. The first is to play the part of the Greek girl in "Women of All Nations" at Fox. The second offer comes from Ken Maynard. He wants her as leading lady in "Alias, the Bad Man." If she gets through in time with the personal appearances scheduled for her, she will accept.

ONE OF the most attractive children on or off the screen is young Leon Janney. He is such a little man and he has not yet learned to think too well of himself. Leon is being given a carrier cast for "Penrod and Sam." Dorothy Peterson, for instance, will play the mother of "Penrod," and Matt Moore, of the famous Moore Brothers will be "Penrod's" father. Johnny Arthur is also in the cast with William Beaudine directing.

IN THE old days an actor signed with one company at a time. Today actors flit from one studio to another, signing with several studios simultaneously. Just last week we printed that Harry Carey had signed a contract with Nat Levine. No less a person than Mrs. Harry Carey told us the news. Now comes Phil Goldstone, who recently returned to Tiffany, and also announces a Harry Carey contract. Both stories are true. Harry will make a series of Westerns for Tiffany; also he will do a serial for Mr. Levine.

PLENTY OF interest is centering around Leslie Fenton these days. Not only is the young man popular in the movies, but he has had one of Hollywood's most beautiful actresses openly expressing her admiration for him. Mr. Fenton is about to sign a contract with Harry Edwards for one of the leading roles in "The Pagan Lady" opposite Evelyn Brent. No, I won't tell the lady's name, at least not today. Anyway, all of Hollywood knows.

SNAPSHOTS OF Hollywood collected at random: . . . HARRY WEBER reporting that BEBE DANIELS had refused an offer of $7000 for one week at the Palace Theater in New York. . . . JAMES HALL and NERNA KENNEDY dancing together in the Blossom Room apparently as devoted as ever. . . . GEORGE OLSEN back in town, calling on his friend, ABE LYMAN. . . . BERT ROBINSON now back in pictures lunching at the Brown Derby. . . . EDDIE CANTOR and WARD EVERETT HORTON there the same day. . . . HOOT GIBSON and SALLY EILERS at the Coconut Grove. . . . LEW AYRES out of the hospital after difficulties with his tonsils. . . . JOHN P. MILES receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter at the Hollywood Hospital. . . . GEORGE THOMAS welcomed back at First National after an absence of four weeks, due to pneumonia. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

THERE'S ACTION IN EVERY FOOT OF "THE FRONT PAGE"

Hailed as one of the most perfect talkies ever produced, "The Front Page" is lauded by thousands who are viewing the film at Loew's State each day. Adolphe Menjou is cast in the leading role and Pat O'Brien and Mary Brian also are featured. Many other screen favorites are in the cast. The film portrays a newspaper story. "The Front Page" also was a success on the stage.

Seth Parker, Neighbors in Another Triumph at Symphony Hall

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Any survey of last night's drama in this town could lead only to those regions bounded by Huntington and Massachusetts avenues. Far uptown, the theater's biggest gross, in common dollars, descended upon Seth Parker and his neighbors from Jonesport, Maine. Symphony Hall was seated in full to the last row; late comers crowded the aisles, while gentlemanly attendants turned others away. This time we had Cefus and Lizzie to enliven Seth's Sunday night "gathering."

It was no typical Symphony Hall audience, in the general estimate, that fought for admittance and later clogged the carefully defined lanes leading to seats. It was an audience of native brought up on exactly 500 psalms songs and out of the same hymnal that Seth and his neighbors plunged into with so much vim. While the drama downtown of languishes, Seth Parker and his Jonesport companions now set up a brand new order of entertainment for plain people. Reduced to common figures, Seth Parker, with a few gospel hymns convarted a straggling drama season into a first class prayer meeting.

When Mr. Phillips Lord (Seth Parker), first slipped from radio to stage he neglected, or forgot, that much of the interest in the Sunday night "gatherings" was centered upon Lizzie and her funny, half-wit brother, Cefus. Naturally there was disappointment. This was quickly corrected. Cefus was present last evening, in all his pristine glory, which was not so much Lizzie, too, chattered in her well understood manner and helped, in womanly fashion, to kill time while some other disciples of good will searched the book for a new hymn.

It is not exactly fair to list the Seth Parker entertainment as an invitation to native home folk who cannot afford regular theater prices, and who have good reason to doubt the actual virtues in dollars and cents. Seth, of course, being a good showman, casually drifts back to first principles. Without much finesse, this radio personality has hopped from the air to what looks like just another gesture in the general business of saving souls. This always may be accomplished if the subjects are willing, and in view of last night's Seth Parker demonstration no sinner should be left outside the fold.

Seth Parker and his Jonesport neighbors brought about a wonderful "gathering" at Symphony Hall. If not only satisfied all the neighbors but there was a lot of first class, high grade Rotarian boost to the entire program.

Rigid Tests for Airship Crews

Responsibility is the most important requirement of a member of the crew of the U. S. Navy dirigible Los Angeles, says Comdr. Charles E. Rosendahl, former commanding officer of the ship and now attached to the Navy bureau of aeronautics at Washington, D. C.

"Because no extra personnel can be carried in flight to 'pinch hit' in billets where someone else falls down on the job, responsibility is the first requisite," declared Commander Rosendahl.

"The physical requirements, too, are as rigid, if not more so, than for members of the aviation, or heavier-than-air, department of the Navy's flying corps. A good digestive apparatus is essential because of long flights and limited rations, and, of course, all the other physical requirements common to all fliers, are to be met."

Old Favorites Naples Film to End Run

"When Naples Sings" will end its run at the Fine Arts next Friday night, to be followed Saturday by the showing of a Tolstoy story in movie form, "The Living Corpse."

The current film has been one of the most successful in the series of foreign films. Manager George Krakaur has screened at the little Back Bay playhouse, made in Italy, it possesses rare panoramic beauty, as it shows Naples and surroundings; some of its sequences have the lure that only Neapolitan scenery could have.

The Italian talking picture has a love theme, based upon the romance of a couple, hailing from America, whose bliss is about to be wrecked when a situation develops which throws them together again.

Jewish Juniors to Give Show

There has been a large advance sale of tickets for the play, "Aren't We All," to be presented by the dramatic group of the Boston section Council of Jewish Juniors, next Tuesday evening, at Jordan Hall. This famed English comedy by Frederick Lonsdale, is being directed by Miss Frieda Altman, who is an actress, with wide experience in coaching amateur productions. Scenery and costumes will be new, and it is hoped that this will be the most outstanding production ever presented by the council.

The business committee includes David Rose, production manager; Falk Nathan, Benjamin Lebowitz, Julis Hurley, Leo Gold, Harold Young, Freda Kaplan, Helen Bloom, Edith Friedman, Dorothy Jaymon, Ernest A. Gordon, Nell Sopkin, Goldie Kopans, Nelda Mannos, Rose Cohen, Martha Zandton, Beatrice Brody, Esther Aronovitch, Frances Berenson and Kay Slin.

Beery Star of "Secret Six"

"The Secret Six," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's sensational gangster drama, produced by Wallace Beery, George Hill and Frances Marion, the same combination of star, director and author responsible for "The Big House," comes to the screen at Loew's State next Friday.

"The Secret Six" is a smashing expose of municipal politics and the underworld, taken from actual situation in many American cities. Beery as the politician and underworld king is said to have a role more thrilling than "Butch" of "The Big House." He has as supporting players Lewis Stone, John Mack Brown, Jean Harlow, Marie Dressler, Paul Hurst, Clark Gable, Louis Natheaux, Frank McGlynn and Theodore Von Eltz.

Ken Maynard at Work on "Alias, the Bad Man"

Ken Maynard has started work on "Alias, The Bad Man." The western star has selected "Two Gun Man," with Lucile Powers appearing opposite him. Maynard and his wife have been living in California during the intermission. They have two cars, two boats and an airplane, and take a trip by some means of locomotion, between each two pictures. Ken flies the plane and steers his own boats.

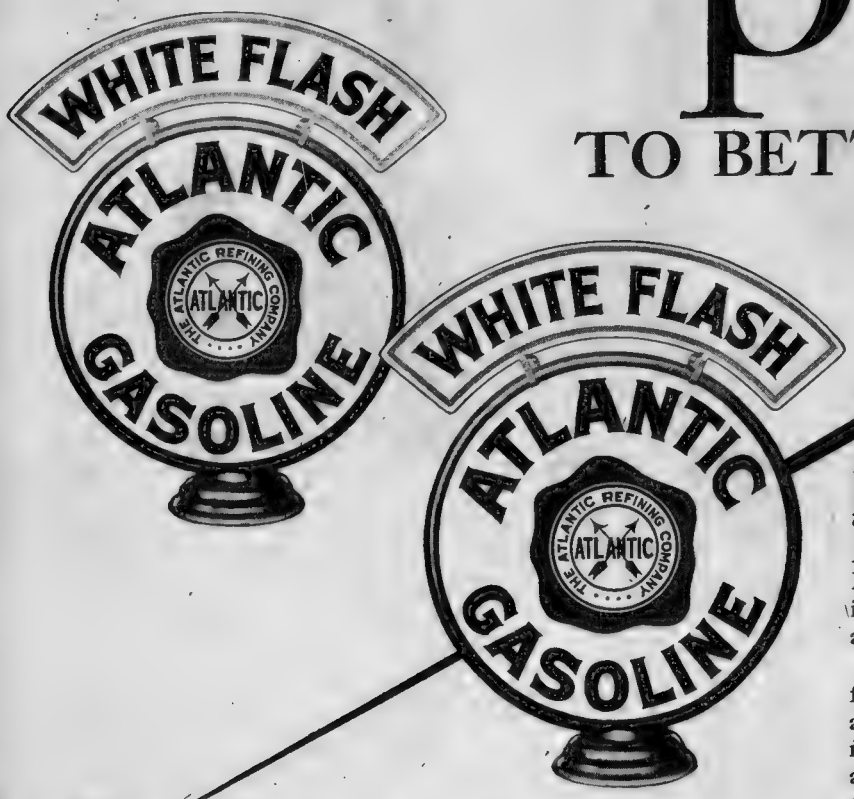
TO BETTER MOTORING



HERE are the official highway-signs to motoring satisfaction. No detours. No "closed for repairs." Just look for the familiar Atlantic globe, topped with the words WHITE FLASH. Buy your gasoline wherever you see it, and you'll go breezing along as smoothly and trouble-free as a bird a-wing.

ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is the amazing new fuel that takes figures off your gasoline bill and puts them on your speedometer. Its flashing pick-up sweeps you ahead like a sprinter at the starting-gun. Its concentrated power sends you purring over the steepest hills as though they were level boulevards.

Remember: ATLANTIC WHITE FLASH is sensationally better, yet it sells at regular-gas price! It has no disagreeable odor . . . a feature you doubly appreciate if you drive a closed car. It means extra mileage and super-performance, at less cost. Use it always. Give your car a chance to show you what it can do.

Jennifer, in Fighting Mood, Gets a Summons to See Her Father

Jennifer and Berry Rhodes in Fannie Hurst's powerful story, "Five and Ten." A scene from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture in which Marion Davies plays the role of Jennifer and Leslie Howard plays Berry Rhodes.

What Has Happened So Far

John G. Rarick has made millions as a chain store operator. His wife, Jenny, shortly after their marriage, lent him $2500, all she had, when he was near failure, and out of the money he built riches. But Jenny resents his far-from-imposing appearance and no longer feels any real love for him. She plans the social education of their children, Jennifer and Avery. The thought is always in her mind that without her $2500 Rarick would have achieved nothing. Her goading results in Rarick's agreeing to go East and to buy a magnificent home, but, secretly, he finds himself hating her. This is accentuated by his own temperamental inability to get close to his children. All their appeals to him are made through their mother. Rarick meets an old genius, Dr. Felix Gerkes, an authority on art and gems, and installs him in his house. Jenny objects to his presence and a bitter scene follows in which Rarick delivers the ultimatum that Gerkes remains.

Now Go On with the Story

By Fannie Hurst

Whose Novels Have Given Her a Reputation as One of the Foremost of Modern Writers.

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

A STORY about Jennifer Rarick went the rounds that Winter, creating hilarity at many a cocktail and dinner party.

It seemed that the Rarick house, shiningly conditioned, was now being shouted out by sight-seeing omnibus megaphones as the billion-dollar Ficke-Rarick mansion purchased with Rarick dimes.

One morning, just as Jennifer, in riding-habit, was emerging from the house to enter a large fawn-colored roadster, which she was accustomed to drive herself across the Park to the academy where she kept her mounts, one of these omnibuses slowed while the megaphone roared of Rarick dimes and billion dollar mansions.

Throughout this canned oration, the daughter of John Rarick, one hand against her slim hip, the other thumbing her nose at the omnibus, held posture, precipitating the picture by a dash into her roadster at its conclusion and leaving a gasping and bucolic sight-seeing omnibus load not quite sure that it had happened.

Typical of Her

Whether it did happen or not, the gesture might be said to be somewhat typical of Jennifer, I am. You are. Take me. Leave me.

Usually you took her. Even at her worst, when she was cocksure and tiresomely sophisticated and pseudo and pretentious, there was about her a hearty self loathing, concerning which she was robustly frank.

"I despise myself," she was constantly saying to people on club verandas and in grand stands at polo matches, where patter predominated. "I am a swine. I'm N. G. I'm stealing a ride through life. I'm a parasite."

After a fashion she meant it. After the fashion of one who attempts to appease a dissatisfaction by throwing to it slops of words.

People were always saying of her, "She has brains," in the key of saying, "Too bad, the girl has brains."

"She's my old man," was Jennifer's usual retort, in the slang with which she hung her speech. She meant this. She admired her father from the distance that lay between them. She wanted his respect and, strangely enough, gave him precious little of hers.

The evening following his scene [illegible] Jenny regarding the coming merriage, Rarick sent for his [illegible] y.

[illegible] house filled with the con[illegible]ls, the romance, the gonze, [illegible]ing of telephones and the [illegible]ng of servants that the two [illegible] club, mother and daughter, [illegible]ed to create about themselves, the occasions of family conference were seldom enough.

When the summons came for Jennifer to go to her father, in the library, she was in the act of slapping about her rooms, with her own confused English maid and her mother's Breton maid hurrying at her heels, in an effort to help her toward a dinner engagement for which she was already 20 minutes late.

The fact of the matter was, she had remained shockingly overtime at a bridge game at the Mayfair, vainly trying to retrieve a several hundred dollar loss.

Jennifer was of that species of tormentor who, abusive of her servants, was none the less beloved by them, because, quite contrite, she wooed them back by anointing their wounds with tips and gifts.

Costly Tantrums!

It was her maid Mariana's boast that these tantrums kept her supplied with furs, French gowns and even jewels

The last time Jennifer had been summoned in this fashion by her father was about two years before. She had bought on a dare, at the auction of a famous Long Island estate, a cigar-shaped roadster with an Italian engine of very special make, for eleven thousand dollars. The estate was being sold because the owner had been killed in this very car. Jennifer had stood on a table in the garage and led the spirited bidding.

Rarick, after a high and ugly scene with her in the library, had paid the eleven thousand dollars, and the day following, in her enraged and humiliated presence, had sold it to a dealer for twenty-five hundred.

"The meanest man in the world," Jennifer had ground through clenched teeth into her mirror after the episode, the tears of her humiliation splashing down a face which, although

PLEA FOR CHILD FINDS MANY READY TO AID

Firefighters Answer Appeal for Ina McAuley, Sick in a Malden Hospital

The young patient, Ina McAuley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McAuley of 77 North Milton st., Malden, is suffering from a blood condition that has weakened her.

Her father volunteered with the firemen and tests were made of all in the event that a transfusion is found necessary.

None of the firemen knew the girl before her illness but offered their services when the call went out of the hospital

PASSION PLAY GIRL SEES ELY

Klare Mayr thinks America, and Boston in particular, very intriguing, but her little home in the mountains of Bavaria holds first place in her heart, she said today.

Blonde and blue-eyed and 22, Miss Mayr plays the role of Mary Magdalene in the famous Passion Play at Oberammergau, which is her home.

She has had a part in it since she was 15. Her father, Guido Mayr, has the role of Judas Iscariot.

Miss Mayr has a remarkably beautiful soprano voice, but she never took a singing lesson in her life and quite likely she never will: she has no ambitions for grand opera.

She is in this country as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank D Waterman. She is in Boston as the guest of John J. Ward, Medford city treasurer, who made her acquaintance at Oberammergau She is visiting at the home of the Medford official's aunt, Mrs. Margaret Ward in West st., Medford.

This noon she called on Governor Ely, sang for the Rotary Club and later went to Weston to inspect Regis College

In Miss Mayr's family, besides her parents there are four other girls, her sisters. Like Miss Mayr, she said, they have no desire for social life.

The girls of Boston she finds different from the girls "at home," but very much the same as those of Berlin. She doesn't smoke and she doesn't drink. She likes the movies, the American films best.

Asked how it happened she sang so well without ever studying voice culture, she said:

"We always sing at home. Folk songs and old, old songs. We really sing as soon as we talk."

'MARY MAGDALENE' OF PASSION PLAY LIKES BOSTON

Klare Mayr finds Boston intriguing, but better still is her little home in the mountains of Bavaria, where she has played the role of Mary Magdalene in the Passion Play at Oberammergau since he was 13. Her father, Guido, takes the role of Judas Iscariot. She has a beautiful soprano voice and has never taken a singing lesson. She is the guest of John J. Ward, city treasurer of Medford, and was received at the State House today by Governor Ely. She is shown here in two poses. (Staff photos.)

WANTED CAR IN PLACE OF WIFE, SHE SAYS

Mrs. Scott on Stand Tells of Husband's Yearning for Freedom

"My husband often threatened to divorce me as he said he wanted to get rid of me so he could get an automobile such as his brother had."

This explanation was given today by Mrs. Marie Scott in Middlesex Superior Court, where she is being sued for divorce by her husband, Andrew C. Scott, who charges unfaithfulness.

"I have never been unfaithful to my husband, and Albert F. Wilson, who has been named by my husband as co-respondent, has never meant anything to me except as a business associate," she testified.

Mrs. Scott admitted being out three times last January with Wilson. She testified that on Jan. 2 last she went with him to the American House, Boston, where he registered as "Mr. and Mrs. M. F Moore." She denied improper relations there

"Mr. Wilson did not even kiss me or put his arm around me while we were in the hotel room," she testified. "Our purpose in going there was to discuss my family troubles and I didn't know that Mr. Wilson had registered in the way he did until we were at the police station."

It appeared that Mrs. Scott and Wilson were escorted to the police station from the hotel on complaint of the husband.

Mrs. Scott further testified she went to the Dutch Gardens in the American House with Wilson on January 17 last, at which time she saw and spoke to several of her husband's relatives, but they ignored her.

SLEPT ON FLOOR

Mrs. Scott testified she slept on the floor of her apartment for two nights last winter after her husband moved the furniture out on January 27. She admitted authorship, in cross-examination, of a farewell note to her husband, reading:

"Andy: I'm sorry I can't be a real wife to you. I am leaving for good. Good-by. Marie."

Wilson, named as co-respondent, denied intimacy with Mrs. Scott. He said the reason he was in Mrs. Scott's company on several occasions was because he tried to help her in her domestic troubles.

2 COAST GUARDS GO TO PRISON

Two coast guardsmen of the destroyer Jouett were sentenced to naval prison for selling liquor to their mates, coast guard headquarters announced today.

James C. Brennan, coxswain, was reduced to seaman and sentenced to six months at Portsmouth naval prison after which he will be dishonorably discharged.

William B. Britt, seaman first class, was reduced to seaman second class, given three months in the same prison and will be dishonorably discharged.

Brennan and Britt were among four arrested by Washington investigators several months ago after one of the investigators posed as a new shipmate.

John L. Erskine was sentenced last week and the finding on Edward Spinner is not at Washington for review.

Lip-Smacking Crowd Sees 'Big' Seizure ---of Seven Pints

The sloop Elmardo came to the Appraisers stores today.

It was closely guarded by government agents.

It was captured as a liquor suspect off Cuttyhunk Saturday.

They, for some reason, like to see liquor unloaded.

The sloop was made fast. The crowd waited

The customs man left the sloop with seven pints

LODGE STATUE IS ACCEPTED

Satisfied that the completed statue of Henry Cabot Lodge, designed for the State House grounds, eliminated the faults of the model, the Governor's Council today approved the payment of $15,000 for the work.

When Raymond A. Porter, the sculptor, submitted the model, admirers of the late lawmaker objected to its acceptance, charging that details were not authentic.

VICE CASE JURY IS DISMISSED

Following more than 24 hours deliberation the jury in the case of Joseph Ackerman of Dorchester, was dismissed today by Judge Thomas Hammond in Suffolk Superior criminal court, having failed to agree.

Ackerman was tried on vice charges growing out of the stories of girls of 15 and 16 years of age, who yesterday told the jury of going to Ackerman's shoe repair shop in Brighton and being taken by him to an apartment.

Israel Beane of Boston and Morris and Harry Feinsig of Dorchester, are on trial before Judge Harold P. Williams of Suffolk Superior criminal court on charges involving the same girls

Fox Funeral Is Held in Roxbury

The funeral of James P. Fox, father of Charles J. Fox, Boston budget commissioner, was held today from his home, 3 Carmel st., Roxbury, and was followed by a solemn requiem mass at the Mission Church

Rev. Ambrose McAdams officiated. He was assisted by Rev. Mark DeCoste, Rev. John Scully was master of ceremonies. Burial was in Holybood cemetery, Brookline

In his early days Fox was an excellent oarsman and was in the real estate business until a few years ago. He was a member of many fraternal organizations, including the Roxbury Council of the Knights of Columbus.

259 Are Given Oath as New Citizens

Eighty-four women and 175 men pledged allegiance to the United States in federal court today

It was the largest naturalization class of women to be obligated in the duties of citizenship for some time. Judge James M. Morton, Jr., presided at the session.

Roxbury Legion to Have Banquet

American Legion Post 24 of Roxbury will hold its annual banquet and dance at Intercolonial Hall, Roxbury, tomorrow evening. The dance is in honor of the Gold Star mothers of deceased members of this post. John F. Kenney is chairman of the committee in charge.

2 Convicted Under Kosher Meat Law

Members of the United Kosher Butchers of Massachusett's hailed as a victory the conviction and fining of two Revere meat merchants, Eli Levine and Jacob Levine of Shirley ave., Revere, found guilty of violation of the State "Kosher law," in the Chelsea court and fined $50. It was the first conviction under this law, according to Harry F. Levowich, attorney for the organization.

The two meat dealers were charged with selling non-Kosher meat while representing the same to be Kosher.

ALIEN JAILED IN GUN CASE

Louis Scolnick, 29, of Roxbury, an alien, was today sentenced to an indefinite stay in Concord reformatory by Judge Thomas Hammond in Suffolk Superior Criminal Court. Sentence was passed after Scolnick had been found guilty by a jury of having a revolver in his possession without a permit.

The gun was the one used by Abraham Goldenberg to kill his sweetheart, Miss Lillian Franks of Malden. Goldenberg asked Scolnick if he had a revolver. Scolnick said he had and gave it to Goldenberg. Goldenberg had the revolver repaired. Then, following a lover's quarrel with his sweetheart, he invited her to take a walk in Franklin Park, where he shot her to death. Goldenberg is now serving a life sentence in State Prison, having pleaded guilty to murder in second degree.

CRIME IS LAID TO DRY LAW

Citing the growth of crime as the greatest evil of prohibition, the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, Congregational pastor and state representative from Wara, made a bitter attack on the dry law in his debate with the Rev. E. Talmadge Root former executive secretary of the Massachusetts Federation of Churches.

The debate was held last night at Saugus under the auspices of the Republican committee. Rep. C. F. Nelson Pratt, presided

Sawyer said prohibition has cut the very heart out of the temperance work of the churches.

"It has led the churches to dissipate their energy and flitter away their money in supporting law enforcement programs, where three-fourths of those they seek to aid are inmates or crooked," he charged.

100,000 LOST JOBS

"National prohibition has financed the underworld and made crime powerful and menacing," he added. "National prohibition has made a widespread corruption of officials and disrespect for law and order.

"That it ended a regime of drinking where 94 per cent of all drinking was of mild beer and has substituted a regime of drinking bootch.

"That it has increased our distressed unemployment. When fanatics stopped the manufacture and sale of 2.75 beer they threw out of employment 100,000 men with a payroll of three-fourths of $1,000,000,000.

"We frankly admit that the saloon has been closed, but it has been replaced by the speakeasy, the rumrunner and the bootlegger, and society has gained very little by such a trade."

The Rev. Root in defense of prohibition said in part.

DEFENDS DRY LAW

Among its benefit I cite these: It has abolished the saloon—it has brought admission of the necessity of temperance—it has reduced the amount of drinking—it has helped us to overcome the present financial depression and has been of in estimable value to children.

"Never in human history have the children of any nation, as a whole, been so well-fed, well-clothed, and happy and with so many things to enjoy, as the children of the United States since 1920.

"There has been serious unemployment the past year which must never occur again. But less than ever before has been wasted in drink, families have stuck together, and actual distress has been surprisingly small. Bishop Cassidy will says, 'I have just sent 7000 bottles of milk to needy families. Would any dare to say that it would have been better to send beer?'"

Clearing Weather Is Due by Tonight

Although it was cloudy today and there was a slight rain at intervals, the weather man promises fair weather for tonight and tomorrow with moderate fresh northwest winds

Maximum temperature today was 52 degrees, with a minimum of 45 degrees last night. Yesterday the maximum temperature was 55 degrees.

STARTED RIGHT IN 'GOING OUT NIGHTS'

She Tel's Judge He Often To'd Her He Wou'd Like to Kill Her

It took only three weeks of marriage for Robert C. Codman, prominent socially and an aviation insurance broker, to get right into the swing of a restless-footed husband, Mrs. Arnette North Codman of Clark rd., Brookline, testified today in Middlesex Probate Court where s'e seeks divorce.

Mrs. Codman daughter of Frank A North, attorney with offices at 11 Beacon st., charged Codman with cruel and abusive treatment. They were married Nov. 12, 1929 but separated Jan. 22, 1931, she testified

"We hadn't been married three weeks," she said, "before he went out night after night. I didn't know where he was.

"I wanted a family, but no—he didn't. He ordered me about, and if I did not do what he told me, I could get out.

"He got all the money he could from me. He got my $1000. He never supported me.

"He lied to me the day we were married. He kept me out night after night, and was insulted if I wanted to go home at 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning. When I was sick or tired, I got no consideration whatever.

"He often told me he would like to kill me. He tried to wear me down so I would get out. He took money from me to pay bills for his mother. He lived on the money I got for a wedding present and the money that he got."

DOCTORS QUIZ KIN OF NOBLE

Haverhill, April 29—Friends and relatives of Russell Noble, accused slayer of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis, have been questioned by workers for two alienists in the last few weeks.

The queries were considered part of the test of Noble's sanity that has consumed three weeks thus far.

Noble, in his cell, remained the same "model" prisoner today, according to George R. Bunting keeper of the jail.

Cambridge Police Hunt Drug Thieves

Cambridge police today were seeking burglars, believed to be drug addicts, who early this morning looted the Tech Pharmacy at 86 Massachusetts ave. of drugs and liquor valued at more than $1000.

'SECOND LADY' VISITS CRIPPLES

Mrs. William S. Youngman, wife of the lieutenant-governor, visited the Boston speech school for crippled children at 168 Huntington ave., today to observa how the youngsters are progressing in their rehabilitation. Mrs. Youngman's visits are always welcomed by the children of the institution of which she is a member of the advisory board.

The school will present a musical comedy, "The Maid of Wistaria," next month to raise funds for the summer camp on Lynn Shore Drive, where many crippled children will be given an opportunity to enjoy sun baths, sea air and dips in the ocean. John J. Shaughnessy, secretary to Mayor Curley, will sing the leading male part in the play.

Parents are invited by the school to bring children suffering from the effects of birth injury, infantile paralysis or nervous disorders to the institution to have defects remedied. Children whose speech is retarded may be assisted through massage, exercises and instruction.

COURTS ASKED NEW QUESTION ON ANNUITY

Fund for Annuitants Set Up, but No Provision is Made for Income Payment

For the first time in Massachusetts' history, the courts were asked to rule on the validity of a will clause establishing a fund for annuitants, but carrying no provision for payment of income to them.

The question was put to Judge Mayhew R. Hitch of Bristol Probate Court, sitting in Suffolk Probate Court and involves a clause in the will of Julius Adams, a Boston attorney, who died Dec. 15 1929, leaving an estate of $528,227.85.

His fortune was inherited chiefly from his father, Isaac Adams, pioneer in the sugar industry in Boston and founder of the South Boston firm now known as the American Sugar Refining Co.

As a result of a "compromise" in the will, $35,000 was deposited on May 1, 1904, in the Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Co. for the benefit of several annuitants named in the will, the fund not to be distributed until after the death of the last annuitant.

The fund now amounts to more than $60,000, and eight of the annuitants now living claim that accumulation of the fund, without payment of income, is a hardship and that some of the annuitants are in destitute circumstances.

They argue that the fund probably would not be distributed for 20 years, if then, as the youngest of the annuitants is only 50 years old.

These eight are Reginald A. Adams of 269 Adams st., Dorchester; Jessie Adams Bedee and Nephele Adams Bedea, both of Boston; Isaac Murray Adams of the U. S. Veterans' Hospital, Bedford; Isaac Adams Ulman, Alfred and Elizabeth Ulman, all three of Swampscott, and Marjorie Adams of California.

ACID after meals

GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. Eat without fear of "acid indigestion," sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.

When your food ferments, "digesters," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude method—take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia

A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting, soothing fluid neutralizes many times its volume in acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headache, nausea or biliousness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to colds or sickness. All druggists—in 25c and 50c bottles.

CALLS CHARGES AGAINST MATE 'JUST LIES'

Mayor Orders the Removal of Agent if Found Guilty of Complaint

"It's a lie! It's nothing but a lie!"

With this statement, Mrs. William R. G. Doyle stoutly defended her husband today against charges that the veteran clerk of the city welfare department made overtures to a woman who sought relief from his department.

The charges were revealed in a demand of Mayor Curley on Simon E. Hecht, overseer of public welfare, that Doyle be dismissed if the charges were found to be true.

Chairman Hecht said today that Doyle is under suspension and may appeal to the full board of 12 for a hearing, a request that has not been made yet.

Doyle is accused of offering "a drink" and then "a little petting" to the 34-year-old woman whom welfare department officials, in announcing the indefinite suspension of Doyle, refused to identify. However, records at the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where the woman was treated for hysteria, and police records identify her as Mrs. Nellie Young of West Eighth st., South Boston.

REFUSED TO PROSECUTE

Doyle made unmitigated denial of the charges.

"The story is absolutely false," he said, "Other than that, anything I say cannot help the situation."

The affair is alleged to have taken place at the Chardon st. charity headquarters. The husband of the woman, explaining that he was a friend of the welfare worker, declined to prosecute and the police dropped the case, according to the report received by the mayor from Secretary Walter V. McCarthy welfare board.

Doyle lives with his wife and children at 28 Langdon st., Roxbury. He was suspended by Secretary McCarthy, pending the outcome of an investigation.

TREATED AT HOSPITAL

In a report to the mayor, it was explained that the woman had appeared at the Wayfarers' Lodge Friday to collect the weekly allowance of $8 in place of her husband, who was away seeking a job.

Doyle, who was in charge of the disbursements, was alleged to have invited the woman into the adjoining washroom, where, according to the complaint to the overseers, he asked her if she would like a drink.

When she refused, Doyle was alleged to have asked her if she wanted "a little petting." This, according to Secretary McCarthy, was the extent of the charges made to the overseers, but police and Haymarket Relief Hospital officials contended that the woman charged that she had been attacked, and was treated for hysteria.

12 BARS OF SOAP MAY SEND 3 TO CHAIR

These three youths are accused of slaying Evangelista Bagni during holdup of Somerville filling station. Twelve bars of soap were used by ballistics expert to identify bullet which inflicted fatal wound. These 12 bars of soap may send the youths to the electric chair, or they may free them. The test was explained in court. (Staff photo.)

BAGNI MURDER TRIAL HALTED

The Bagni murder trial was recessed today until tomorrow because of the indisposition of William W. Lewis counsel for one of the three youths on trial.

Lewis suffered a nasal hemorrhage yesterday and lost considerable blood. He appeared at the Middlesex County courthouse this morning prepared to resume but Dr. Winfred Overholzer advised against it.

BANK ROBBERS WIN STAY

Judge Daniel T. O'Connell in Norfolk Superior Court today granted a stay of execution to Fred F. McDonald and John J. Porter, convicted yesterday of the robbery of the Milton Savings Bank on March 21.

Attorneys for the two men contend that the verdict was not sustained by the evidence presented at the trial, and entered motions for a new trial.

Judge O'Connell set May 16 for a review of the evidence and a hearing on the motion.

SAFE-CRACKERS FAIL ON JOB

The stationery store of L. E. Muran at 290 Devonshire st. was entered last night and an attempt made to open a large safe in the office. It is believed the thieves were frightened away, for a complete set of burglars' tools, including a crowbar, cold chisels and iron hammer, were left behind.

Entrance was gained by forcing the rear door in Milton pl. by the men, believed by the police to be amateurs. Special Officers William J. O'Connell and Joseph E. Brooks of Station 2 and a fingerprint expert from headquarters examined the safe.

It was believed the crackmen got nothing.

WOMAN HELD IN DRUG CASE

Charged with signing the name of a Back Bay doctor to a prescription and securing narcotics with it at a Brookline drug store, Marion A. Totman of West Newton st., Boston, pleaded not guilty in Federal Court today and was held in $500 for the grand jury by Commissioner Edwin C. Jenney.

The woman said she had been afflicted with a severe nervous disorder and began using drugs to alleviate her pain. A druggist in Brookline honored the forged prescription.

Later Federal agents in checking up on sales of narcotics, checked up on the prescription and, finding it false, arrested Miss Totman.

BOSTON FLIER HURT IN BLAST

Detroit, April 29 (AP)—Lieut. Ernest K. Warburton, of Newton, Mass., a member of the crack Selfridge field flying corps, was seriously burned today when his army airplane exploded 1000 feet in the air just after he had abandoned it by a parachute jump.

The lieutenant's parachute opened about 300 feet above the ground. He was burned by the flames which followed the explosion. The craft crashed on the outskirts of the city and was destroyed.

Lt. Warburton

Lieut. Warburton was taken to Redford branch of receiving hospital where his condition was said to be serious.

Lieut. Warburton is 27. He studied aviation at M. I. T., from which he was graduated in 1926. He trained at the army air school, Brooks Field, San Antonio, Texas.

He has had several narrow escapes from death while flying. In 1927 the motor of his plane died 1200 feet over Cambridge and he made a dead stick landing in a field near the Cambridge Armory, damaging his ship. Four months ago at Selfridge Field his plane collided with another in mid-air and he landed it on a single wheel and the tail skid.

He is the son of Joseph J. Warburton of Newton.

MISSIONARY IN INDIA DIES

No woman should risk unknown substitutes for Kotex

How do you know it's just like Kotex? Who stands back of it? Where was it made? How? By whom? Is it, like Kotex, used by hospitals from coast to coast?

Kotex is safe

Those words, "just like Kotex," mean much more, you see, than surface resemblance. It's easy to make a pad that looks like Kotex. Far, far harder to make one that meets the rigid Kotex standards of purity, of cleanliness, of perfect hygienic safety.

After all, why take chances? You know Kotex is safe. It is treated to deodorize. It is adjustable. Last year more than 10,000,000 pads were used by hospitals alone — their choice of Kotex should be your guide.

Kotex may cost a few pennies more than some questionable substitute, of whose makers you know nothing. But those few cents guarantee a product that meets your personal ideals of cleanliness, as well as hygienic safety.

Perfect comfort

You have every possible comfort in Kotex. Careful shaping, for comfort and inconspicuous lines. Super-softness . . . that lasts, because Kotex is made of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding, which absorbs scientifically, away from the surface.

Kotex Company, Chicago.

IN HOSPITALS . . .
1 The Kotex absorbent is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.
2 Kotex is soft . . . . Not merely an apparent softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

FAVORITE STORY CONTEST

"While making Vitaphone shorts in Hollywood I heard of an all-Indian jass band playing in a small town in Arizona. I went there to hear them and possibly arrange for them to come to Warner Brothers studio for a sound recording.

"'Are all of you really Indians?' I asked. 'If you are I am sure I can put you over big in a sound specialty.'

"'Vat vould be da use of kiddin' wit you?' replied the chief. 'Ve are all foot bleds!'"

MAKE-BELIEVE

By FAITH BALDWIN

Mary Lou Is Eager to Be Air Pilot

By FAITH BALDWIN.

"WE'LL HAVE a plane," Lorrimer promised Mary Lou, after their safe flight from Florida.

"You'll let me learn to fly?" she asked, deep in her role, forgetting that she had no right to ask, he no right to give permission. But the little question moved him profoundly, filled him with a blazing hope.

"When I get back into it," he said happily, "I'll teach you—myself!"

They had arrived home. They found Margaret much better, a pleasant nurse in attendance, and Doctor Mathews haunting the house like a faithful and efficient watch dog. His had had a great bone man out to see Mrs. Lorrimer. X-ray plates had been taken, the arm was set and would heal nicely. What she needed now was rest, for the weakened heart which had suffered from the strain of the shock

"Such an idiot!" she said, explaining, "to slip on—of all things—the dining-room floor! But I hadn't felt well. I was a little faint and the first thing I knew poor Peter was trying to lift me up. Well, no great harm has been done."

And much good, she added to herself, thinking of all that her son had overcome to come to her—on wings.

Often as time went on Lorrimer found opportunity to say to Mary Lou, "I can't thank you enough for what you did for me —making me take that trip."

She answered, always, as she had answered him when he spoke of his first visit to the Veterans Hospital, "I didn't make you. You made yourself. To be frank," she told him honestly, "I didn't care whether you came or not. So you I did quiet! I wanted you to come for your mother's sake. But whether you had come with me or stayed and taken the train didn't matter, as far as my going was concerned. I had to go," her end as soon as I could you see."

And he answered, rather humbly:

"Yes, I see. Delight."

She was more out of love than ever with the name, the quaint little name which seemed to her so "precious" and affected and idiotic. Yet she answered to it, postured for it, reminded herself constantly that Mary Lou no longer existed. Even her aunt and uncle had written her, from the far off and incredible isolation of their oriental jungle, under that name, written bold and black in Clara's hand. But in their letters, itself her own name occurred,

"Mary Lou, are you crazy? If I weren't so tied up here, I'd come home at once and take you away from that place. It all sounds completely mad to me."

Mary Lou had written Clara often, since her first letter, had explained and re-explained, in order to justify to Clara's shrewd and astonished eyes her "job." Lately the weekly letters she had sent, always written with complete news of Billy, obtained over the telephone, or by a flying trip out to see that young man, lately, those letters had ceased to justify anything, and had become rather reticent, so that Clara wise woman, had announced to her weary husband that it looked very much as if Mary Lou's heart were beginning to be involved in that same "job." To which her tired and steaming engineer generally grunted, more occupied hushedly as usual. Not that he didn't care a lot for Mary Lou, but he was passionately building a railroad at the ends of the earth, was Howard.

People, thought Mary Lou, sometimes disconsolately, had about forgotten that Mary Lou Thurston had ever existed. Wasn't it funny—not funny, Haha—but, peculiar!—and a little terrifying that a name and its attached personality could so quickly be swallowed up in a game of snake-believe? Larry Mitchell never called her Mary Lou, now, even when they were alone together; nor did Mrs. Lorrimer, nor Doctor Mathews. They had all learned their parts so well, all too well, she thought, suffering a comic agony would to her ego. And Jenny? well, Jenny didn't know, of course. She was often sorry that Jenny didn't know. Jenny, with an ask question, didn't pry into the "past" of Delight Harford, never made embarrassing inquiries, but accepted her as she was, in the present. Still she and Jenny had become so close of late that Mary Lou felt her wholesale deception, which, naturally, included Jenny, was all the more palpable, but nevertheless real barrier between them. Even if Jenny didn't guess and pry, bless her, Mary Lou had always to be on her guard.

And lately Lorrimer had commenced talking again, talking of old times and "mutual" memories. And Mary Lou was forced to sit and listen and sometimes agree and sometimes say "Yes, I remember" or "Tell me again, I've forgotten. No, I don't recall Dolly Jameson, who was she? Oh, a man? No, Lorr,, I don't think I remember, it was so long ago."

THE QUIET LIFE

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

SOME OF US—MOST OF US—MUST HAVE A DRAUGHT OF IT TO REFRESH SOUL AND BODY—NOW AND THEN

ALONG ABOUT this time of the year the breast—where the heart is—and the head—where the mind-world is—struggle with a strange unrest, vague longings, acute yearnings. In autumn, too, most of us wrestle with this painful, yet strangely sweet because of its source, fever of heart and mind.

The matter is JOY. We've lost it—the joy bird that sings that beauty and joy are undying. It's been too long since we have been made deeply happy by his song, those of us who cannot be really happy with it totally out of our lives. And it does not sing in the City. The poetic, the mighty, the beautiful, the appealing, the stirring City has its excitements, its thrills, its artistic lights and shades, but the golden bird that the Princes sought in a thousand fairy-tales, and that you and I must hear sometimes to feed soul and heart and body, the City hasn't!

A great part of its life the modern heart and body must live in a supremely unadorned, high-pitched, loud civilization. Most busy busily away in a very plain hive, amused now and then by a "movie," a very poor "dining out" as to true atmosphere and food, "parties" that are strangely poor amusement and barren fun. Where is the moon, a tree, the sound of a river, true gayety and romance, the world of reality, in ALL OF THAT?

For the average soul and heart too long a time of the hive and its poor diversions is starvation. So it works up a violent fever—and cannot understand what's the matter. A long, long draught of the QUIET PLACES is what the pagan in the city needs now and then to regain Joy. To cool his fever, to refresh his spirit. And a Spirit grows tired and dusty and bedraggled just as your jacket does!

It took me quite a few words to tell the city man and girl that they need a day in the country now and then if they want to be really happy, but you see what I mean.

KILL OR CURE

Today's True Story

MAISIE had been married a year but somehow she wasn't contented. Marriage hadn't proved the one continuous honeymoon she had dreamed it would be.

Besides, Rollins Beasley, her young good-looking husband, wasn't making as much money as she had hoped.

It was true that the little apartment was most attractive, but then there was Pauline Jenkins, who had one of the big apartments in the same building, who owned a car and wore expensive gowns.

Maisie got to know Pauline and the latter sympathized with her.

Pauline took Maisie out in her car and introduced her to her friends, and Maisie found them interesting. Pauline got something out of life besides washing dishes and keeping rooms in order, and why should Rollins expect her to shave all her time away?

Rollins began to notice the discontented look on his wife's face, but he didn't say anything. He thought he knew what the matter was—he had seen her riding with Pauline and he guessed the rest from what he knew of the latter's history.

Even when Maisie began to complain about what she called the dull, drab life she led Rollins made no reply. "For better or for worse," he reminded her. In fact, he took the whole affair so lightly that Maisie felt insulted.

Pauline egged her on. "Get a divorce, my dear. That's the only way; it doesn't cost much these days—and then you can pick out a man with money and enjoy life. You're too pretty to be tied down to a humdrum existence."

At last she summoned up her courage and faced her husband after a dinner that did little credit to her culinary ability.

"Rollins," she said, "why can't we face the facts? I really think you'd be happier if I were away." Her heart was beating violently as she said it. She expected that her husband would stare at her in amazement or vow he would never let her go.

"I sure do," he agreed, smiling "When do you want to quit?" He didn't even ask questions. It was incredible. Then he don't love her after all. She could hardly believe it. "Why, why," she stammered, "I'd better go as soon as possible, if it's all right with you."

"Okay with me," said Rollins; let's see, you'll be gone 42 days, or something like that—I'll help you all I can. I've got a little saved up and you can have that. And now if you don't mind I've got an engagement."

Maisie went back to her room with almost a sob. So this was the end of her long dream. She was going to be so happy with Rollins, and now she was leaving him. For what? She was a little puzzled to know. He telephoned while she was thinking it over.

"Hello!" Is that you Maisie" Here's good news for you—I've got a letter to a lawyer in Reno who'll push the whole thing through for you as fas' as it can be done."

"Oh, thanks," she gasped, but that wasn't what she meant.

She found it really heart-breaking to pack up her things and get ready to leave. The nearer the moment came for her to go out of the little flat the harder it became.

But at last she was all ready; she had told Rollins just what she wanted sent to her mother's house and just what was to go in storage.

"Will you say good-bye to Pauline for me?" she asked, trying to keep her voice casual. "She hasn't been home lately."

"I'll say she hasn't," said Rollins; "she's flown the coop."

"Oh," gasped Maisie, "what did she do?"

"Nothing much—just fleeced an unsuspecting admirer out of a few thousand—that's all—of course you know she wasn't really married, don't you? I didn't think much of her, but I just discovered that yesterday myself."

Maisie put her bag. "Here's your train," he said.

But Maisie didn't move. Suddenly she began to weep "I don't want to leave you," she cried.

His arms went around her. "It's all right, dear," he said, oblivious of the staring crowds in the busy station, "I thought you'd feel differently about it—and God knows I don't want you to go."

"Oh, don't you—don't you?" she sobbed. "I—I was so afraid you did."

May Day Is the Time to Be Young

By DR. COPELAND.

MAY DAY is the child's day. It is the day of the young and for all of us to be young.

Dr. Copeland

It is fitting that May Day should have been chosen by the American Child Health Association as the time to remind the nation of the importance of child welfare. This is done every year. It calls upon each and every one of us to guard our youth against the perils of neglect and ill health.

When the child goes to school he comes in contact with trained teachers as well as older children who have had instruction in personal hygiene. Until this time the youngster has had nothing more than the instruction of his parent.

I say this with no disparagement of the average pair of parents. But it is one thing to see a child every day and almost every hour of the day, and quite another thing to come under the periodical observation of more critical persons than the loving mother and father. The stranger will discern faults that eyes blind by parental love may quite overlook.

There should be some universally applied system of reaching the child of pre-school age. The surest means of doing this is to impress on every parent the importance of regular visits to the doctor and dentist. It is a mistake to wait till the child is sick or in pain. It is easier and cheaper to keep well than to get well.

Let there be a decree of humanity in the home, a willingness to admit that expert advice is useful even to the most confident parent. What was good enough for the parents and grandparents is not good enough for your child. You want your little one to have the benefit of everything a progressive world has discovered.

Find fault if your community has not provided a full-time nurse and mid-cal officer. As an American citizen you are entitled to have the guarantees a community hospital bestows.

On May Day, two days hence give thought to the importance of child health. No other contributions to the nation can equal a generation of healthy children. Do your part, as a parent, as a citizen, to have your community live up to its responsibility.

She Suspects They May Be Gold Bricks

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

In a small Southern town from which I come, everyone knows everyone else, and, when were introduced to a stranger, we usually know all about her (or him) in advance, and so know just what to talk about. But here in this big city, where everyone is so indifferent and unconcerned about strangers, I'd like to know just what to say when I'm introduced. At home I say something friendly or, if the stranger is a man, I'd know someone with whom he went to school or college. But if you say anything pleasant here, people look at you as if you were trying to sell them a gold brick. I'd be right glad and thankful for a few pointers.

ANNABELLE.

Dear Annabelle—The correct formal greeting is "How do you do?" when you meet strangers. Do not use the expression, "Pleased to meet you." Southern women have a reputation for charming friendliness that is very "taking." I'm sure, if in the hurrying-scurrying zone in which you're living at present, you're able to display some of that friendly spirit, people will not think you're trying to "sell" them anything, but the good manners which are, alas, all too rare these days.

A Difference in Height

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

The young man with whom I am going is considerably shorter than I, which detail seems to worry him much more than it does me, since he talks about it continually and says he would like it better if I were shorter. But when I suggest that we quit going together his feelings are hurt.

PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled: Your young man shows a rather weak side of his character when he hunts trouble in the difference of your height. If he is his early 20's he'll probably outgrow what's nothing more than a little masculine vanity.

COFFEE CAKE

1 cup butter
½ cup sugar
3 eggs
4 cups flour
Grated rind of ½ lemon
1 cake yeast dissolved in 1½ cups lukewarm milk
1 tsp. salt

Cream butter and sugar, add eggs, one at a time, salt, lemon, the dissolved yeast and the flour, gradually, and knead until smooth and elastic. Cover and let rise in a warm place, until double its bulk (overnight). Toss on board, form into any desired shape, let rise again and bake.

CHEESE CAKE

2 tbsps. butter, melt and add to cheese
1 lb. (1 pt.) cheese, press dry and put through colander several times
1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. cornstarch
1 cup cream
Rind of a lemon
Juice of ½ lemon
3 eggs

Dissolve the cornstarch in the cream. Beat yolks with sugar. Mix all together, beaten whites last. Line a spring form with cookie dough. Pour in the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 deg. F., 1 hour or until set.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

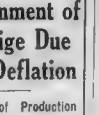
Realignment of Prestige Due To Deflation

Program of Production Based on Conditions Is Urged

By M. S. Rukeyser

New York, April 29—Beneath the surface of the prolonged deflationary process has been a realignment of power and prestige. On the negative side numerous bull market heroes have fallen. Overpressed, assented social leaders who profited prodigiously in fair weather from swimming with the tide, are not a few somewhat hard to find and wanting.



M. S. Rukeyser

A distressing feature of the readjustment at the pinnacles of financial and industrial leadership has been the imposition of especially heavy penalties on certain constructive financiers who were seeking to achieve long term results. These men, unlike wand-out speculative financiers, were unable or indisposed to run to cover and become liquid when the financial storm broke loose. Being the dominant interest in numerous situations entailed being heavily loaded up with common stocks, which through the months have been subject to enormous shrinkage.

To a decree, hard times constitute a seasoning process which tests the mettle of leadership.

It would appear that Hoover can has gone as far as the expenditure needs of the country justify. What is plainly needed at this stage is a program of production, eased upon a resultant of the situation. There is a great opportunity for solvent financiers to allow initiative in organizing the forces of industry for constructive purposes.

The stepping down of Cyrus S. Eaton as chairman of the Continental Shares, Inc., his chief instrument for expressing his will of leadership in rubber, independent steel and utilities, may be known as one of the results of widespread economic readjustment. Mr. Eaton, who studied law at Yale, entered the business world as a secretary to the elder Rockefeller, as one of the most picturesque figures on the financial scene. The recent resignation of Continental Shares, whose Mr. Eaton picked for the post, was a former college instructor in mathematics. Mr. Eaton is a native of Pictou, Nova Scotia, a fishing village of 4,700 population in the province of that country.

Mr. Eaton carried the tradition of the land of his birth to his country estate known as Acadia Farm in Northfield, Ohio. He is said to be a diligent reader, preferring biography and poetry.

In business life, Eaton had one outstanding idea. He strongly believed that an opportunity had occurred in American corporate activity for the return of the responsible stockholder who is conscious of the powers and duties that go with ownership.

Until business depression became acute and stockholder revolts were stirred up in nine important companies, including Continental Shares, there had emerged with the rise of the small investor a new type of owner in the United States, an owner who neither manages nor directly supervises management — a passive somewhat apathetic owner.

It was Mr. Eaton's idea to recruit deliberately to make this type responsible and influential owner in corporate securities, a man who not only hoped for larger earnings, but who attempted to contribute directly to the heightening of earning power of corporations in which he was interested. Recognizing that no single individual could exert by himself in acquiring a dominant interest in big companies Mr. Eaton created a number of corporations, which raised capital from investors, and which widened his sphere of influence.

As a matter of policy, Continental Shares did not desire top-heavy premiums to put stocks of surpassing quality in its portfolio. Rather it sought to acquire shares of companies which appeared to have future possibilities which had not yet been sufficiently realized. But the promoters did not visualize how such securities would fare during a major economic depression.

At any rate, the distressed results have interfered with Mr. Eaton's broad experiment in seeking to become a new type of more responsible owner of corporate securities.

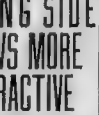
BUYING SIDE GROWS MORE ATTRACTIVE

By FRANK H. MELOON

It can hardly be denied that the buying side of the stock market is getting more attractive for investors day by day, with the decline in Wall and State sts. continuing. However, it is a psychological certainty that fewer people want to buy when shares decline. If stocks were back at 1929 peaks, it is likely a lot more buying would be going on than there is today. Moreover, most traders look for further spotty sagging.

* * *

There is a general reluctance in being added to the long roll of "involuntary investors in ventures in the language of the Street, this nevertheless will hold stocks many days when they cannot get out of the market at a profit. When the inevitable turn comes these investors will have to be among the first on the way up.



Albert R. Erskine

Add President

Albert R. Erskine of Studebaker to the growing list of corporation executives reassuring their stockholders as to current dividend safety. Not only has President Erskine's reassurance been forthcoming this week, but also the declaration of the regular dividend for the quarter. Mr. Erskine thinks Studebaker will earn its full dividend for 1931.

President Erskine says:

"March sales exceeded those of any month since September, 1929, and April sales will be still better. In fact, the outlook for the second quarter indicates a substantial gain in our business."

The Erskine statement confirms what has frequently been said in this column about the pickup in the automotive industry. This pick up shows increasing promise at present, though it has yet to be tested.

Trust company "margin calls" have not been in evidence, but warning is those sent out by some brokerage houses. Here is a typical Boston one, inspired by the recent market decline:

"At current quotations we find we need more collateral as security for your loan. Please see us about this as soon as convenient."

Donald Kirkstrate, treasurer of the Walpole Trust Company, has accepted a position with Standard Statistics Co., of New York, to do work in connection with its commercial bank supervisory service. Mr. Kirkstrate's association at the Walpole bank of principles of scientific management to banks operation, particularly in connection with bank services costs and control of the bond accounts, has attracted widespread attention of bankers.

White Allied Chemical was still above 200. It was pointed out here that a very powerful bear clique had been long-aired in the stock and its objective set for below the three-sitting quotation. The bear group was favored by, or perhaps aware of, heavy liquidation taking place in the stock, as confirmed this week by the retirement from the directorate of the representative of one of the former largest stockholding interests.

The bear objective in Allied Chemical was 100, so that with the stock flowing in this price pit nearly from now on will hardly be of concentrated bear character. Difficulty in judging Allied Chemical from an investment standpoint is due to the management's policy of secrecy.

One big New York and Boston investment house says today:

"We have reason to believe that there are grave financial troubles over-hanging the situation. Action of the market by the last two days with rallies late in the afternoon after the delivery hour, showed general recessions in regard to move trouble. Feeling sure that no more bad news of this kind is to come out, we therefore favor more than ever the constructive side of the market. We believe purchases should be made now, as a sharp rally may set in at any moment."

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

A violent selling wave in United States Steel common, which soon freed that stock downward 8 points, was Wall Street's response to the Steel Corporation's quarterly statement, issued after the close of yesterday's market. Support appeared from time to time

All Estimates Out of the Way

Estimates of net earnings by U. S. Steel in the first three months of 1931 had ranged downward from 50 cents to 30 cents a share, but in no responsible circles had it been believed that as low a figure as 25 cents a share would be shown.

Selling Climax Is Suggested

Stock sales in the first half hour totaled 500,000 shares, suggesting the possibility of the "selling climax" which Wall St. has been awaiting. With few exceptions the favorites then either held firmly at the opening price levels, or rallied slightly. With few exceptions, but the rallies at best were feeble

Bethlehem Steel Is Heavily Sold

Bethlehem Steel was heavily sold today, soon dropping around 3 points. Bethlehem's directors will issue their quarterly statement for that corporation tomorrow and stockholders hope for better news than that reported by U. S. Steel. A cut in the dividend rate is expected, and should occasion no embarrassment in the market.

Pennsylvania at New 1931 Low

Pennsylvania Railroad eased fractionally today to another new 1931 low, and New York Central rallied after running off 3 points. Other rails were comparatively quiet most of the session

Jersey Standard Is Well Supported

Standard Oil of New Jersey was well supported in most of today's trading. It refused to give ground and sold in good volume at or near 36¾. The balance of the oil list was inactive

Van Sweringens and Penn. in Pact

Voluntary agreement has been reached by Pennsylvania Railroad and the Van Sweringen interests whereby they will share control of the Virginian Railway under the projected four-party eastern rail merger plan through joint ownership of majority stock, instead of dividing its physical properties as originally contemplated.

Pacific Coast "Distress Selling"

Somewhat heavier pressure against Pacific Lighting was attributed to Pacific Coast "distress selling." The stock is near a price at which sizable investment buying will develop on a scale down.

General Theaters Acts Relieved

Tendency displayed by General Theaters Equipment was taken to mean virtual completion of distress selling resulting from the Skouras failure. Report was current that some readjustment is planned within the company, although confirmation was lacking

It's Now Less Easy to Borrow U. P.

Demand for 1-16th premium to borrow Union Pacific indicates that sizable short interest has been built in this issue.

Union Carbide Sells at New Low

When Union Carbide broke to a new low selling obviously was caused by its first quarter statement which showed earnings of 51 cents a share, against 65-cent quarterly dividend requirement.

Steel Conditions Shown by Action

Temporary conditions in the steel industry were reflected in the action of three large "independents" in reducing their dividends. Inland Steel lowered its dividend to $2.50 from $4; Illinois Steel, to $4 from $7, and Jones & Laughlin, considered one of the most efficient units in the industry, to $2 annually from $4

Earning Reports Comparisons Made

First quarter earnings of 353 corporations which already have issued statements, reports show 37.3 per cent less than in the like period of 1930, a preliminary compilation by Moody's shows. For 132 industrials alone, the decline was 39 per cent.

STEEL DROPS 9 POINTS IN A NEW BREAK

New York, April 29—U. S. Steel sold off over 9 points in Wall st trading today. The market rallied in the last hour, but the late rise petered out near the finish.

The short covering in the last hour had moderated extreme declines of 3 to 8 points in many active stocks today, although the recovery made on the rally was shaded in the fresh selling toward the close

STEEL SLIPS OFF

U. S. Steel broke over 9 points at 115, a new bear low record, but slipped off again in the late dealings. Bethlehem lost 4

Rails and oils were steady. Baltimore & Ohio and Southern Pacific gained 2 points net. Sales exceeded 3,000,000 shares

The market was reactionary on the unexpectedly large decline in earnings of the U. S. Steel Corp to 5 cts a share on common.

Though a dozen or more of the industrial stocks and specialties were among the leaders in the advance in a deluge of selling in the first hour or two, there were many stocks which refused to give ground after the first selling wave passed over

Another 8-point drop in Westinghouse, following its 25-point recession of Monday, was interpreted a further cut in dividend necessitated by the $2,800,000 deficit in the first quarter. It is understood the company held a prolonged meeting here today

AMERICAN CAN OFF

American Can's drop of 8 points was a disappointment to the bulls, as this with a few other blue chips of the list will not be shown the stubborn resistance to selling pressure. Ingersoll Rand fell off ten points to complete a reaction of 67 points on the move

American Telephone & Telegraph lost three points and numerous industrial and Utility favorites declined 3 to 5½ points

Mid-week steel trade reports were fairly satisfactory. Operations in the steel mills declined only fractionally, with a slight increase at Buffalo, Birmingham and Chicago and prices with the exception of scrap holding firm.

News from the automobile and building trades was also encouraging, but discussion of wage cuts among the delegates to the Chamber of Commerce convention at Atlantic City had a disquieting effect on the market

Although U. S. Steel's declaration of its regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a quarter which showed profit of only five cents a share was interpreted in some quarters as indicating that the management does not look for a protracted period of adversity, the shrinkage in earnings was so drastic as to cause doubt, that maintenance of the dividend at the present rate will go through the rest of the year

The most encouraging exhibit in the weekly statistics was the sharp rise of 22,068 cars in the loadings of revenue freight for the week ended April 18. This was substantially larger than the normal seasonal gain, and it was noted Chicago miscellaneous freight and less than carload lots or shipments of general merchandise, were augmentatively higher.

Electric power production for the last week showed a change of trend, and was out 3.1 per cent under last year, against a drop of 4.6 per cent in the previous week

The petroleum statistics were mildly constructive, showing an ineligible gain in crude output. But the allowable flow in East Texas is being increased

BUSINESS GAIN OVER MILLION

Chicago, April 29—Sales by Bendix Aviation for the quarter ended March 31 exceeded by over $1,000,000 the volume of business booked in the final quarter last year, President Vincent Bendix stated today

Profits from the first quarter's business amply covered dividend requirements he stated

"Our expectations are that second quarter business will be even better than that booked in the first quarter," said Mr. Bendix. "Our surveys do not indicate any material increase in stocks of automobiles in the hands of dealers. Sales outlook for Bendix Aviation for the rest of the year is very promising."

Hardware Demand Gains Announced

New York, April 29—Further gains in the hardware demand have registered during the past week, Hardware men report today, with tomorrow in its weekly market summary. While the demand for tools has been more marked in some sections than in others, the national demand has shown general improvement.

Grains Close Mixed in Chicago Market

Chicago, April 29—Grains closed uneven today. Wheat was ⅜c. off to ⅜c. up, corn ⅛c. down to ⅜c. higher and oats ⅛c. lower to ⅜c. up. Final prices for rye were ⅛ to ¼c. off.

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

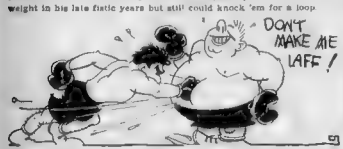
TARRY AWHILE WITH FAT MEN OF SPORT

DON'T THINK that just because a fellow is as fat as Paul Whiteman all he can do is to play the fiddle. Looks sometimes deceive. We once laffed at a fat guy. Never again! Cost us an awful dentist's bill. He knocked out five of our molars. Hit us so hard we never knew whether we swallowed our ivories or spat them out. There's a couple of fat boys making ring history these days who sooner or later will be called upon to display their fistic wares in this neck of the woods. One of 'em is Tony Galento of Newark. The other is Johnny Schwake of St. Louis.

Tony doesn't poosh 'em up. He knocks 'em down. He looks like Fatty Arbuckle. But he hits like Jack Dempsey. He has knocked his last 12 opponents from in under their hats. Squashed them so hard they looked as if he had sat on 'em. His last three fights were in Madison Square Garden. Gotham fistic experts are talking more of Tony's punch than they are his paunch.

MENTION of Dempsey recalls Willie Meehan, the fat boy, who gave the Manassa Mauler more trouble than a ring full of Tunneys. Tommy Burns, world's heavyweight champion, was a rolly-polly fellow. Carl Morris looked like a brewery ad. Sam Langford packed a lot of extra weight in his late fistic years but still could knock 'em for a loop.

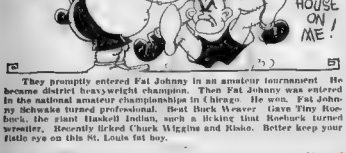


Ray Newman was one of the most deceiving fat boys the ring ever saw. Ray was so fat that he looked as if he couldn't last a round without blowing up and exploding. But ten rounds found him going faster than in the first.

WHEN Young Stribling first fought Newman, the King of the Canebreaks got one look at Ray's tummy and started in. The King of the Canebrakes punched himself army weary on Newman's mid-section. He did the same thing in their second fight. But the third time they met it dawned upon Willie the Clutch that the upholstery around Ray's mid-section might be Harveyized armor. So Strib switched to the jaw and knocked Ray out.

That other fat guy who is making the fistic experts take notice, Johnny Schwake, recently gave Jimmy Risko a walloping. The corporal's guard who recently saw Risko beat King Levinsky here at the Arena know that the Cleveland Rubber Man still has some good fights left in him. So Schwake's victory over Risko should count for something.

Schwake who is only 23 years of age and weighs 287 pounds entered the prize ring by accident. He decided he must reduce. Went to a gymnasium. The gang induced the fat boy to put on the gloves. The onlookers howled. The fellows who Schwake sparred with didn't. They found the fat boy had the kick of a mule.

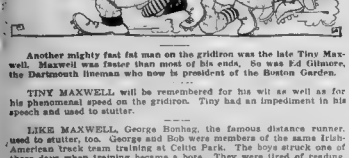


They promptly entered Fat Johnny in an amateur tournament He became district heavyweight champion. Then Fat Johnny was entered in the national amateur championships in Chicago. He won. Fat Johnny Schwake turned professional. Beat Buck Weaver. Gave Tiny Roebuck, the giant Haskell Indian, such a licking that Roebuck turned wrestler. Recently licked Chuck Wiggins and Risko. Better keep your fistic eye on this St. Louis fat boy.

FAT MEN in the ring, while not rarities, are exceptions. Most of them are like Ed Dunkhorst, the Human Freight Car, who once was matched with Bob Fitzsimmons. One punch. Fitz thrust that freckled paw wrist deep in Dunkhorst's mid-section. Ed's tummy wrapped itself around Bob's fist like a wet dish towel. Dunkhorst gave a grunt and a squeal like a dying porker and it all was over.

Some of the fat boys have made their mark in baseball, too. Harry Lumley, the Brooklyn outfielder, was built like a beer barrel—and sometimes was one, for oh what a capacity Harry had for the amber brew—For years was one of the league's leading drinkers. Babe Dottergill, the Detroit outfielder, looked like a circus freak. When Bob raced after a fly the ground quaked. But Bob was some outfielder. Babe Ruth isn't so skinny. You all know Babe. Our own Shanty Hogan of Somerville, mainstay of the Giants behind the bat, is no midget, although this year he has shrunk to a mere 230 pounds.

FAT BOYS on the gridiron have been more the rule than the exception. Princeton never had a better lineman than Big Bill Edwards. Bill Horr Syracuse's All-American tackle, looked like a baby hippopotamus but he was strong as Hercules and fast as a streak. We once saw Bill carry the whole Carlisle team for 40 yards with Jim Thorpe one of the tacklers who tried in vain to stop him. With the aid of a flying start, Horr once beat Jack Eller, national sprint champion, in a 100.



Another mighty fast fat man on the gridiron was the late Tiny Maxwell. Maxwell was faster than most of his ends. So was Ed Gilmore, the Dartmouth lineman who now is president of the Boston Garden.

TINY MAXWELL will be remembered for his wit as well as for his phenomenal speed on the gridiron. Tiny had an impediment in his speech and used to stutter.

LIKE MAXWELL, George Bonhag, the famous distance runner, used to stutter, too. George and Bob were members of the same Irish-American track team training at Celtic Park. The boys struck one of those days when training became a bore. They were tired of reading playing cards singing. Didn't know what to do with themselves. Maxwell, reclining his ponderous bulk in a hammock, was twanging on a ukulele.

"S-s-say f-f-f-fellows," he queried. "W-w-w-want to h-h-have some f-f-fun?"

"Yes," chorused all hands. "What'll we do?"

Maxwell answered with a grin.

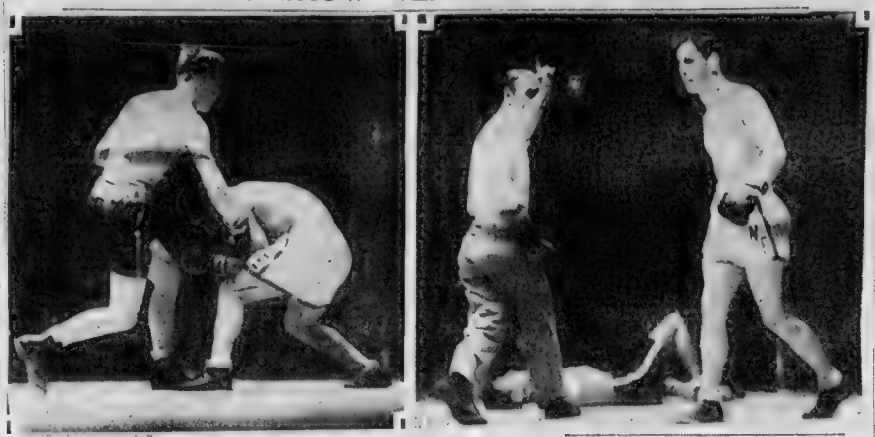
BOSTON BOXERS SHOW CLASS IN N. Y. AMATEUR TILTS



Bill Steward, Detroit. Joe Pacino, Boston.

BOSTON BOY TAKES ONE

Ben Ahakuela, Honolulu. Steve Salek, Boston.

STALEY WINS BY K. O.

SURETTE STAR OF NATIONAL TOURNEY

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, April 28—A young human thunderbolt was hurled into the amateur heavyweight mob at Madison Square Garden tonight in the person of Henry Surrette of Boston.

Henry swarmed up and down a black beanpole named Jesse Caldwell of Akron, O., like a steeplejack going up a flagstaff, finally climbing high enough to reach Jesse's chin with a right-hand punch.

Down went Jess, his long legs flopping feebly in the rain dust, while 10,000 pop-eyed ringworms, some of whom were half delirious from watching the national championship bouts of the A. A. U. since 5 o'clock in the afternoon, raised a hoarse yell.

The time, 26 seconds of the first round.

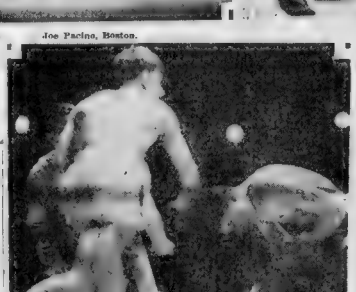
Around the ring dashed Col John S. Hammond of Madison Sq Garden squealing: "That's the greatest kid I've seen in a long time."

Out of the remote recesses of the Garden popped half a dozen professional managers, to rush down to the boxing pavilion, inquiring "Who's got that guy?"

Well, who do you suppose has got him?

No one but your old friend, the portly Daniel Carroll, of Boston, manager of Edward James Janoney, Honeyboy Finnegan, Napoleon Jack Doyval and numerous other gladiators.

Surrette is Daniel's heavyweight hope of the future. Of course he isn't through the nationals yet, but he looks pretty good, and he put on one of the most sensational fights on the program of 44 bouts that lasted from tea-time to past midnight's witching hour.



Joe Ferranti, Boston. Carl Menza, Buffalo.

Burger to Hurl for Huskies Today

The Northeastern baseball nine seeks its fourth victory of the season against Colby at Huntington Field this afternoon. The Huskies have three dependable hurlers to send in against Colby, Luke Carlett, Joe McMullen and Phil Burger. Burger is the likely choice.

Bucky Lawless to Fight Thompson

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—Bucky Lawless of Syracuse, N. Y., has been matched to meet Young Jack Thompson, World's welterweight champion, in a 10-round non-title fight at the Chicago Stadium, May 8.

Amateurs Excel

By GEORGE E. PHAIR

How dear to my heart are the amateur scrappers,
Who wallop each other with vehement slaps,
They differ so much from the staffers and slappers,
Who split their fat purses with guinnee and thing.

I'm weary of massive professional fakers,
Of monstrous palookas whose feet weigh a ton.
I'm strong for the bakers and candlestick makers,
And plumbers and truckmen who battle for fun.

The amateur scrappers,
The ironbound scrappers,
The innocent scrappers,
Who battle for fun.

Fleet Favorite to Win Quarter-Mile

By BILL CONNELL

Donald Fleet of Boston College will make his first individual Boston appearance of the year when he races in the quarter-mile of the Greater Boston intercollegiate track games at the Stadium on Friday and Saturday.

Fleet, who ran into national prominence this winter by covering a half mile in one minute, 53 and a fraction seconds while running a leg of a B C two-mile relay, was restricted by Coach Jack Ryder to relay running.

That experience give Fleet the race seasoning he lacked and now he should be ready to step after individual honors in the college track world.

Ryder has made of Fleet not merely a fine college runner, but a real prospect for the 1932 Olympics. The college games in the Stadium will give the fans a chance to see how well the fleet Eagle shapes up in fast competition now.

Vernon Munroe of Harvard, a great quarter-miler a year ago before he sustained the foot injury which kept him out of the college championship games, may give Fleet some competition if the Crimson star runs in the quarter.

Francis Shea, one of the fastest runners ever to represent Northeastern, is another runner who has the ability to stay up with Fleet and the rest of the pack for the most of the 440 struggle.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The Braves' reign at the top of the heap lasted but a day. The Phils put them up and then knocked them down. But the Tribe is not so far back that it can't regain the roof.

As a matter of fact, the Watson [illegible] riors have a half-game advantage over the leaders as far as games won and lost are concerned. Having won three more and lost two more than St. Louis and Chicago, but the natives are eight points back in the percentage column, and thats whot counts in baseball.

Tomorrow the Braves will move into New York for a three-game series with the Giants. They should find the going much rougher in the Polo Grounds than they have at any time since leaving the Tropics. But with Brandt, Zachary and Seibold ever down to pitch a game, they stand a fine chance of walking off with the edge.

The Tribe's future would shape up a lot brighter if one of the other four starting pitchers would show the form Zachary, Seibold and Brandt have thus far. Cantwell Frankhouse, Cunningham and Sherdel have been of little value up to now.

Three winning pitchers are enough to keep the Tribe in the race for quite a while, but at least one more will be needed when double-header days roll around if the club is to remain a leg contender.

Maybe by that time, though, one or more of the flingers who don't look so good at this writing, will be winning consistently. Or Judge Fuchs may have succeeded in getting that one more good hurler he has been seeking for weeks. Hub fans certainly hope so, for they want something to cheer about this summer.

Charlie Berry, Red Sox catcher, is recovering rapidly from the attack of tonsilitis which has kept him confined to his room since last Saturday and expects to be back in uniform before the end of the week. Until he returns, Muddy Ruel and Eddie Connolly will divide the receiving duties.

Ruel, incidentally, is going to be honored by the St. Anne's Parochial Club of Lawrence tomorrow evening. The veteran catcher of the Red Sox should be right at home among the gathering of citizens of Greater Lawrence who comprise the membership of the club, as he can qualify in that group.

Boston Evening American Baseball Album

WILLIAM RICHARD DEEGAN.

Braves' infielder.
Born New York city, 1904.
Height, 5 feet, 7 inches.

Played on New York and Philadelphia sandlot teams for two years before signing with Cambridge, Eastern Shore League in 1925. His batting average of .329 secured him a job with Haverhill in the New England League in '26 and he hit .351.

Starting in '27, he played four seasons in the infield for Springfield in the Eastern League and he batted, respectively, .300, .316, .321 and .344.

His great stick work caused the Braves to draft him at the close of last season. He was the only player in the circuit to be drafted by a major league club.

He has done no playing for the Tribe as yet, but is available for duty at second, third or shortstop.

SUNDAY SPORTS FOR PENN.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 29 (CB)—Advocates of Sunday sports in Pennsylvania won their first important legislative victory in 12 years last night.

The House of Representatives passed and amended bill permitting municipalities to decide for themselves on the question of permitting baseball on Sunday.

The bill is to come up for final passage Monday and then will go to Governor Pinchot. Final passage was conceded tonight even by the opponents.

The Senate is largely in favor of Sunday sports. Governor Pinchot may veto the bill, but plans are under way already to pass it over his veto.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, home of three big league ball teams, are so much in favor of Sunday baseball that passage of the bill will insure big league games in those cities on Sunday.

SHAKE-UP IN YALE CREW

Derby, Ct., April 29—Coach E. Leader of the Yale crews put into effect a sweeping shakeup that is sued both the varsity boats which will face Columbia and Pennsylvania on the Harlem on Saturday, in the opening races of the Yale season.

Bill Garnsey and Jimmy Urquhart, sophomores who have been in the varsity boat practically all season, and Charley Goodyear, a third varsity oarsman last year who has also been in the varsity shell most of the season, were today put down to the junior varsity shell.

Everett Esselstyn of New York, Rhreedge Currie of Detroit and Sheldon Foster of Bridgeport, were promoted to seats in the varsity and are expected to be members of the crew on Saturday.

Carlo Will Box in I.-A. Amateur Show

Frank Carlo, young heavyweight from Everett, one of the most promising of the "pure" flock developed this year will try to smash his way through the division when the Irish-American A. C. stages its weekly amateur boxing tourney Friday night at the Boston Arena.

Classes include 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds, and heavyweights and all are well filled with entries. In the heavy class there are six entrants, Carlo, Al Gryson, Boston; Jim McLean, South Boston; Roger Ones, Boston; Howard Range, North Easton, and Sam O'Hara, Peabody.

Plansky Captures Handball Title

George Plansky of South Boston now is Eastern A. A. U. outdoor handball champion, last night annexed the indoor crown when he defeated Morris Rubin of the Y M C U in the final match of the title tournament, played at the Paris st gymnasium, East Boston.

The match was close and exciting throughout, with Plansky taking the first game, 21-20, and the second, 21-15.

Strangler Wins

Chicago, April 29—Ed Strangler Lewis tonight defeated Jean Le Duca of France, throwing him twice in less than 10 minutes.

B.C. GROUP ASKED MAYOR TO LIFT BAN

The Dartmouth-Stanford football game this fall will be played in the Harvard Stadium on November 28.

Mayor James M. Curley last night granted Dartmouth and Stanford permission to use the Stadium on that date following a consultation with Edward A. McLaughlin, Jr., president of the Boston College Alumni Association, in which McLaughlin requested the mayor to reconsider his former decision forbidding the playing of the game in Boston on that day.

Mr. McLaughlin's statement at City Hall read as follows:

"I have just had a conference with Harry Hennage, supervisor of athletics at Dartmouth College, and William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard University. Both Mr. Bingham and Mr. Hennage expressed to me their sincere regret that the scheduling of the Dartmouth-Stanford game at the Stadium had created a situation which under any condition might prove embarrassing to Boston College.

"They both assured me that if the question of any interference with the annual Boston College-Holy Cross game had occurred to them the matter would have been handled in a way which would have prevented the present unfortunate conflict.

"The Boston College Alumni Association felt that it would not be right to deprive lovers of football an opportunity to witness this classic which would have been the case if Dartmouth and Stanford were not allowed to play in Harvard Stadium on November 28.

"I therefore request Your Honor to reconsider the letter sent to Mr. Bingham under the date of April 16, 1931.

"Edward A. McLaughlin, Jr."

Mayor Curley Acts on Suggestion

Acting on this request the mayor definitely put an end to the Stanford-Dartmouth - Harvard - Boston College-Holy Cross scramble which has been the center of public interest for the last two weeks since Mayor Curley refused to allow the Indians and Stanford to use the Harvard Stadium on November 28, the date of the annual Boston College-Holy Cross game at Fenway Park.

Mr. McLaughlin, Mr. Heneage and Mr. Bingham met earlier in the day after the arrival of Heneage from Hanover. Then late in the afternoon they conferred with Mayor Curley at the City Hall where the permission for the game was granted.

As a result Boston fans will have the opportunity to watch not one but two grid classics on the same day, Dartmouth and Stanford in the Stadium and Boston College and Holy Cross at Fenway Park.

John P. Curley, the graduate manager of athletics at Boston College, announced previously that the B. C.-H. C. game would be played in Boston on its regular date no matter what decision should be reached. The contract for the game had already been signed and the date settled, whether or not Dartmouth and Stanford played in the Stadium.

LAWRENCE FANS FETE RUEL

Harold "Muddy" Ruel, barrister-catcher of the Red Sox, will be feted by St. Anne's Parochial Club of Lawrence on the occasion of their 17th annual banquet on tomorrow evening.

"Muddy" will be accompanied by Joe Cronin of the Washington Senators, his former teammate, who was voted the "most valuable player" in the American League last year.

Among those who will be on hand to hear "Muddy" orate are the mayor of Lawrence and the members of the City Council, Congressman William P. Connery, Dist. Atty. Hugh Cregg of Essex County and other notables. Alfred Courtemanche, president of the club, heads the reception committee.

GEORGE AND ZARYNOFF READY FOR MAT TEST

PAIR BATTLE TOMORROW AT ARENA

By JACK CONWAY

Ed George, still claiming the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, and Count Zarynoff are both in Boston today ready for their finish match, but two falls out of three, which will be held at the Arena tomorrow night under the direction of Paul Bowser.

George appeared to be in excellent physical condition. The eye trouble, which caused him to be temporarily blind during his recent engagement with Strangler Lewin on the coast, has cleared up. In future Ed says he will not take on any opponent unless he is in the best possible physical condition.

This will be George's first appearance in a Boston ring since he conquered Nick Lutze in a contest held at the Arena. George says he will give the fans as much action as he did in his meeting with Lutze.

George is also ready to give Gus Sonnenberg a return bout provided the former Dartmouth football hero keeps on winning.

Jack Conway

Lutze and DiGlane in Semi-Final

Nick Lutze and Henry DiGlane have been signed to meet in the semifinal, which will be decided in one fall. There is a 45-minute limit to this match.

Al Morelli, Boston College star will also appear on the Arena card. Bowser has been trying to get a suitable opponent for Morelli, and expects to close the proposed match today.

Frank Carlo to Compete in Amateur Show

Frank Carlo, Everett heavyweight, has been signed for the heavyweight class at the Irish-American A. C. show, which will be held at the Arena on Friday night. There will be contests at 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

The Irish-American A. C. plans to pit the winners of this spring tourney against the victors of the national boxing championships to be a show to be staged here next month.

Mello Opens Training for Brouillard Bout

Bobby Goldman called this writer on the telephone and imparted the information that Al Mello has started training for his 10-round bout with Lou Brouillard which will be held in the Boston Garden on May 18.

Mello believes that his experience and body punches will give him the margin in his meeting with Brouillard.

Morro and Morris in New York Bout

Al Morro, Coast heavyweight who was purchased by Jack Blackey and Johnny Buckley from Jim Jeffries, will take on Frank Morris in a 10-round bout in New York on May 15. Morris is the Armory champion in New York State.

Garden to Settle N. E. Title Disputes

Matchmaker Billy Ames of the Boston Garden held a meeting for today to determine what is the best plan to use in battling for the seven championship belts which were put up by the Garden almost two years ago.

"I believe it would help boxing here to have a leader in each class," declared Ames. "The Garden does not insist that the title bouts all be staged under its direction. We are not so much concerned in who promotes the contests as we are in seeing they are held.

Clark Nine Defeats Wesleyan, 14 to 8

Worcester, April 29—Bunching hits and making use of seven errors, Clark defeated Wesleyan, 14 to 8, here yesterday.

What the Stars Did

By the Associated Press

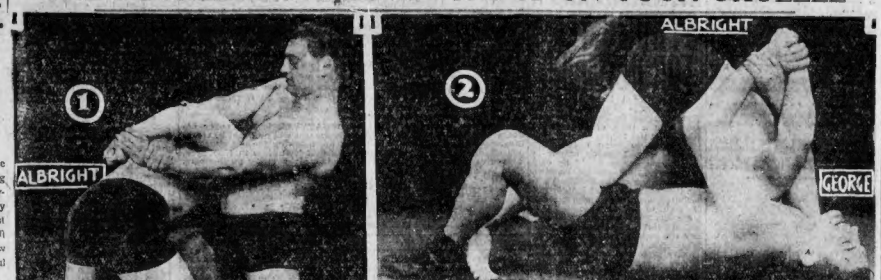
Bill Cissell, White Sox third baseman, hit his club's first homer of season to beat Detroit 6 to 5.

Harry Rice, Senators—Tripled and scored in ninth inning to tie Yankees at 7-7.

Ruphie Crits, Giants—Made two out of four hits granted by Watson Clark and scored winning run as Giants beat Brooklyn 5-3.

Burleigh Grimes, Cardinals—Pitched Cards into top for fifth place by scattering Pittsburgh hits for 8-3 triumph.

THE DOUBLE WRIST LOCK---TRY IT ON YOUR UKULELE



THIS HOLD MAKE S MATMEN WILD

Jamaica Handicaps

By ED CURLEY

The Jamaica Handicap with $4000 added will be the feature this afternoon at the Jamaica course. This is a six-furlong whirl and a few very fast sprinters are mentioned as starters. Panetian may gather in the honors.

The colt has been doing wonderful work around the Maryland tracks and clicking off six furlongs in remarkable time. He is a front runner and will be hard to catch.

THIRD RACE—Jamaica Handicap; three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs.

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.	Fr. Odds
Panetian	111	Raby	2-1
Allock Majesty	116	Meek	5-2
Sun Jelly	102	Madley	4-1
Judge Schilling	113	Kelsay	4-1
Veritas	114	Kummer	6-1
Fets	109	Pascuma	8-1
Misty	116	Garner	8-1
nCee entry.

FIRST RACE—Three-year-olds; six furlongs.

Horse.	Wt.	Jockey.	Fr. Odds
Single Star	115	Calrnes	6-5
Meresart	108	Munden	6-1
Chaeo	114	Gilbert	6-1
Golden Arch	114	Pascuma	8-1
Star Sun	109	Meek	10-1
Gildella	107	Mack	20-1

Single Star may win the opening event. This appears to be a duel of speed between Single Star and Meresart. The former is gamer, and that will tell in the final struggle. Meresart cannot be worse than second. Charon looks best for the show money.

SECOND RACE—Three-year-olds; maidens; one mile and seventy yards.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Toy	115	Kringe	3-1
Mowris	112	Kummer	3-1
Cyclo	113	G. Rose	4-1
Sidney G.	112	Greenberg	6-1

Quick March	118	Garner	10-1
Uncle Aldus	118	Watts	15-1
Lisa B.	110	Forman	15-1

FOURTH RACE—Flatbush Handicap; three-year-olds and upward; one mile and a furlong.

Horse	Wt.	Jockey	Fr. Odds
Finallist	126	McAtee	4-5
Rimbaud	110	Kelsay	3-1

DEATH TAKES EX-SOX OWNER

town musician, was made in February.

In his prime as a player, in the 90's, with the old Cleveland and St. Louis Nationals, McAleer was regarded as the greatest centerfielder in the game. He was a good hitter and exceptionally fast. He first became famous with Cleveland in 1890, when Pat Tebeau was manager of the club.

After piloting the first St. Louis American League club, serving as a right-hand man of Ban Johnson in the new circuit's organization, and then piloting Washington in 1910-11, McAleer became a part owner and president of the Boston Red Sox, who were world's champions in 1912.

A year later McAleer was understood to have received $100,000 for his stock in the Red Sox in the deal which put control into the hands of Joseph J. Lanain.

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—Within the short space of one month and two days, four of the powerful figures in the world of major league baseball have passed on. All of them were Ohioans.

Ernest Bargeld Barnard, president of the American League, was the first. He died suddenly from a heart attack at Rochester, Minn., March 27. He was followed the next day by Byron Bancroft Johnson, organizer of the league and storm center of baseball for many years, who died after a long illness at St. Louis. August "Garry" Herrman, former chairman of the exiliest National League baseball commission and former owner of the Cincinnati Reds, was the next. His death came last Saturday after a year's illness.

Today, James R. "Jimmy" McAleer, one of the organizers of the American League, died at Youngstown, O. McAleer was former manager of the St. Louis and Washington American League clubs.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

The theory of shifting the weight to the right leg in the back swing is wrong from the beginning because it begins with a wrong mental conception of the golfing action. Who can expect to swing a club well if his mind has not been planned and pictured the action correctly? The thought of shifting the weight creates the mental picture of shoving over, or of projecting the hips toward the right, or involves some other manner of moving the body over. "Lateral hip action" still another version of it, is being a method often ascribed to expert players who would, if you asked them personally, assure you they would have nothing to do with it. If the mind sees such motions as constituting the golf swing you may be sure the body will be certain so to act. Moving over in some manner or other does appear to make the action easier for the beginner, but this seeming ease is deceptive. The vertical axis method, with right leg stiffened and head still, is easier and more comfortable in the end.

So. Shore Country Club One of Best in State

By BILL GRIMES

After years of expensive development, the South Shore Country Club is now one of the most attractive and pleasing courses to play in this section of New England.

The South Shore Country Club was started soon after the war and was originally a nine-hole layout. There is no more natural course in the country. The contour is ideal for golf. Although there is not a flat hole on the course, there are no overtaxing, steep hills for the players to negotiate.

At the start, the South Shore Country Club was recognized as one of the most trying courses in this neighborhood. The fairways, for the most part, were narrow and as the treasury was not healthy enough to warrant the expense of clearing out the rough, South Shore was given a black eye from which it is only now recovering.

The South Shore Country Club was developed along sound business plans. A budget was established for course improvements and lived up to. Therefore, the development was slow and a few of the members became discouraged, but a large majority had faith in South Shore and are now beginning to reap their reward.

SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

There is a very noticeable improvement in the South Shore courses annually. There were a number of poor areas on the course which were criticized by both members and guests, such as the large sandy surface half way down the fifth fairway, and the other in front of the fourteenth tee.

These areas were top-dressed and seeded a year ago, and they face come on far better and more quickly than the most optimistic members predicted. There is a fine surface now at the fifth and a good catch of grass at the fourteenth.

According to the latest plans, the 14th hole will be a two shotter within a couple of seasons. The plans call for a new tee, which will be located up by the present 5th tee and the hole will be a dog-leg to the right. It will be possible for the long hitters to drive over the trees as the prevailing wind will be a following one.

The South Shore Country Club has increased its membership this spring. At the annual meeting last winter, it was voted to install a new scale of membership dues, which met with a healthy response. Family membership, with full playing privileges, is now only $100.00, one half to be paid at the time the application is accepted and the balance on July 1st. Since the new scale was inaugurated, 42 new members have joined and as soon as the devotees of the game realize the economical advantages of a South Shore membership, the entire quota will be filled.

Only 15 miles from the centre of Boston, the South Shore Country Club is ideally situated. Via the Old Colony Boulevard, South Shore is only a half hour drive over State roads.

Pres. Kimball Has Done Great Job

Pres. James H. Kimball is more than any one member responsible for the growth of the West Hingham club. There is a spirit of goodfellowship at South Shore which is rarely exhibited at any country club. The majority of the members are out of towners from Weymouth, Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Boston but there are a number of Hinghamites in the club.

There is no club in this vicinity in better playing condition than South Shore. Al Vickory, the greenskeeper, has outdone himself this spring. Every green is in midsummer condition and the fairways have come in better than at any time in the history of the club. South Shore is one of the very few clubs whose greens were not winter killed. There is not the slightest sign of brown patches on any greens and as the fairways were not cut until last week they are exceptionally healthy, and it will now be possible to play wood shots off them this season.

There are no better fairways on any course than the 1st, 9th, 10th and 18th, and according to Al Vickory the entire layout will be on a par with the present outstanding ones within a few seasons.

Fred Alden, who has been chairman of the greens committee for years, has been a tireless worker for South Shore. He has worked with Al Vickory, and they have performed wonders with a layout which many of the so-called experts predicted could never be developed into a worthwhile golf course.

SOMERVILLE TO PLAY MALDEN

Charley Dickerman will send his fast Somerville baseball team against the Malden high nine this afternoon at Dilboy Field, Somerville, in one of the best school conflicts of this week.

Both teams are strong. Somerville has a good infield with Mahan at first, David on second, Vitelli at third and McNamara at short. Danny Lynch is Somerville's star pitcher but he may be saved for the important Suburban League game of Saturday with Brookline. Somerville has won four games this season, while dropping one to the Lynn English club.

American-National Loops Tie for Homers

Chicago, April 29 (AP)—A more liberal interpretation on home runs in the American league has enabled the junior circuit to tie the National league in the production of four-base wallops.

Last year the National league produced 492 home runs to 473 for the American league, but to date each league has 41 each.

At the pre-season American league conference it was decided to count a home run when the ball went out of the park in "fair territory." Previously a home run was counted only when the ball landed in "fair territory."

WINCHESTER DROPS TO 7TH PLACE

	Points Won	Lost
Commonwealth	31	14
Wollaston	30	15
Charles River	21½	14½
Country Club	21	15
Brae Burn	21	15
Woodland	19	16½
Winchester	16	20
Oakley	15½	20½
Belmont Spring	11½	24½
Weston	14	23

Commonwealth took the lead in the Boston four-ball league yesterday while Brae Burn dropped back into a tie for fourth, and Winchester, which had set the pace in the opening matches, is now seventh, eight points behind the leaders.

Commonwealth's present leadership is due to its 15-point victory over Belmont Spring.

The Commonwealth Club won every match but the top one yesterday and four of them by clean-cut margins. Winslow and Brackett started the parade against Morse and Kemble, and Keefe and Brackett kept it going by demolishing Stewart and Nichols. Donovan and Fogg dovetailed neatly in scoring the third three-point sweep, and Dolan and Blood shared in the fourth.

Wollaston was about the only team in the league that succeeded in reproducing its opening form, winning 10 to 8 from Woodland and thus clinging to a tie for second place.

Sharing the runner-up bracket at the moment is Charles River, which yesterday handed Weston the most conclusive drubbing of all, scoring 18 points and losing only two.

The Country Club and Brae Burn are in another deadlock for fourth.

Cameronian Wins 2000-Guinea Race

Newmarket, Eng., April 29 (AP) —Cameronian today won the classic 2000 guineas with Goyescas second and Orphen third.

Cameronian, owned by J. A. Dewar, won by two lengths with three separating the second and third horses. The horse was an outsider in the betting at 8 to 1 and Goyescas at 8 to 1 and Orpen 18 to 1.

Racing Nets $22,335 For Unemployed

Pimlico, Md., April 29—General Manager Matthias L. Dalger of the Maryland Jockey Club today gave out the following statement regarding money raised yesterday for Maryland's unemployment fund:

DOUBLE BILLS AHEAD FOR RED SOX

By JOE CASHMAN

Double-headers are piling up rapidly for the Red Sox. Home only a week, they already have five twin bills listed, four with the Athletics and one with the Yankees.

When rain halted today's scheduled game at the Fens, the Mackmen completed a two-game town during which they weren't able to even put on their uniforms, and they lost one leaving for home.

This New England weather certainly does some strange tricks. It ought to be getting better every day at this time of the year, instead it is getting worse.

The Braves opened here two weeks ago and had eight days of perfect weather. The Fenway Dock opening a week ago Monday has been able to play only three of eight scheduled games.

Last week the same conditions prevailed. The Sox were first in town and enjoyed fine weather. The Tribe came home and had four games with the Giants and a couple with the Phils rained out.

The Sox have had all clear days, except last Sunday, but the players and the few fans who would have attended would have contracted pneumonia had any of the postponed tilts been played.

The Fenway box office is suffering plenty these days as a result of these postponements, but eventually both the management and team should profit by them.

Bargain bills in warm weather with the Yanks and A's furnishing the opposition will draw big crowds and the local club should fare better against these rivals later on than at present.

Sox Hurlers Ought to Improve Later

The Sox have eight first class pitchers but few of them are in top form at this writing. They all figure to be traveling on high when these postponed games are played and it is certain that neither the Athletics nor Yanks will have as much mound strength at that time, for neither has more than four reliable flingers.

The Solons were runners-up in the American League race last year and they are expected to be as well if not better, this season.

The Mackmen, who have faced them seven times and beaten them four times to date, are of the opinion that the boys from the capital aren't as strong as they were in '30. The pitching isn't as good as it was a year back, according to the champions.

Washington Looks Stronger This Year

So that as it may, the Washington entry looks a mite stronger on paper today than it did starting last year's race.

For one thing, Heinie Manush, star outfielder and hitter, is with them and going great guns. He wasn't secured from the Browns until the '30 campaign was several weeks old and then suffered an injury which kept him out of action for quite a spell.

For another, Big Fred "Firpo" Marberry is apparently right again and when he is, there are few better pitchers in the game. He, too, was on the shelf for quite a long time last summer.

Sam Rice and Joe Judge, of course, are a year older, and that counts both of these young old men are performing as well as ever.

Shortstop Joe Cronin, voted the most valuable player in the league last season, shaped up as even more valuable both at bat and field and Sammy West, Buddy Myer, Oscar Bluege, Ray Spencer and the rest of the gang never looked better.

The loss of Manager and Marberry probably cost the club the flag last year. If this pair and the rest escape injury this season, Johnson crew should make a great bid for the title.

Mexican President Receives Cup Team

Mexico City, April 29 (AP)—The American Davis Cup team which is to play Mexico in the zone matches opening here May 7 will be received this afternoon by President Portis Rubio, at Chapultepec Castle.

The players, Frank Shields, Wilmer Allison, and Sidney Wood, have been practicing for the matches in their arrival last Thursday, and said today they were overcoming the effects of the altitude and would be in good shape for the games.

Braves Release Pitcher Dunlap

One by one the Braves are getting rid of their surplus material, and yesterday it fell to the lot of Dunlap, former Providence pitcher and later on an outfielder with the Tribesmen, to be sent upon his way. Dunlap was released outright to Kansas City, and probably will be used in the outfield instead of upon the rubber.

Johnny Farrell on Golf

By JOHNNY FARRELL
(Former American Open Champion)
As Told to A LAN GOULD

I HAD a pretty good swing as a kid golfer, for a skinny young Irishman who didn't know much about the game.

I listened to Tom Kerrigan at Siwanoy, where I caddied and worked in the shop before becoming an assistant pro. I listened to my older brother, Jim, but secretly I thought I knew as much about golf as they did. I wasn't impressed by much but myself in those days.

If there is anything out of my experience worth passing on now gratuitie me before the final round and ask what I would do as champion.

It was fatal. I took a bad 76, so did Willie and Jones shot a 74 to tie Macfarlane, who won the playoff.

After two more years of finishing close, the 1928 tournament came along and I won when I least expected to. I played the first two rounds with Jones and trailed him by seven strokes. The pairings were changed and nobody paid any more attention to me.

Before the start of the final day's 36 holes, however, Gene Sarazen told me. "This looks like a day anything can happen. Go on in there and do something."

I never thought of that day—or the next. I went around almost alone, shot 71-72 and finished with a 294 that Jones tied after slipping to 77 on his last round. I thought we were both licked and Roland Hancock came along needing only a 5-5 on the last two holes to win, but he blew a pair, 6-6.

Jones and I were still tied after 35 holes of our playoff the next day. I had a 7-foot putt to win on the 36th hole. I took a look at it and said to myself, "John, this is the one. Look how big that hole is." It was "in" all the way and the first thing I heard was a whoop from Gene Sarazen.

Tomorrow—The Grip

Missed Greatest Chance at Worcester in 1925

I missed my greatest chance in 1925 at Worcester. After a 69 in the third round, I was tied with Willie Macfarlane and Bobby Jones by three strokes. I felt sure I could beat Willie and so did most everyone else. They began to con-moulded after her father's, had a lightning beauty that darted into it and played around her eyes and her lips. A straight brown slab of a girl, with a brilliant sort of Jeanne d'Arc directness to her eyes, which were surrounded by a medieval-looking curtain of straight brown bob.

There was rankling, in some terror at the moment, in Jennifer's mind, which had stayed with great lavishness in the garish-amphitheatre of the Connecticut estate, was through some mysterious leak about to find its way into notorious publicity.

More Trouble

Hang it all! she had been lured into the thing chiefly because it had given her an opportunity to try her hand at what she secretly suspected in herself to be a talent for lyrical writing.

"Well, father," she improvised to her mirror, "it's come to this between you and me; has been coming to this between you and me since you popped me into a world I didn't ask to be popped into. I'm no nincompoop. You'd see to it that a daughter of yours wasn't. But I'm tired of being treated like one. I'm finished. If you want to throw me a million or two to save me from being engaged to Lancelot Hussy, I'm not too proud to accept it.

In Revolt

"If you don't, and since I'm not made of the stuff you seem to think your daughter should be made of, I'm through, savvy, and I'll go off and write a dirty play, and show up the whole wretched business of life as it is. I loved behind the tessellated walls of the million-dollar Rarick mansion that I built out of bricks. If the walls aren't tessellated, they ought to be.

"I'll give them a megaphone-fut that they'll remember. I'll tell the story of how somebody took a couple of hairpins and bent them into a couple of frowns and stuck them into sour dough and made a little man who lived in all marble halls that kept him looking like a dwarf, and who would have thoughtithe was Napoleon, if he had quite the nerve, but who only got as far as owning everything in the world he could lay his hands on that had belonged to Napoleon or was about Napoleon.

"I'll tell the world about this little man who got so rich on needles and pins that he hated himself—and his family. I'll tell the world, damn it! I'll tell . . ."

Jennifer herself as she ran down the hall toward the library, but not without pausing to snatch up a spangled scarf to throw across the back of her dinner gown, and to step out on to inch above the waist line, where a topaz buckle bit softly to the flesh.

ENGLAND HAS A STRONG TEAM FOR OLYMPICS

London, April 29 (INS)—Great Britain will be represented at the Olympic games in Los Angeles next year with a team of at least 100 athletes, if not 150.

Replying to rumors in many quarters that Britain's efforts in next year's games would be only half-hearted, Sir Harold Bowden, new chairman of the British Olympic Council stated that Britain will definitely send the strongest possible team to Los Angeles.

Sir Harold, a millionaire bicycle manufacturer, has assumed personally the task of raising the necessary funds, estimated at $100,000.

"We must send our insular attitude toward international sports," declared Sir Harold. "We must remember that we can maintain the respect of the world for our sportsmanship only if we make it among the ability to win as well as to lose."

NINE TEAMS IN HUB LEAGUE

The Hub Twi League was launched on its second season last night when the managers met and voted for a nine club circuit to include Newton Upper Falls, the Hopedales of Allston, Somerville City Club, St. Augustines of South Boston a d Revere A. A., all members of the loop last year and the new additions, the Boston Tigers, the Cambridge City Team, the Markson Brothers' team of Lynn and the Forest Hills A. A.

Manager John Sullivan of the new Cambridge team will play home games at Thorndike Field, Cambridge and the addition of his club is expected to build up a close rivalry with the Somerville City Club at Allston.

Walter Nelson, former Hyde Park manager, will handle the new Forest Hills A. A. team and will have practically the same ball team he had last year which was considered one of the best teams in the circuit.

B. U. Students Give Cochrane Desk Set

An onyx desk set was presented Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, Philadelphia Athletics catcher and former Boston University athlete, yesterday when he was the guest of the Undergraduate Council of officers' Training Corps at the South Armory, Irvington st.

The presentation was made about 600 students passed in review before Cochrane, his manager, Connie Mack, and Academy officers of the Athletics. Lieut.-Col. Ganoe introduced Connie Mack.

Bay State Boys on Vermont Track Team

Saxtons River, Vt., April 29—Coach Warren Thamarus of Vermont Academy has issued his call for candidates for the outdoor track squad.

Phil Toolin of Leominster, Mass., will divide his time between baseball and hurdling for the track team. Bill Whelton of Boston, Mass., is also a leading candidate for the hurdles.

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Survey with a view to making improvements on channels in Weymouth Fore River has been authorized and ordered by the War Department of the United States.

This action follows a hearing in Boston conducted before the United States district engineer on the need of improvements.

Movement for the improvement was started by the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce which presented data showing traffic increase in the river.

STORM-BOUND SHIPS

Several storm bound ships caught in the northwesterly gale reached the harbor yesterday. Twelve hours late the British motorship Cingalese Prince from the Far East and Mediterranean ports arrived with five passengers and cargo. Held back by the gale, the steamer Mayari of the United Fruit Co. came in with several passengers and a sugar cargo. Tied up 36 hours at quarantine, the Cunard liner Lancastria set out for New York after leaving local passengers.

IMMIGRATION

Investigation of the claims of fishing companies in Gloucester and Newport that they must have workers from the Maritime Provinces to man hand lines and for trap fishing will be made by Miss Anna C. M. Tillinghast, U. S. Commissioner of Immigration for this district. This was announced following a conference with Carl Robe White, assistant secretary of the U. S. Department of Labor, and Mrs. Tillinghast. She will report and recommend to the Washington authorities and they will take final action on her reports and recommendations in granting or denying fishing companies the right to hire seasonal help. Ban was put on by immigration authorities recently upon this type of labor.

Crossed Paths

ENTERING the inn one evening to buy a drink and hear rumors of the local gossip, ere going up to my room, I was suddenly face to face with a very broad, tall, strong man whose hard face, cruel mouth, and broken, flattened nose were vaguely familiar.

Luckily, he was glancing at the evening paper, and I had plenty of time in which to pull myself together, decide upon my course of action, and remember the invaluable histrionic teachings of Mr. and Mrs. Williams H. Williams.

And then was played an thrilling a little scene—with a thread of comedy in it, grimness—if any in the tragic drama of my quest. For, ere long, Chink Dorson was warily and cunningly questioning me as to the character, reputation, habits, mode of life, comings and goings, of Squire Theophilus Webb of Witherby End—his future victim, Sister Spider Schiltz!

Yes, I was actually being cross-examined by Chink Dorson, prize-fighter, burglar and gunman, whose unerring, animal brain and cold determined courage had brought him to the top of his profession as the right-hand man of the notorious Englishman, Doc Simon.

Who was 17 . . . Oh, just a very ordinary middle-class Englishman, spending a Witherby End for some fishing. Hadn't tried it here before, but should certainly come again.

Yes, Squire Webb had the rights and was very generous about them. Did no fishing himself.

Yes, Witherby Stream ran right through his grounds, and one could go the whole way in a punt right through his park; once one had obtained his fishing permit. A good landlord and a regular fellow at that.

Scandal

Yes, lots of scandalous stories about him, his guests, his housekeeper, and the goings on, there.

In residence now? Yes.

And many more questions, gradually narrowing down to those concerning Mr. Webb's daily life, ways, habits, comings and goings.

I gave the fellow all the information I could, and every possible help, short of seeming to know too much.

For a magnificent new scheme, or rather enlargement of my original scheme, had occurred to my mind.

If, as Williams-H. William had written to me, Simon had probably been released from prison before the others, and had then gone to Uncle, collected The Unsetting Sun and other loot that was then common property of the gang, and bolted with it to England—it was more likely that by that Spider Schiltz had followed him—in the hope of getting her share, and that Chink Dorson, having served his term and been released, was now in lieu of Spruill on 17.

How utterly splendid; what a wonderful and beautiful principle of poetic justice it would be—if these two wolves destroyed each other, having no one to deal with the remaining pair!

For the weak spot in my scheme, the weak link in my chain of vengeance—and the one that kept me anxiously awake at night—was the danger that I might be arrested and tried as the slayer of the first or second of my victims, before I had time to deal with the third and fourth.

After that, I should not matter.

But I scarcely dared to contemplate the horror of failure and my being hanged before my work was finished; or at best, sentenced to life-long imprisonment in England, as I had been in America.

Life Sentence

I had to bear in mind that my life sentence still awaited me in America, and that I might easily receive one in England if I escaped hanging.

So what a grim and lovely jest, if I could, a little later, bring Dorson to kill Spider Schiltz, and then greatly help the English police to kill Chink Dorson for the murder!

Both would be punished without endangering my freedom to pursue the other two.

Both would, in measure, be punished by, and through, me.

And they would wholly and entirely be punished by means of me—through their killing of my daughter and their stealing of my diamonds, the bone of their contention and the cause of their mutual destruction.

Could I recommend decent accommodation to my newly arrived acquaintance?

I could. What was wrong with this inn? I had found it very comfortable . . .

To cut a long story short, I showed myself a master of all the skill and tenacity born of my burning lust for vengeance, watching and waiting day by day, sun from near by at night; and in the end, found my man at last in the dark shadow of a great Cedar of Lebanon. I saw Chink Dorson, alone, I had followed, and, by a short cut over the park wall, forestalled—crept quietly from tree to tree, up the mown lit drive that led to Squire Webb's big house.

Whether Chink Dorson, with the burglarious skill he had displayed in every continent and famous, himself opened the door by which he entered the house, or whether it had been left open for him by a servant whom he had suborned or whom he had planted there, I do not know.

What I do know is that, in a state of exultant expectation, I followed him and, guided by the sound of voices, came straight to the door of the room which proved to be Mr. Webb's library.

Hearing the sounds of a struggle, which were followed by a dead silence, I could not forbear to open the door, to see with my own eyes the consummation of the first part of my dream of revenge.

On the floor, obviously dead, lay Spider Schiltz.

The first of my enemies had paid the penalty. He had received the punishment directly due for stealing my diamond, the act which led to the death of my daughter.

And now for the punishment of the second one.

Softly closing the door, I tiptoed away to where the shadows of the landing were darkest, and crouched down beside, and partly behind, the pedestal of a large bronze statue.

A minute later, the door of the library opened, softly closed again, and the figure of Chink Dorson passed between me and the moonlit window on the other side of the broad landing.

LARGEST NEW ENGLAND EVENING CIRCULATION

A Victory for the People Over Forces of Privilege

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT has signed the Cornaire bill creating a power authority to negotiate with the federal and Canadian governments with reference to the building of a dam in the St. Lawrence river and the erection of a hydro-electric station to utilize the power thus made available.

This marks a great forward step—the successful culmination of a struggle waged by the governor of New York with his customary intelligence, persistence and force.

The principle of State development and operation of the people's water power resources is now embodied in a law of the State, declaring the rights of the people in their natural power resources to be perpetual and inalienable.

Governor Roosevelt deserves congratulations. The success of this measure, which will always be associated with his name, was achieved against resolute and formidable opposition.

It is a victory for the citizenship not only of New York State, but of every State in the Union, whom it will hearten and encourage in the unending struggle for the conservation of their rights against the adroit and unsleeping forces of privilege.

Goodbye, Old Prison

End of Charlestown Horrors in Sight

The good people of Massachusetts who believe that men and women should be treated like human beings and not like ancient savages can now send up their paeans of thanksgiving that the Charlestown State Prison is one more step nearer to ultimate abandonment.

The proposal to spend $1,500,000 at once for immediate completion of the model prison colony at Norfolk, which will displace Charlestown, went through the Senate by a vote of 26 to 1, through the House by a vote of 200 to 1 and was signed by Governor Ely.

For this outcome, the Boston Evening American has received numerous compliments from the responsible, progressive and humanitarian leaders of this commonwealth. They knew this newspaper alone exposed, condemned and overcame that un-Christian philosophy which has enabled unfortunate men and women to be housed like cattle in an obsolete prison.

Charles S. Webster, the eminent financier, recognized that obligation to the less fortunate members of society when he declared with great indignation that "no man or woman is bad enough to be imprisoned in Charlestown." To him, to Lewis Parkhurst, Mrs. James J. Storrow, to the legislators who saw the light, to Gov. Ely, and the others engaged in this important work, the people of Massachusetts can offer their gratitude that the abominable conditions of Charlestown will soon be but a memory.

Machete for Americans

Secretary of State Stimson says that if this Government should undertake to protect its citizens, particularly in the interior of Nicaragua, the effort "might lead to difficulties and commitments." It might indeed; nevertheless, the effort should be made.

This Government should "commit" itself to enforcing respect for its citizens and making it safe for them to travel on their legitimate business.

And the Government should create plenty of "difficulties" for those that kill American citizens without just cause.

It is not pleasant to read, in an Associated Press dispatch from New Orleans, about searching parties in Nicaragua that had "found the bodies of Americans slain in the Logtown massacre by Sandino's bandits, and buried on the spot as required by Nicaraguan law."

It is especially unpleasant to read "all of the bodies (of American citizens) had been hacked by machetes except two, and they were decapitated."

This country doesn't want war and doesn't want the dislike of any South American neighbor, not even of Mr. Sandino. It doesn't crave "difficulties and commitments" and it hates strife.

But it also should hate to read about American citizens "hacked with machetes and decapitated."

Wedding Rings

BE ANCIENT times, wedding rings were made of iron; now they appear to be made of wax.

No matter how brilliant a genius may be how great a statesman, he can never hope to be as well-known as a popular cigarette, as famous as a favorite radio-crooner, or as well-loved as Amos 'n' Andy or Will Rogers.

* * *

A married man used to be regarded as his wife's private property; but, nowadays, as far as most girls are concerned, he is right in the class of public perquisites, with Pullman towels and hotel stationery.

A sophisticated woman listens with a cryptic smile, when a man begins babbling the "good pal" stuff. She knows that when you put the KID on love, you merely hasten the combustion.

The only authentic Scotch joke, in these days, is the one the Boy Friend brings in a bottle with a pre-war label and a turpentine taste.

The old-fashioned mother used to weep into a duchess lace handkerchief at her daughter's wedding. But the modern mother feels more like waving a flag and singing the Marsellaise, when daughter signs up to kiss only one man—for a little while.

* * *

Lots of men never have had adenoids, fallen arches or hay-fever; but the man who has never had a grouch, gone off into the silence of the garage and begun POUNDING things just isn't human.

* * *

A gigolo, like a milliner's mirror, must always be flattering—and prepared to make the century-plant feel like a spring violet.

Listen, World—Honesty

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Not Always Best Policy, She Says

I WELL remember with what indignant surprise I first discovered that honesty is not always the best policy.

Elsie Robinson

I was 9 years old. In company with three other young gangsters I had put mucilage on the seat of teacher's chair. It seemed great while we were doing it. And we strangled with giggles as we watched teacher's face when she tried to rise. But five seconds thereafter it ceased to be in the least funny. For teacher was mad . . . goshawful mad! And she demanded a complete and immediate confession from the offending criminals. I was convulsed with terror. In the ecstasy of the adventure I have never thought of consequences. (I never do!) And now what was going to happen?

My three conspirators had no doubt as to what was going to happen. Being practical young souls, they knew perfectly well that nothing was going to happen, as far as they were concerned. They were simply going to sit tight and keep their mouths shut. Which they thereupon proceeded to do. But me—of course I had to go and be different!

To me only one course seemed open . . . To Tell the Truth. Do not assume from this that I was naturally a God-fearing than my young contemporaries. Far from it! But for years 'n' years papa and mama had been telling me that Honesty Was the Best Policy. They, of course, referred to my soul's welfare. But what did I care about my soul's welfare or my possible future rating in the heavenly audit? I wanted results, right here and now. And I believed that honesty would get them . . . that if I would tell the truth everybody would love me and make over me and say What a Wonderful Child That Little Robinson Girl Is!

So I told the truth. And what did I get? Gentle reader, I got it in the neck. Did teacher beam upon me and hold me up as a Beautiful Example to the class? Did those other 'Fraid Cats stand up, shamed by my courage, and confess that they'd helped buy that mucilage at Phillipson's drug store? She did not, nor did they. They snickered—that's what they did. And teacher sent me to the principal. Who promptly bounced me home to mama's tender mercy. And then what did mama do? . . . Mama who had so glowingly endorsed the beauty of honesty? Why, mama gave me the works. And that's what I got for Telling the Truth.

I've lived 38 years since then. I've put a lot of mucilage on chairs and . . . at times . . . I've told the truth about it. But I must sadly record that the results were usually the same. Honesty ISN'T always the best policy. And if you want to give your youngster the straight dope on life, and arm him against its vicious surprises, you had better tell him so.

Tell him fair that if he's after money . . . or applause . . . or popularity . . . or comfort . . . or safety . . . or pleasure . . . honesty isn't the best policy. Maybe it will work, but the chances are that a tricky technique will get him quicker and fatter. Tell him that . . . for he'll find it out for himself, anyway. And he may then, in his shock, discard your whole creed of morals.

So be honest about honesty. Warn your youngster that, from a material viewpoint, honesty is a doubtful risk. But also tell him that, from the angle of spiritual returns, it's the best gamble he can ever take. For the honest man has something that millions cannot buy. He has, in his own soul, freedom and lack of fear . . . he has peace and pride and strength that bear compound interest. Maybe Life will give him the works . . . but in rare, quiet moments he will feel he stands straight with God.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Old Union League Club Moves

NEW YORK, April 29—Those gayly austere faces Fifth avenue strollers dully lanterned in the melancholy windows of the Old Union League club, are now seen in the new Park avenue abode, a few blocks eastward.

The recently finished structure offers a contrasting sprightliness.

It is at the 37th street corner and built of light brick instead of dull red. The old club for some reason symbolized a decrepitude. Members appeared to die without ever having really lived. There was the mustiness of blenched roses. But in the new location there is a sparkling touch and go.

Indeed, with the removal many changes have come to the venerable institution. Not since its beginning have women been permitted to cross the threshold. But on Park there are quarters for the ladies.

Ladies will not enter through the main entrance. There is a special doorway and a private elevator in which they are whisked to their section. It is a spacious room with dining room, rest room, deep cushioned chairs and sundry creature comforts.

A wife of a member is eligible to drop in at the club at any time but no husband may visit the ladies' quarters unless he receives a special invitation from his wife. The abandoned club is now being torn down to make way for an office building.

The Union League is starchy with tradition and I am told that among some of the old timers there are many who bow aloofly as the result of some political grievance of years ago. Noise is abhorred and so the main floor is carpeted with cork.

In one venerable club is a 63-year-old member who drops in every late afternoon, goes to his locker, pours a stiff peg of whiskey and drinks it neat. Then he sits in his favorite chair and smokes two cigarettes. In 20 years he has not used more than this daily allotment of liquor and tobacco. What a man!

* * *

Newark is trying to get rid of its Chinatown—the denizens of which migrated from the New York quarter. It is four blocks of ancient brown stone houses with a sleazy arcade running through it. Raids on opium smoking and gambling are made weekly.

I have been having a gay time reading a yellowed volume called: "The American Letter Writer and Mirror of Polite Behavior: A useful guide in letter writing with rules of conduct." In a sample letter captioned, "A punning letter from a young man to his sweetheart," is this windup: "Do not think me unreasonable, nor call up the rosy blush, if I ask for a few buds of your favorite cow slip—no, I crave pardon, I mean my favorite—your Two Lips."

My mother-in-law frequently resurrects some of the epistolary endearments of my callow adolescence to read before company. One that always sends me hurriedly out of the room includes this honey: "I'll work my fingers to the bone for you." It generally leaves everybody in stitches. Not me. I might be a bum.

42d street jewelry merchants place enlivens its customers with a mute mummer who suggests the pantomimic satyrisms of the flaming-haired Harpo Marx. And, by the way, I've suddenly become "Marx-conscious." The quartet always struck me as so much noise and blather, but some time ago in vaudeville they hit me as rather funny. I may yet make the intelligentsia, heaven forbid!

Dreams Can Come True

But Will Power Does It, the Mere Dream Is Nothing

JEAN JULES VERNE. HIS GRANDFATHER DREAMED IT. HE WILL DO IT

When men now sixty years old were boys they read Jules Verne's imaginative story about a trip of "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea." The brilliant Frenchman of the last century felt that science would do all that men could imagine, and in his novels he allowed himself to dream of future achievements.

He wrote his "Around the World in Eighty Days," and during his lifetime Nelly Bly, a brilliant young American newspaper girl, made the trip by steamboat, rail and other primitive methods in less than eighty days.

We now are well in sight of a time when men will fly around the earth in three days or less.

And already the dream of a trip "under the sea" is reality, and the man in the picture above, the Jules Verne of this generation, grandson of the French novelist and an able French lawyer, will actually make the trip under the ocean and, most marvelous of all, THROUGH THE ARCTIC CIRCLE TO THE NORTH POLE.

Mr. Verne is to accompany Sir Hubert Wilkins.

They will be the first human beings that were ever UNDER the North Pole. And Jules Verne's dream will have come true.

Other dreams come true, if we WORK TO MAKE THEM COME TRUE, as science, industry and engineering skill have worked to make the submarine a reality.

They are the disordered product of the brain in sleep, when the "belt is off the driving wheel," and nothing means anything.

Dreams of science come true when energy and skill work to realise them.

Dreams of ambition come true when men back them with will power, hard work and self-denial.

Dreams that fathers and mothers dream for their children come true when the children are properly brought up, have the right example put before them and are born with the right heredity.

Enemy of Society—Why?

By WINIFRED BLACK

COURAGEOUS eyes, intelligent forehead, good chin—but his mouth is turned the wrong way.

If it wasn't for that this man would be somebody of importance in the world—he has the face of a leader.

He ought to be a civil engineer at the head of big projects, turning rivers from their courses and opening the country to civilization.

Winifred Black

But his mouth is turned the wrong way—so he's a gangster.

A Big Shot with a train of little gangsters at his heels—but just a gangster, after all—with the police and the sheriffs and the detectives hot upon his trail and nothing ahead of him but a cell in the penitentiary or a walk up the 13 steps that lead to a shameful and violent death.

His mouth turns down—not up.

He hates the world and everyone in it. He doesn't believe in friendship. He doesn't trust a human soul, his hand is against the hand of every man who stands for law and even-handed justice.

Yet he must have been a brave, manly little fellow as a boy.

I wonder what turned his mouth down instead of up?

Did his father run away and leave him to struggle up as best he could? Did his mother neglect him and make him one of the army of forlorn little homeless tikes that roam the streets of every great city today in this country that we love to call "civilized"?

"His mouth is turned wrong," said the woman.

"Let me tell you something about that. When my son Bob was a boy he was misbehaving and I sent him upstairs to his own room to think things over.

"Bob stayed upstairs quite a while, so finally I sent his little 3-year-old sister up to see him.

"Little girl," I said, "trudge up the steps and tell brother Bob he'd better make up his mind to come downstairs and be good."

"He isn't coming down just yet," said 3-year-old, "but his mouth's turned the right way, so it's all right."

Bob's mouth was turned the right way because he had a mother who knew how to manage him and took the trouble to do it.

Maybe the gangster would have been all right if he had had the right kind of a mother.

Do you suppose he would?
